GERMANY WILL ASK FOR SECURITY PARLEY WITHOUT ANY DELAY

Decides to Waive Conversations and Get Down to Business on Compact.

FAVORS MEETING IN LONDON

PLANS ENTRY NEXT MONTH

French Cabinet Approves Reply to Security Note Drafted by Briand and Chamberlain.

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—Details for a conference of allied powers and Germany on the security compact are nearing completion and it is probable that the Premiers and Foreign Ministers of Germany, France, England and Belgium will meet at the end of this month either in London or Ostend, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns tonight.

The original plan for a preliminary conference of legal experts has been abandoned in favor of an immediate gathering of men who have the power to make binding decisions.

It is hoped to have the business of the conference completed before the plenary session of the League of Nations Assembly opens at Geneva in order that Germany's entrance into the League can be voted this year without calling a special session.

The Taegliche Rundschau, in an article inspired and in part written by Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister, indicates that the allied answer to Germany's latest security note will require no further exchange of notes, thus opening the way immediately to oral discussions. The allied powers had wished to choose Geneva as the seat of the conference, but Dr. Stresemann and Chancellor Luther both objected on the ground that choice of the League seat would give the opposition elements in Germany too much powder in their campaign against the compact.

Dr. Stresemann's article explains why neither a conference of jurists nor one of Foreign Ministers would succeed in clearing up the security question and other problems allied with it. He points out that the jurists would be unable to reach any binding decisions, but could only arrange an agenda for the main conference, which would throw the meeting into middle or late September. Nor would the Foreign Ministers alone be able in some cases to come to a binding agreement.

Dr. Stresemann probably is referring to the intense opposition to his policy in Germany, which requires Chancellor Luther's personal support before the Nationalists can be whipped into line.

The Cabinet, before breaking up for a vacation, met this morning to consider unofficial reports from London detailing the allied answer to the German note. Most of the members left Berlin tonight on their holiday, but Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann are remaining to prepare for their meeting with the Allies. Both strongly desire that London be chosen rather than Ostend because of the success they achieved there last year and the fact that Ambassador Houghton would act as the American observer should London be selected. They regard Mr. Houghton's activities as one of the decisive factors in bringing the security idea to the point where a conference is possible.

The fact that a conference is being arranged is held to be the best possible indication that the negotiations between the German Government and the Allied Military Mission has progressed to a point where the evacuation of Cologne can be discussed and a date fixed for the departure of the British troops. Fulfilment of this clause of the Versailles Treaty is essential, from the German viewpoint, before the security agreement can be signed and Germany make application to join the League.

PARIS, Friday, Aug. 14.—After more than four hours' discussion the French Cabinet early this morning approved the text of the French reply to the German security note as drafted by Mr. Chamberlain and M. Briand at London yesterday.

It is understood that the Cabinet expects Dr. Stresemann to attend a meeting at Geneva just prior to the opening session of the Assembly of the League of Nations, which begins Sept. 7.

In the Cabinet discussion there was considerable comment on the fact that as matters now stood the security discussion would soon take place with Germany without a firm accord among the Allies as to the terms of the proposed Rhineland treaty.

While there was approval of the moral agreement registered between Paris and London, some of the Ministers felt that England had scored something of a victory in leaving the terms of the intended treaty entirely open, with the exception of the very general lines on which M. Chamberlain and M. Briand registered agreement in fixing the terms of France's reply to the latest Germany security note.

The opinion also was expressed that M. Briand in agreeing that certain kinds of violations of Articles 42 and 44 of the Treaty of Versailles should be adjudged by the League or by the allied concert, had lessened the rights France already holds under the Versailles Treaty.

M. Briand stoutly defended his work and said the French should not go too

Dog With Note Brings Aid To Victim of Fall in Alps

GENEVA, Aug. 13.—A Swiss named Champod, while climbing with a fox terrier in the Diablerets Mountain region of the Bernese Alps the other day, fell down a steep slope and broke his leg. Unable to move and knowing he would be frozen to death if he spent the night in the open, Champod decided to communicate with his relatives by means of his dog.

He wrote in pencil a note describing the accident and the exact spot on the mountainside where he was stranded and asked his sons to bring a stretcher and hot drinks. He placed the note in a handkerchief, which he tied around the neck of the terrier and ordered it home.

The dog at first would not leave the spot, but, when the master threw stones at him and pointed to the valley the animal seemed to understand and ran down. A few hours later Champod's sons, who got the note, arrived with a stretcher and the victim was carried to the valley, where his dog, barking with joy, was the first to greet him.

CRAZED WIFE KILLS TWO AND HERSELF

Mrs. C. H. Curtis of Boston Shoots Husband and Daughter —Wounds Son Who May Die.

GIRL UPSTAIRS ESCAPED

Former Resident Here, Daughter-in-Law of F. S. Curtis, Had Been Ill and Worried.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Mary E. Curtis, 45, daughter-in-law of Fayette S. Curtis, President of the Old Colony Railroad Company and for years Vice President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, this morning shot and killed her husband, George H. Curtis; her daughter Marjorie, 7 years old; wounded her son, George H. Curtis Jr., 20, and then shot and killed herself, in the family home at 10 Maxfield Street, in the West Roxbury section of Boston.

The wounded son's name is on the danger list at the City Hospital, where he was take nwith Marjorie immediately after the shooting. Marjorie died soon after her arrival at the hospital.

Mrs. Curtis wrote several letters to friends before the shooting and also a note in which she said: "I did this to leave them all in peace." Temporary insanity, due to prolonged worry over the illness of her son, George Jr., and a partial paralysis following an automobile accident are believed to have been responsible for the tragedy.

The husband and son were shot while they slept. The little girl was wounded after being chased into the bathroom, where she tried to barricade herself against the crazed woman. The only other member of the family at home, Dorothy, 18, escaped death or injury owing to the fact that she slept on the floor above the rooms where the others met their fate. Her mother, in her crippled state, was unable to climb the stairs.

Dorothy says she was awakened by her mother calling to her, "Come downstairs; hurry, dear."

Dorothy replied that she would as soon as she could. While dressing she heard a shot, another shot, a scream and then two shots in rapid succession. Hastening to the floor below she found her brother, George, in his bed with blood flowing from a bullet wound in the head. In the adjoining bedroom her father was dead where he slept, a gaping hole in his head. By his side on the bed lay Mrs. Curtis, where she had fallen after sending a bullet crashing into her own brain. Marjorie was on the floor of the bathroom with a bullet in her head.

The frightened girl ran to neighbors, told her story and telephoned for Dr. Leard, the family physician, and the police. Medical Examiner Leary says Mrs. Curtis was mentally unbalanced, due to worry. The entire family was in an automobile accident a year ago. The smash-up left Mrs. Curtis with a partially paralyzed right side, which caused her much worry.

George Jr. has been an invalid for some time, due to intestinal trouble, and was only recently discharged from a hospital. His mother, too, worried over his illness. William Fayette Curtis, 25, another son, is a marine attached to the Lakehurst, N. J., flying base. He has

KEMAL DIVORCES 'MASTERFUL' WIFE BY HIS OWN DECREE

Turkish President Cancels His Marriage to Latife Hanoum, Feminist Leader.

DIFFERENCES WERE KNOWN

WED ONLY 2½ YEARS AGO

Rich Smyrna Heiress, Educated in West Europe, Defied Old Moslem Traditions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 13 (AP).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, President of the Turkish Republic, has divorced his wife, Latife Hanoum.

An official statement says that the President, having decided to separate from his wife, has issued a decree pronouncing a divorce effective from Aug. 5.

No reasons are given officially for the divorce, but public rumor has been busy for some time concerning the domestic relations of the President. The divorce is attributed in some quarters to a tendency to masterfulness on the part of Mme. Latife and to her desire to mix in matters which her husband considered outside her sphere.

A serious disagreement between the President and his wife became evident two weeks ago when Mme. Latife left Angora hurriedly to rejoin her parents. On that occasion all the Commissars of the Turkish Government were present to bid her adieu except the President.

Wife Said to Have Desired Divorce.

LONDON, Aug. 13 (AP).—Surprise was caused in the European capitals today by the news from Constantinople that Mustapha Kemal Pasha, President of the Turkish Republic, had divorced by decree, his wife, Latife Hanoum, a young heiress with a Western European education and a modern outlook in matters regarding feminism. Mustapha Kemal met her in Smyrna under romantic circumstances during the wave of enthusiasm in Turkey for modernism and the emancipation of women.

In the recent changes in the régime in Turkey the power of the Sheik-ul-Islam, the head of Mohammedan religion in Turkey, to grant divorces became vested in the President, who thus was able to decree his own divorce. No reason for the divorcement is given in the official statement issued in Turkey today, nor has there been any indication whether Mustapha Kemal's ideals for the advancement of women have undergone any change during the past two years.

According to gossip that has been prevalent for some time in European capitals it was Mme. Latife herself who desired a divorce. Some of the rumors even went so far as to say that she had declined to live longer with Mustapha Kemal.

Leader of "Women's Rights" Movement.

Latife Hanoum, whom Mustapha Kemal Pasha married on Jan. 29, 1923, is a leader in the new order of Turkish women, a profound believer in "women's rights," who practiced her convictions as the wife of the first Turkish President. She strove in every way she could to bring the women of Turkey to the economic and social level of their European sisters.

As part of her efforts she appeared everywhere without the traditional veil—something, however, not uncommon in Saloniki, her birthplace—and then went a step further by arriving at Angora, where the populace awaited a glimpse of "Mme. President," dressed in a smart riding habit, with a flaming kerchief about her vivid black hair.

As the daughter of Mouamerou-Chaki Bey, a wealthy merchant of Smyrna, who had connections with the New York Cotton Exchange, Latife Hanoum received a very careful and thorough education. As a preliminary to schooling in Europe she studied in Smyrna under her uncle, Halid Zia Bey, one of the foremost Turkish writers. She lived for some time in Paris and in Biarritz, and speaks fluently English, French and German. Unlike many modern women of Turkey, she is a master of the Turkish tongue.

In telling of her courtship, Latife Hanoum disclosed that it was more or less of a joining of minds rather than Cry of "Who Won the War?" Starts Trouble With American Sailors at Christchurch, N. Z.

CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z., Friday, Aug. 14 (AP).—All men on leave from the United States warships now visiting Port Lyttelton, the port for Christchurch, were ordered back to their ships last night, following a slight disorder in Victoria Square, caused by the (hoodlum) element annoying the American sailors. No one was injured, but several of the American sailors were arrested by their own patrol. The order created a sensation when the news became known.

The trouble started when the American sailors were annoyed by insulting remarks from a small, irresponsible band of civilians, who shouted "Who won the war?"

The ceremonial march of the officers and men of the American fleet here yesterday proved a great popular spectacle.

The streets were densely packed with cheering masses, whose enthusiasm equalled any previous demonstration ever seen in this city. A feature of the parade was the reception accorded the marchers by thousands of massed school children waving flags.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—Pouring rain and gusty squalls today failed to deter the sailors of the American fleet from enjoying themselves.

The first trips to the interior began today. In addition officers are visiting schools, giving instructive addresses to the students.

Admiral Robert E. Coontz, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet, was entertained at luncheon today by the Wellington Rotary Club.

Flag Desecrator Sentenced To Learn Poem and History

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Recorder Jacob A. Decker imposed an unusual sentence on Morris Marks, aged 19, after finding him guilty of desecrating the American flag.

Morris, who was seen using a flag to clean his automobile, was ordered to visit Washington's headquarters once every week until Thanksgiving, learn the history of the flag and country and a poem on the flag.

Judge Decker, who has a reputation for elocution, suggested "The American Flag," by Drake, beginning "When freedom from her mountain height."

The probation officer is to supervise the punishment.

American Attacked Raiders Near His Manchurian Ranch—Was Shot From Behind.

DR. HOWARD STILL CAPTIVE

Aged Mother of Slain New Yorker Reaches Harbin and Tells Story.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Aug. 13 (AP).—Morgan Palmer, the American who was killed by Chinese bandits at his ranch on the Sungari River late last month, met death while staging a warlike demonstration intended to frighten the bandits from the vicinity at a moment when the outlaws were on the point of evacuating a village where they had been entrenched to resist an attack by Chinese Government troops.

This news was brought to Harbin today by Palmer's mother and the son of Dr. Harvey J. Howard of the Rockefeller Hospital in Peking, who were at the ranch when the tragedy occurred. Dr. Howard, who also was visiting Palmer, was captured by the bandits and is still held for ransom.

Mrs. Palmer and young Howard arrived here in good health, and the elderly lady related with remarkable fortitude the details of the fight in which her son lost his life.

Rising early on the morning of July 20, Palmer declared his intention to take weapons and go by automobile to show the bandits he was prepared for them if they should attack his ranch. Dr. Howard had intended to take a river steamer for Harbin that day, but joined Palmer's party with his son. The others were a Russian chauffeur, Palmer's Chinese servant and a Russian boy.

Arriving at the village adjacent to the bandits' stronghold the party got out and sent the car back for reinforcements, but the Chinese guard in the village declined to accompany the party. Harold Baldwin, Palmer's ranch manager, returned with the chauffeur and attempted to prevent further advance, knowing that the bandits were well armed and mounted.

Palmer, however, insisted on going on, and he led his party to a ruined temple four miles from his ranch and midway between two villages. Baldwin climbed to the top of the temple to reconnoitre. Palmer, Dr. Howard and the Chinese and Russian boys entered a near-by cornfield, while young Howard remained alone in the car.

From the top of the temple Baldwin saw the bandits mount and prepare to make a sortie. He descended and started the car in pursuit of Palmer and his group, and at the same time the bandits made a move to cut off their retreat, whereupon Baldwin swerved to pick up others of the party, who from the running board of the automobile carried on a running fire while making a dash for the ranch.

Palmer Is Shot in the Back.

Meanwhile Palmer and those with him were encircled by another group of bandit horsemen. Dr. Howard and the Russian boy threw down their rifles and made signs of surrender, but Palmer and his Chinese servant continued firing.

According to the Russian youth, the bandits dismounted and crept up behind Palmer Indian fashion, shooting him through the head at close range and then killing the Chinese boy in a similar way.

Later the outlaws sent messengers to the Palmer ranch, demanding money and ammunition. The defenders there, who had gathered around Palmer's mother, collected all the available funds and cartridges and went to make terms for the release of the prisoners who had surrendered, but found that the bandits had decamped.

Two Friends Buried Together.

The Russian boy was found in the village where he had been carried, suffering from gunshot wounds in both thighs. The captors had permitted Dr. Howard to apply first aid.

Morgan Palmer's body was recovered and buried under a great oak near the ranch house, together with that of the Chinese boy, whom Palmer held in great affection. Howard Baldwin read the Episcopal service at the funeral.

Dr. Howard's captors crossed the Sungari River, foiling the efforts of Chinese troops to encircle them, and now are believed to be in the Kirin Mountain district.

Samuel Sokobin, American Consul at Mukden; Howard Baldwin and Roger Greene, business director of the Rockefeller Hospital, are remaining at Funchin pending efforts to locate Dr. Howard and to bring abot his release.

Funchin is 450 miles from Harbin and twenty miles from the Palmer ranch.

COOLIDGE BELIEVES WORLD COURT WON; LINES UP SENATORS

He Relies on Loyalty to Him of Candidates for Election in 1926 to Back the Tribunal.

MESSAGE TO STRESS ISSUE

VERMONT JOURNEY TODAY

President Will Spend Five Days With His Father—Mellon Coming to Talk Belgian Debt.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 13.—In the seven weeks' stay here which he has devoted to weighing the prospects of enactment of his legislative plans President Coolidge has come to the conclusion that the Administration program, with heavy cuts in surtaxes and the World Court proposal, will be adopted by the next Congress.

The President came here convinced that little trouble would be encountered in Congress over his tax revision bill. Reports from Republican leaders indicate expectation that the bill will be accepted in large part by the minority party. Democratic leaders, it is said, have decided to do this in the hope of getting some benefit from the popularity that has come to the Administration because of its efforts in reducing taxes.

It became known in official circles today that President Coolidge feels more confident than at any previous time of the adoption by the Senate of the World Court protocol.

The visit of Senator Moses this week and reports which have come to him privately from different Senators, as well as surveys made by committees interested in the court, all go to give the President hope that this one of his three leading policies will be carried into effect in the next Congress.

Message Will Stress World Court.

President Coolidge is not going to neglect an opportunity to accentuate the court as a major item of his foreign policy in his message to Congress. He will speak plainly about the court, but in seeking action on this and other policies he will not attempt to use any "big stick."

The attitude of the Senate towards President Coolidge is changing since it showed its absolute independence in rejecting the nomination of Charles B. Warren for Attorney General, Senators have seen that public opinion is not so cordial to the upper branch but leans rather towards the President because of his efforts to reduce taxes and keep down expenses.

In other words, President Coolidge appears to be stronger than Congress and has the esteem of the masses. Therefore, preceding the 1926 elections, in which thirty-four Senators are to be elected, Republican Senators, many of whom face doubtful contests, are now turning to the President for his support. Some of the Senators who fought him are now willing to get behind the 1926 slogan: "Support the President."

President to Demand Party Loyalty.

President Coolidge has heard so many pleas of repentance that he is willing to listen to them. He has not committed himself to aid these Senators, but they know that they cannot expect anything from the titular head of the party in the way of a favor unless they show loyalty to him and the party platform declaration on the World Court.

President Coolidge is going to call for affirmative action on the World Court in no uncertain terms, according to those who have discussed the subject with him in the last ten days.

Though the President was thought to be lukewarm in his support of the World Court some months ago, that is not his attitude now. He has become an aggressive advocate of the Court with reservations protecting American interests and freeing the United States from any obligations to the League of Nations. Another reservation which he wants is a statute defining what the court can do with respect to advisory opinions.

President Coolidge is letting the Re-

Hylan Leaders Decide to Name Only Borough and County Tickets Here and in Bronx.

Former Surrogate John P. Cohalan, before being named campaign manager for Mayor Hylan in Manhattan and the Bronx, sought the support of Republican leaders as a candidate for Mayor on a proposed fusion ticket, it was learned yesetrday. Mr. Cohalan, who, since his selection as a Hylan campaign manager, has professed complete confidence in the Mayor's renomination and re-election, was said to have told influential Republicans that he had no doubt that Mayor Hylan, in the event of his renomination by the Democrats, could be beaten by a properly organized fusion ticket and was said to have suggested that he would be the proper man to head it.

Among the influential Republicans whom Mr. Cohalan was reported to have visited were Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman, and Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee. Mr. Hilles also is Chairman of the City-Wide Committee composed of the five Republican county leaders and the Chairman of the respective county advisory committees, to which was entrusted the naming of a slate.

Mr. Cohalan was said to have made his personal calls on Mr. Hilles, Mr. Koenig and other influential Republicans several weeks ago, but his friends were said to have continued to urge him for the nomination almost up to the eve of the selection of Frank D. Waterman as the condidate for Mayor by the five Republican county leaders and the ratification of that selection by the Hilles committee. The support of a group of independent Democrats was said to have been enlisted in Mr. Cohalan's behalf and representations were made to the Republican leaders that the nomination of Mr. Cohalan for Mayor would result in a strong fusion movement and bring to the Republican-fusion ticket the votes of thousands of independent and anti-Tammany Democrats.

The Republican leaders were said to have given little serious consideration to the suggestion of naming Mr. Cohalan for Mayor. Mr. Koenig, perhaps with remembrance of the disastrous result of the fusion with Mr. Cohalan's adherents and the supporters of William Randolph Hearst on a judicial ticket two years ago, was said to have been against it from the start, and none of the influential Republicans whose support was solicited made any attempt to promote Mr. Cohalan's candidacy, according to the report.

When asked about the matter, Mr. Cohalan did not deny that he had been a candidate for the Republican-fusion nomination for Mayor, but said that his candidacy had not been serious.

"A number of my friends suggested that I might make a candidate, and that was all there was to it," he said. "I would enter into any combination to defeat those who now think they are running Tammany Hall. I have looked over the ground carefully and am convinced that the way to do it is by supporting and nominating Mayor Hylan."

New Tear Gas Blocks Hold-Up of Jeweler; 'Bandits' Blinded, Crowd Weeps in Store Test

A new protective device for jewelry stores and banks which instantly releases tear gas upon operation of a foot lever by a clerk during a hold-up was tried yesterday with success upon two "bandits," clerks, jewelry and insurance men, police reporters and bystanders.

A sham hold-up was enacted at the jewelry store of Henry Nockin, 2,321 Broadway, which had been equipped with the device, with the result that within a few minutes the supposed bandits had been rendered helpless, and many persons in the crowd watching the trial were rubbing their eyes and rapidly making off for more comfortable regions.

The new device was perfected by insurance companies as a result of the large number of hold-ups lately. At their request Captain Adrian St. John, chemical warfare officer attached to Major General Summerall's staff, invented a new tear gas which blinds a person temporarily, but which is without injurious effects and wears off after eight or ten minutes. The gas is released by a foot lever operated by a clerk at the signal of "hands up," and the gas immediately renders helpless every person in the store, at the same time an alarm is sounded to summon police. It was said that no gas mask made is proof against this tear gas.

Cameras were kept busy at the test yesterday when two rough-looking individuals entered the store, guns in their hands, and ordered "Hands up!" Instantly the store was filled with gas discharged from three heavy duty guns and two heavy duty boxes. The "bandits" reeled out of the door, blinded and helpless, while the crowd which had been attracted by the experiment cheered at its success. But the gas was fast pouring out of the store, and within a minute several hundred persons were groping blindly about the sidewalk. They got only a slight dose of the gas, but it left them weeping and laughing for a few minutes.

The jewelers and insurance men present expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the test. Gresham D. Ennis of William H. McGee & Co., underwriters, who arranged the test, said that he expected insurance companies would grant reduced rates to stores protected by the device.

Among those who watched the trial were Meyer D. Rothschild, Henry Agate, President of the Bonner Manufacturing Company; Arthur Lorsch, Frederick C. Backus, Secretary of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade; Charles Bishop, Secretary of the Jewelers' Survey Bureau; Herbert S. Mosher of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and L. F. Carter of the Commercial Union Insurance Company.

Says Old Hearst Machine May Back Tammany Ticket

Deputy Register Michael J. McCarthy said yesterday that the Independence League, the remnant of the old Hearst political organization, might indorse Senator James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor. Mr. McCarthy said that a meeting of the league would be called soon and that it was likely that it would decide to support the Tammany city ticket.

The Independence League went out of existence as a political organization in 1914. Mr. McCarthy explained that the present organization was composed of members of the old political organization who met at a dinner about once a year.

"I have been with Mr. Hearst for twenty-one years," Mr. McCarthy said. "In 1917 most of the league members enrolled as Democrats and I fail to see how we have any right to object to the Tammany designations."

PICK WILCOX TO FIGHT WISCONSIN RADICAL

Republican Conference Names Eau Claire Man for Senator on Fourth Ballot.

Lenroot Attacks the State Regime as 'Radical Dictatorship' —Coolidge Policies Endorsed.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 13 (AP).—Roy P. Wilcox of Eau Claire was nominated for United States Senator by the Republican Party in State convention tonight on the fourth ballot. The nomination was made unanimous after W. L. Pieplow of Milwaukee had thrown his vote of 183 to Wilcox.

Mr. Wilcox will be the Coolidge Republican candidate to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator La Follette.

The candidacy of Mr. Wilcox ran a hectic course through the convention, the lead having at one time gone to Dean H. L. Russell of Agricultural College of the University of Wisconsin, who withdrew after stating through a representative that he was unable to make the race.

The fourth and first formal ballot gave Wilcox 339, McGovern 52, Pieplow 183, Ingalls 12, Clauson 11, Titus 15, scattered 53.

Party Leaders in Harmony.

Complete harmony reigned throughout the meeting today. At the close of an address by Senator Irvine L. Lenroot late in the afternoon, speeches were made placing in nomination six candidates for the consideration of the convention. Only one ballot was taken before recess just before 7 o'clock, and this showed Dean Russell leading nearly two to one over his nearest opponent, Mr. Wilcox. The first three ballots by rule of the convention are considered informal and cannot be made formal.

The result of the first ballot showed contestants receiving the following votes: H. L. Russell, 257½; R. P. Wilcox, 176; F. E. McGovern, 41½; Wallace Ingalls, 53; W. L. Pieplow, 52; J. H. McGilian, 47.

Several of the candidates, including Francis E. McGovern, have announced themselves in the race regardless of the action of the convention.

In resolutions adopted and forming a sort of platform which will be used in the 1925 senatorial campaign, the convention went on record as being in accord with the policies and administration of President Coolidge.

Lenroot Assails "Dictatorship."

In his address Senator Lenroot appealed to the voters of Wisconsin to "see that no man hostile to President Coolidge" shall be sent by them to the United States Senate.

Mr. Lenroot assailed the leaders of the "so-called progressive administration" of Wisconsin as "radicals" and denounced their administration of Wisconsin affairs as a "dictatorship." He also described the "progressive administration" as the "Triumvirate at Madison" which determined "who their followers shall vote for," adding that "every member of this triumvirate did everything he could last year to destroy the Republican Party."

"Common honesty and common decency," he said, "would lead these gentlemen to keep off the Republican primary ballot, and if they wish to become candidates for office to do so under the name of their own party or in the independent column.

"There is a clearly defined issue between these radical leaders in Wisconsin and Republicans," he continued. "They seek to divide our people into groups and classes, arraying group against group and class against class. They increase the expenses of the State government for the purpose of building a political machine, and then try to appease the taxpayers by trying to make them believe that they increase only the taxes of the rich. In the national field they would destroy our Constitution and

PLAN ANTI-HYLAN DRIVE

Captains of Fighting Forces Receive Instructions at the Wigwam.

GOVERNOR PLEDGES HIS AID

As a Citizen, Not as Executive, He Will Urge Walker for Mayor.

FARE AND SUBWAY ISSUES

Tammany for First Time in Its History Organizes a Speakers' Bureau for a Primary.

In a talk to the members of the Executive Committees of Tammany and the Bronx county Democratic organization at Tammany Hall, Governor Smith pledged himself yesterday to engage in an active speaking campaign on behalf of State Senator James J. Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor, and the latter's associates on the Tammany city ticket.

The Governor told the Executive Committee members, who are the captains of the fighting forces of the anti-Hylan combination, that he would enter the primary campaign as a private citizen and not as Governor. He asserted that he was a resident of New York City and a member of the Tammany organization and intended to take part in the fight as such. He complimented the Executive members upon their selection of Senator Walker, Major General Charles W. Berry, candidate for Controller, and City Court Justice Joseph V. McKee, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. He commended Senator Walker in particular and told his hearers that he intended to tell the people of the city of the latter's particular qualifications for Mayor, which he personally knew because of long association with him at Albany.

With Senator Walker, Governor Smith attended the organization meeting of the Tammany Speakers' Bureau at Tammany Hall in the evening, at which the Tammany speakers were instructed in the line of attack to be made in the campaign. It was the first time in the history of Tammany that the Speakers' Bureau has been organized by a primary contest, for Tammany has never had one since the Direct Primary law went into effect twelve years ago. William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen and candidate for County Clerk, presided.

Attack on Hylan Outlined.

It was learned that Tammany, with the aid of the Governor and Senator Walker, intended to make an aggressive campaign against Mayor Hylan, attacking him for responsibility for delay in the construction of new subways and for general inefficiency in his conduct of the City Government. The Tammany speakers also will stress Senator Walker's record for five-cent fare legislation and will attempt to show that the Tammany candidate for Mayor antedated the Mayor in his efforts to keep a five-cent fare.

Governor Smith will make speeches for Senator Walker in every borough. He said that he would have to return to Albany on Monday and would not be able to return to New York City until after Aug. 25. After that time, he said, he would be on the firing line for the Tammany city ticket until the primary election, on Sept. 15.

The formal opening of the anti-Hylan campaign in Richmond will be delayed until the Governor's return. County Judge J. Harry Tiernan, candidate for President of that borough, sent a committee to Tammany Hall to ask the Governor to open the Staten Island anti-Hylan campaign and obtained his promise to do so, although the Governor was unable to set a date. Judge Tiernan said later that the formal opening of his campaign would be delayed until the Governor was available.

The afternoon meeting at Tammany Hall was in the nature of a ratification meeting, but was closed to outsiders. All the candidates on the city ticket, Senator Walker, General Berry and Justice McKee, were present. Each spoke briefly, and it was said that Mayor Hylan's name was not mentioned. The local candidates, Borough President Julius Miller, who has been designated for renomination; Miss Annie S. Mathews, County Register; William T. Collins, candidate for County Clerk; Charles W. Culkin, candidate for Sheriff, and Justice Bernard L. Shientag, candidate for the City Court, also spoke briefly.

Each candidate was received with applause and the Tammany and Bronx Assembly district leaders, practically every one of whom was present, pledged themselves to obtain large majorities for the city and county candidates.

The interest that the primary contest has aroused in Tammany was again shown by the large crowd that gathered outside the meeting room, in the corridors and on the sidewalk. So many were present that the candidates had to hold something in the nature of an informal reception before and after the meeting.

George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, said after the meeting that he would not seek to nominate any anti-Hylan candidates for local offices in Brooklyn or Queens. "No matter what Mayor Hylan says or does, I intend to live up to my agreement with 'bargaining politicians,'" he said with a smile as he quoted the Mayor's characterization of the five Democratic county leaders who made the agreement.

Judge Olvany confirmed the impression that the fight against Mayor Hylan would be aggressive, when he was asked whether the campaign to be made by Tammany and the Bronx organization would be aggressive or defensive.

"It certainly will not be a defensive one," he replied "What have we to defend?"

Judge Olvany was asked whether former Surrogate John P. Cohalan, Mayor Hylan's Manhattan and Bronx campaign manager, had sought to get any Tammany men for his proposed county tickets.

"They've tried to get a lot of them," he replied smiling, "but they have all declined."

It was learned that the Hylanites had offered the designation for Sheriff of Bronx county to James F. Geraghty, one of the Bronx Assembly district leaders, who failed to get the designation from the regular organization, and that Mr. Geraghty had declined.

Senator Walker announced that Benjamin F. Schreiber, law partner of William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen and formerly an Assistant District Attorney and a Deputy Attorney General, had been selected as his campaign manager. Mr. Schreiber has the record of having managed several campaigns without having lost any of them. Among the campaigns he directed were those of James A. Foley and John P. O'Brien for Surrogate, William P. Burr for Justice of the Supreme Court and Joab H. Banton for District Attorney.

John J. Curtin, Tammany Brooklyn manager, will open headquarters for Senator Walker today in the Albee Building, where 10,000 feet of floor space has been obtained.

"There are only two issues in the campaign," Mr. Curtin declared. "Is Senator Walker better fitted to fill the position of Mayor than Mr. Hylan? Are the enrolled Democrats going to follow Governor Smith or William Randolph Hearst?"

WALKER MEN WON'T OPPOSE CONNOLLY

Organization in Queens Decides Not to Name Candidates for Local Offices.

Announcement that the Walker organization in Queens would make no attempt to name a candidate for Borough President against Maurice E. Connolly or other local candidates was made last night by Frank X. Sullivan immediately after his election as permanent Chairman at a meeting at the Walker headquarters, 381 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City.

Mr. Sullivan, who was formerly Commissioner of Public Works under Borough President Connolly, said that he would appoint a committee of two members from each Assembly District to confer with George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, and learn whether or not the new Walker organization in Queens would be recognized if Senator Walker should be elected Mayor. So far no assurances to that effect have been received.

Moe Berlin of Rockaway was elected Secretary and Frank F. Adel of Jamaica President of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce, Treasurer. Announcement was made that 650 signatures to Walker petitions had been obtained in the First Queens Assembly District.

Anti-Connolly Democrats at Maspeth designated three Aldermanic candidates—Henry Ulrich of Evergreen, in the Fifty-ninth District; John J. Reardon of Elmhurst, in the Sixtieth, and Stephen Irwin, in the Sixty-first—but it was said these did not have the backing of the Walker organization.

Despite the refusal of the Walker organization to support an anti-Connolly local ticket, Charles T. Caldwell, formerly a close associate of Mr. Connolly, and Peter Leininger, former member of the Assembly, were said to be aspirants for the Democratic nomination for Borough President against Mr. Connolly.

JERSEY WELL 4,000 FT. DEEP

Oil Company Has Spent $200,000 in Boring Test Hole.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 13 (AP).—Intermittent efforts of more than six years to find oil in Ocean County, despite the predictions of geologists that oil in paying quantities would not be found, have brought the Providence Oil Company almost to the depth at which inventors of apparatus for detecting subterranean minerals and liquids have asserted oil would be found. The scene of operations has been at Jackson's Mills, about four and a half miles from here, where it is estimated at least $200,000 has been spent in taking the test hole to a depth of nearly 4,000 feet.

For the storage of surplus oil in case a gusher is struck, a six-inch pipe line has been built to a cranberry bog about a quarter of a mile distant. More than 12,000 acres are under lease.

The operations are carried on by a group of men of Providence, R. I., among whom are Herman J. Waterhouse, H. J. Kimball and Benjamin P. Moulton.

9 KILLED, 80 INJURED IN FRENCH TRAIN WRECK

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Another addition to the long list of recent French railroad wrecks occurred this afternoon in the derailment of the Paris-Boulogne express at Amiens. Nine passengers were killed and eighty others more or less seriously injured. According to latest information the dead and injured, with the exception of two or three English subjects, were all of French nationality.

The accident was due to the unwarranted and reckless velocity with which the engineer conducted the train into the Amiens station. Despite the fact that it was scheduled to stop at Amiens, the train flew into the station at a speed of sixty miles an hour. The locomotive jumped from the track in front of the switch which commanded access to the station and pulled the tender and two coaches over on their sides. A general smash-up of five other coaches ensued, one crashing into the other. Flames immediately issued from various parts of the wreck, but the fire was extinguished before it gained much headway.

The accident taking place practically in the station, officials lost no time assembling an adequate rescue force of doctors, nurses, soldiers and gendarmes. Two of the nine killed died on the way to the city clinic, one being the conductor of the train. All the injured were immediately transported to the hospital.

The engineer of the train, Alfred Seragne, was dragged out of the wreck unconscious but otherwise unharmed. On recovering consciousness he was unable to account satisfactorily for his operation of the train and was placed under arrest.

The train left Paris at 3 P. M. According to testimony of a passenger, the engineer between Paris and Amiens maintained almost continuously a speed of over eighty miles an hour.

GIRL HURT IN AUTO LEAP.

Tells Police She Jumped From Car—Thrown Out, Witnesses Say.

Detectives of the Wadsworth Avenue station were unable to learn yesterday how Miss May Woods, 20 years old, a dancing teacher, of 900 St. Nicholas Avenue, fell from an automobile at 180th Street and Riverside Drive early yesterday morning.

The girl is in a serious condition at Columbus Hospital, with a fractured skull and internal injuries. She told Detective Edward Mullin that she leaped from the automobile of her own volition. Three persons who witnessed the affair declare the girl was thrown out and that the driver of the car extinguished his tail light and increased speed after the girl struck the pavement.

Ernest Hansen of 820 West 180th Street was walking along the Drive with a man and a woman when an automobile came up traveling fast. A door was opened suddenly, he said, and the girl came hurtling out. Hansen stopped a passing automobile and Miss Woods was taken to Columbus Hospital. When Detective Mullin questioned her she said she was out with another girl and a boy friend and denied being thrown out of the machine.

Waterman to Go to Lynn, Mass.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 13.—Frank D. Waterman, candidate for Mayor of New York on the Republican-Citizens' ticket, has engaged rooms at a hotel here for early next week. He expects to spend a few days on the North Shore, it is said, to prepare for the Mayoralty campaign.

COHALAN SOUGHT FUSION NOMINATION

in allegiance was cited yesterday by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, who declared that County Judge J. Harry Tiernan of Richmond, candidate for President of that borough on an anti-Hylan ticket, had told him a short time ago that he was "100 per cent. for Hylan." Mr. Hirshfield asked in a letter to Mayor Hylan what had happened to cause Judge Tiernan to change his mind, and then answered his own question by blaming the Staten Island "traction interest."

"Everyone knows that the Wall Street-traction combination has collected a $5,000,000 fund to be used to prevent your re-election," he wrote, "and, of course, if they can stop your nomination in the primaries, it will leave so much more to take care liberally of those who are actively engaged in opposing you.

"It will be news to you to learn that a few days before Judge Tiernan of Staten Island announced himself the Tammany standard-bearer in the Borough of Richmond, and against you, he and I attended a function at the Pennsylvania Hotel, and that during the conversations we had that evening Judge Tiernan had expressed himself a 100 per cent. Hylan man and predicted that not only would you have the united support of the Democracy of the Borough of Richmond, but that from what he had learned and observed while sitting as County Judge in the Borough of the Bronx, he was sure that you would carry that borough as well. What had happened to induce the honorable Judge to change front in five or six days I don't know. Certainly nothing that you did those few days warranted his executing a flip-flop.

"Of course, I recall that in 1915 the Richmond Light & Railway Company and the Staten Island Midland Railway Company, owners of the roads which in January, 1920, suspended operation, owed the City of New York taxes, water rents and other claims amounting to $537,810.37, and that on Aug. 13, 1916, those claims were settled with the Controller for $307,527.69. Judge Tiernan was one of the attorneys for the light and railroad company in that matter.

"I also recall that in January, 1920, at the State Bar Association dinner, Judge Tiernan told me that if the Staten Island trolley lines would stop running because of your refusal to give them increased fare, he, Tiernan, would have you impeached. Within a few days thereafter the trolley lines on Staten Island did stop running, as Judge Tiernan predicted, and Judge Tiernan thereupon impaneled a grand jury and with the aid of his District Attorney actually sought to indict you. It was only after I appeared before that Grand Jury and explained to them the situation, that that Grand Jury refused to do Judge Tiernan's bidding. Thomas F. Curley, Judge Tiernan's present Tammany candidate for District Attorney, told me at that time that the charge which Judge Tiernan delivered to the Grand Jury, virtually directing it to indict you, had been prepared for the Judge by Bertram G. Eadie, the attorney for the Staten Island light and railway companies and the acknowledged representative of Tammany Hall on Staten Island.

"In view of the previous protestation by the Tammany Hall and Bronx Democratic leaders that they are for a 5-cent fare, I wonder what explanation they will now make for having selected for their representatives on Staten Island Judge Tiernan and Bertram G. Eadie, the former and present attorneys for the Staten Island increased-fare-seeking railroads?"

Judge Tiernan declined to comment in detail last night upon Mr. Hirshfield's letter. "It is just a lot of Hirshfield's slush," he said.

HYLAN PLANS ARE CHANGED.

Will Not Name Assembly and Aldermanic Candidates Here.

Announcement that the supporters of Mayor Hylan had abandoned their plan of nominating Assembly and Aldermanic candidates in Manhattan and the Bronx but would name complete borough and county tickets was made yesterday by former Surrogate John P. Cohalan, the Mayor's manager for these boroughs.

Mr. Cohalan made this announcement after participation in a conference with Mayor Hylan, William H. Edwards, candidate for Controller, and William A. Cokeley, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, in the Mayor's office at City Hall. He explained that the decision to abandon the effort to name Assembly and Aldermanic candidates did not indicate any weakening on the part of the Hylan forces but was caused by the physical impossibility of preparing the designating petitions for thirty-one Assembly candidates and thirty-two Aldermanic candidates before next Tuesday night, when the time for filing will expire.

Mr. Cohalan declared that the slate for borough and county tickets was practically completed and would be announced by 1 o'clock today.

Reports of the possibility of a break between Mayor Hylan and John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn and the Mayor's most powerful political backer, were set at rest by the denial of Mr. McCooey that any break was possible because of the Mayor's decision to run Hylan local candidates in Manhattan and the Bronx in violation of the "gentlemen's agreement" between the rival Democratic county leaders.

Relations Cordial, McCooey Says.

Mr. McCooey said he would take no part in naming candidates in Manhattan and the Bronx but would confine his efforts to carrying Brooklyn for the Hylan city ticket. "There is positively no change in the cordial relation between Mayor Hylan and myself," Mr. McCooey said. "I have talked with the Mayor and he understands the situation perfectly.

"Things are getting pretty lively and I think we will have a nice fight. We like that; it will give us something to do."

According to friends, Mr. McCooey does not approve the Mayor's decision to run local candidates in Tammany's territory but regards it as the Mayor's affair and not his. He was said to have been informed by Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens, and David S. Rendt, the Richmond Democratic leader, that they believe Tammany has been fomenting discord in their boroughs and has been responsible for placing an anti-Hylan county ticket in the field in Richmond. Mr. McCooey, it was said, does not see it that way and has expressed belief that Judge Olvany, leader of Tammany, has not been responsible.

Those who still hold to the belief that Mr. McCooey is not wholehearted in his desire for Mayor Hylan's success at the primaries saw in Mr. McCooey's failure to attend the Mayor's conference an indication of a rift. Mr. McCooey, who had had luncheon at the Bankers' Club, drove by City Hall while the conference was in progress but did not stop.

City Chamberlain Philip Berolzheimer and Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield were present at the conference, and Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright was present when it began but explained that he had called on the Mayor on police business.

"Best Way to Attack Tammany."

"We decided that it was the best way to attack Tammany," Mr. Cohalan said after the conference in discussing the definite decision to name local Manhattan and Bronx tickets. "Tammany revolted from the city democracy after it had named Mayor Hylan and refused to indorse him.

"Mr. McCooey is the county leader of Brooklyn. He lives in Brooklyn and will vote in Brooklyn. We in Manhattan have decided to run a county ticket and the same decision has been made in the Bronx. We have the names of candidates for Borough President and other offices and we will announce them tomorrow."

Mr. Cohalan said the Hylanites would not seek permission to speak during the campaign in the Tammany clubhouses. "There are plenty of other places," he said. "If invitations are issued, of course, they will be accepted."

Mr. Cohalan added that the Hylan campaign would get under way immediately and that Manhattan headquarters would be opened today at the Hotel Roosevelt.

"I had a very pleasant conference with my colleagues on the ticket," said Mayor Hylan after the conference ended. "There was complete unanimity on all points discussed, including the question of separate county tickets in Manhattan and the Bronx. Tammany has not named 'regular candidates,' and we will."

"Mr. Cokeley declared that the 5-cent fare was the issue of the campaign in his opinion. I would like to know what Senator Walker would do for the people of the City of New York that Mayor Hylan has not done," he said.

Hylan supporters in the Bronx were reported last night still to be seeking a candidate for Borough President. A tentative slate for the Hylan Bronx County ticket was announced by a leading Hylan supporter as follows:

For Surrogate, George M. S. Schulz, the Democratic incumbent indorsed by the Republicans; for County Judge, H. Bennett Solomon; for District Attorney, Samuel Sheriff; for County Clerk, Frank J. Manley; for Sheriff, John P. Minogue; for Register, Michael J. Brown.

ENDORSE HYLAN TICKET.

West End Club Members and Rockaway Park Reverse Action.

Repudiating the action taken Wednesday night at what they called a "rump" meeting of the West End Democratic Club of Rockaway Park, which endorsed the city ticket headed by Senator Walker, members of the club at a special meeting last night adopted unanimously a resolution endorsing the city ticket headed by Mayor Hylan and the county ticket headed by Borough President Maurice E. Connolly.

The meeting took place at the club house, with Vice President Joseph Kiernan in the chair, in the absence of the President, Thomas Bush. Bush was presiding at the meeting on Wednesday night, which it is charged took action when only a few members had arrived.

CONFESSES THREAT ON MELLON'S LIFE

W. K. Reeme, Kansas City Insurance Man, Arrested, Admits Writing to Secretary.

DISCIPLE OF CARRIE NATION

He Accuses the Treasury Head of Laxity in the Enforcement of Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 13.—Will K. Reeme, insurance man, an ardent disciple of Carrie Nation of Kansas and long a crusader for prohibition, admitted this afternoon at Police Headquarters that he was the author of an anonymous letter threatening the life of Secretary Mellon.

The writer of the letter declared he would "make it my life effort to assassinate you for the good of the world."

On July 31 an anonymous letter was mailed on a Santa Fe train to Mr. Mellon. The letter was returned to William H. Davenport, head of the Secret Service here, for investigation. Since Aug. 6 Mr. Davenport has attempted to trace the writer. Comparison of the handwriting with that of Mr. Reeme yesterday caused the action today.

In admitting the authorship of the letter Reeme said that in his opinion prohibition was not being enforced properly and that Secretary Mellon was responsible for the laxness.

Reeme had told Kansas City acquaintances that after the death of Carrie Nation he went to the cemetery at Belton, Mo., where she was buried, and there, over her grave, took an oath he would carry on her work.

The letter written by Reeme to Mr. Melon said in part:

"I note in the press this day rumor of your resignation from Cabinet as Secretary of Treasury. Do hope this is true, as your resignation will relieve me of a conviction that has been on my mind for some time, and the reported speech of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania recently intensified the conviction to all but the point of action, namely: To make it my life effort to assassinate you for good of the world, because of the aid and comfort you have given to the most destructive, dastardly and wicked institution on earth.

"The effort you and your following have made to nullify and tear down the Eighteenth Amendment is treason of the rankest sort, and if ever a person deserved death at the hands of an outraged public you certainly deserve such.

"I am persuaded that I would be justified in taking your life, not in malice and hatred but to get attention to the situation of your treasonable life and actions as applied to the Eighteenth Amendment.

"I could do this with no compunction of conscience, believing God, knowing my heart and purpose in so doing, would pardon me, as I am sure he pardoned John Brown of Harper's Ferry for doing what he did to hasten the overthrow of human slavery.

"It is better to obey God than man, and I am fully persuaded this prompting is of God. Call me fanatic or what you may."

SAY CAMERA PROCESS WILL ABOLISH TYPE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—In a small workshop in a London back street two men, after four years of patient work, have brought to what is called commerical perfection a machine which, it is asserted, will revolutionize printing.

J. R. C. August and E. K. Hunter, brothers-in-law, say they have perfected a new application of photography which may make the use of metal type in printing obsolete.

The basis of the invention is a film on which letters, figures and all kinds of type have been photographed. By a keyboard, like a typewriter, characters from the "master film" are projected in rapid sequence onto a sensitized base and photographed by fractional exposures. The exposed film corresponds to type set on a linotype machine, bearing the image of the matter to be published.

The printing may then be completed by a line block for letterpress, by direct lithographing, by photographic processes from plate or stone, or by offset photo-litho.

The camera projecting the master film characters focuses automatically. Different sizes of type are obtained by adjusting the lens of the camera by an automatic operation, and an infinite variety of type can be secured, they say, adding that the width of the column, style and size of type and spacing between letters can all be decided in a quarter of a minute by the adjustment of small levers.

By the application of telegraphy and wireless telegraphy, it is also claimed, the operator of a keyboard in London could set up copy simultaneously in provincial towns.

Seventy patents have been taken out on the invention, the main use of which, the inventors think, will be the offset printing process, which is rapidly coming into favor in America. It is stated that the invention, which will be available for newspapers in a few years, will save millions of dollars to the printing industry in capital outlay and greatly increase the speed of newspaper production.

$5,000 Gems Were Lost at Indian Harbor Fire; Police Warn Thieves to Return Them in Week

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 13.—That costly jewels and other articles of value belonging to persons who occupied apartments in the old Held House, owned by the Commodore E. C. Benedict estate at Indian Harbor, were stolen during a fire which destroyed the building on Aug. 1 became known today.

Under the direction of Sergeant Walter Lenihan of the State police, cooperating with the Greenwich Police Department and the National Board of Fire Underwriters of 76 William Street, New York, an investigation has been going on for ten days.

State Officer James Finnegan, with Captain Patrick J. Flanagan of the Greenwich Police Department and Joseph F. Gillece, special agent for the National Board of Fire Underwriters, says the thefts are believed to have been traced to local persons.

It has been decided to allow these persons until one week from today to return the property and if this is not done steps will be taken toward prosecution.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gerry Snow 3d, who lived in an apartment on the first floor, were the chief losers, jewels valued at over $3,000 having been taken.

While the fire was in progress Mrs. Snow collected her jewels and after placing them in basket took them out on the lawn, where they disappeared while she had her back turned for a moment.

In addition a squirrel coat, valued at $750, belonging to Mrs. Snow, was taken from the apartment, also a Russian emerald necklace worth $270, and a gold top riding crop worth $50.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott P. Brush, who occupied apartments adjoining, also had numerous jewels stolen, valued at $2,000 or more.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Choule and Mrs. William Steinmetz also reported losses, and Henry Murphy, an artist, had numerous paintings and etchings stolen or damaged when they were distributed about the grounds. Household furniture and three radio sets were damaged by being hurled from the windows.

The building was erected in 1876. The fire loss was estimated at $75,000.

ASKS DEATH OF BOY WHO SLEW TEACHER

YOUTH IS PLACED IN CELL

Declares That the Shooting of New York Man Seems Like a Dream.

SEDALIA, Mo., Aug. 13 (AP).—The death penalty will be asked for Everett Adams, 17-year-old confessed slayer of A. R. Clawson, Lodi (N. Y.) school teacher, Roy Rucker, Pettis County Prosecutor, said he would recommend that the boy be sent to the gallows if he pleaded guilty.

The youth, with his father, Henry Adams, of Wilmington, Ohio, and Ben South, Chief of Police of Wilmington, arrived here today from Garden City, Kan. The youth kept his head lowered and seemed anxious to get away from the crowd. Tonight he is in the Pettis County Jail.

Upon their arrival here the elder Adams and South went into conference with Mr. Rucker. The youth may be sentenced to hang or to life imprisonment upon a plea of guilty. He may be tried in Criminal Court despite his age, and the Pardon Board could pardon a person given a life sentence.

Asked after the conference if the youth pleaded guilty Mr. South said:

"Not to first degree murder."

Mr. South indicated that young Adams would waive preliminary hearing set for tomorrow. The youth would be bound over to the October term of Circuit Court.

"Ordinarily," Mr. Rucker said, "I am not an advocate of capital punishment, but I have studied this case and I shall recommend it."

Everett, it was said tonight, may be taken tomorrow over the road on which the slaying occurred, to identify the scene of the crime.

At the inquest at Lamonte, near where Clawson's body was found yesterday in a ditch, the Coroner's Jury returned a verdict of "death by a gunshot wound at the hands of persons or person unknown."

Examination showed that a steel jacketed .25 calibre bullet penetrated the right side of the body and lodged between the ribs of the left side.

Everything seems like a dream, Adams said tonight as he sat in the jail.

"Suddenly, without thinking," the youth said, "I found the gun in my hand. Everything seems like a dream. I was standing there in the road, and before I knew what was happening I had shot him. I hadn't thought of it before. Then, suddenly, I realized what I had done. He was a nice fellow and I liked him. I don't know why I did it.

"When it dawned on me what I had done, there was one thing left for me to do—to get away from that highway and to get rid of him. I didn't drive far along the highway, about a half mile, I guess, then I turned down that little side road and threw him here in the ditch in the weeds."

FEAR MOTORIST WAS SLAIN.

Kansas Authorities Seek Grain Man After Finding Abandoned Car.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Aug. 13 (AP).—Fears that William Sangwin of Herington, Kan., had met a fate similar to that of A. R. Clawson, 35, motorist who was killed by a pedestrian he befriended, were expressed here late today as police began an investigation of Sangwin's disappearance. His touring car was found abandoned here Saturday night, without a license.

Sangwin left his home at Herington, where he is manager of the Farmers' Union elevator, Friday night. He was reported as in Wichita Sunday, but his automobile, its identification marks removed, was located here Saturday night.

The missing man was known to have cashed in some of his wheat and some securities shortly before he disappeared. Relatives say he was carrying a large amount of money.

make Congress supreme, with power to destroy every right of religious and civil liberty.

"In Wisconsin for the past five years we have had a so-called Progressive Administration. In the campaign about to begin we are going to ask the people of Wisconsin what that Administration has done for them, in what way their burdens of taxation have been lightened, in what way the circumstances of those not holding office have been bettered. We are going to ask those who have been allied with the present State Administration what part they have been permitted to take in determining who their standard bearers shall be, other than voting for the candidate selected for them in some secret meeting held in some back room.

"In recent years the progressive movement has become more and more one to elevate certain of its leaders to office and keep them there. Progressive Republicans were ordered to mark an X opposite the names handed to them, but they were never consulted as to what those names should be. They were told that such a conference or convention as this would be in violation of the primary law. This was for the sole purpose of depriving the rank and file of any participation in the choice of candidates.

"The triumvirate has decided that the welfare of the people demands that one of them, the heir-apparent to the throne, be elected to the Senate this year, another of them shall be elected to the Senate next year, and the third shall be elected Governor next year, and they expect that the voters of Wisconsin will carry out their orders. We shall see."

Roy P. Wilcox entered the politics of Wisconsin when he was elected to the State Senate from San Claire County.

In 1918 Mr. Wilcox became a candidate for Governor of Wisconsin on a "win-the-war" platform. In the Republican primaries he opposed Governor Phillip, who sought renomination on a platform opposing the war and the draft. Wilcox lost by fewer than 300 votes.

Mr. Wilcox ran in 1920 against James J. Blaine for the nomination for Governor, but again lost in a close race. There was a move to run him then as an independent candidate, but in the interest of harmony it was decided to keep him out of the contest in the hope that La Follette men would support Lenroot for Senator in exchange for conservative support of Blaine for Governor.

Mr. Wilcox is a lawyer and was recently elected President of the State Bar Association.

20,000 REBEL DRUSES REPORTED UNDER ARMS

Reinforcements Sent by Surrounding Tribes—French Bombs Destroy Eighty Villages.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 13.—The following account of events in Syria dated Aug. 11 has been received from a trustworthy source in Damascus:

After the defeat by the Druses, the French have refrained from sending further troops, but airplanes are bombing all groups of suspected rebels and are reported to have destroyed eighty of the 120 villages of the rebels. The Druses are stated to have 20,000 armed men. They have been reinforced by Arabs from north of Jebel and by Safah Arabs east of Jebel, the Ghiyas tribe and a number of Bedouins from Anazeh and the Ruwalla tribes.

Learning of the French bombing, the Arabs destroyed the bridge at El Kiswah, twenty miles from Damascus, and joined the rebels. The bombed Druses appealed for help to the Druse Sheik at Deraa, but the French arrested him, whereupon many loyal Druse leaders fled to Damascus and Beirut. The French at Damascus are arresting all arrivals from Hauran, hoping to suppress news of the rebellion there. There is an uneasy feeling at Damascus, and fears of a sudden outbreak. Penciled proclamations have been secretly distributed calling for revolt. The Government is taking precautions to preserve order Friday after mosque prayers.

COOLIDGE CONVINCED OF CARRYING COURT

publican Senators know of the platform declaration of 1924 on the World Court, and they know that Mr. Coolidge is a sticker for carrying out his pledges to the people. This plank on foreign relations reads: "The Republican Party reaffirms its stand for agreement among the nations to prevent war and preserve peace. As an immediate step in this direction we endorse the Permanent Court of International Justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge. This Government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligations under the Covenant of the League; on this we stand."

It was asserted here today that developments politically during the Summer and the trend economically had helped combine to strengthen the position of the party in States where close Senatorial contests are expected next year.

President Coolidge, it is declared, has cemented the Republican Party in Massachusetts, establishing harmony between the Lodge and Butler factions. While industrial conditions in Massachusetts are not good in the textile field, yet with the prestige of President Coolidge behind his Party Chairman in the 1924 campaign, Republican leaders profess not to be disturbed about Senator Butler's chances of election.

The contest among the Democrats in New York, with Governor Smith taking sides against a faction in his party, according to politicians here, is going to aid Senator Wadsworth. His election, regarded as doubtful before the Democratic discord, is now classed by them as certain.

Instead of losing strength in the Senate by reason of the 1926 elections, Administration advisers now estimate that the party will be stronger by the election of less radical Senators in Wisconsin and North Dakota, who will vote with the majority Republicans on most occasions.

The President, on the eve of his trip to Vermont to visit his father, is thus confident of the success of two of his policies—adherence to the World Court and reduction of taxes.

His third policy, which he believes will be carried out early next year, is another world conference here further to limit armament.

Reports coming to him are that the security compact will be agreed upon by late Fall and that the European nations will favor a disarmament conference in the new year.

Puts In Hour at Executive Office.

President Coolidge has some superstitions. Not unlike President Wilson, he likes to do things on the 13th of the month and on Friday. Today he looked at the big calendar in his study at White Court and 13 stood forth.

The President hastily ordered his car, to the surprise of the Secret Service men and drove to the Executive Offices in Lynn. This was his second visit. The other was on his birthday, July 4. He is expected to start for Plymouth on Friday.

While in the Executive Offices, where he spent an hour, he talked over the coal situation with Ralph Arnold, a consulting engineer of California, and local politics with Benjamin Loring Young, former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, who was his legislative colleague years ago.

After chatting over the telephone with some members of the Cabinet and working out the itinerary of his trip to Vermont, the President started back toward White Court to face a square filled with people as he entered his car in the heart of Lynn. The throng gave three cheers for "the President of the United States."

In his trip to Plymouth, which will take him away from the shore for four or five days, the President and Mrs. Coolidge will be accompanied by Major Cheney and Dr. Coupal. If the weather is fair the party will go by automobile, but if it is rainy the journey will be made by train.

Green H. Hackworth of the District of Columbia was appointed today Solicitor for the Department of State to succeed Charles C. Hyde, resigned.

Vermont Parley on Belgian Debt.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP).—Secretary Mellon and Senator Smoot of Utah are expected to confer with President Coolidge on the Belgian debt situation during his stay over the week-end in Plymouth, Vt. Both are members of the American commission which is negotiating a refunding settlement in Washington with the Belgian mission.

While little could be learned tonight as to the plans for the conference, it was understood that the Secretary and Senator Smoot desired to go over the situation with the President.

Indications tonight were that they would not await the Executive's return here next week but would journey to Plymouth to confer with him either on Saturday or Monday.

While it was understood that the Belgian debt negotiations would be the principal subject which they desired to discuss, a conference between them and the President would afford an opportunity for discussion of the tax reduction program of the Administration. Senator Smoot is Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which has jurisdiction over revenue legislation.

CONGRESS TO HEAR OF GERMAN APPEAL

Borah Plans to Press Bill for Return of Property Seized During War.

DATA NOW BEING PREPARED

Administration Officials Ask Audit—Envoy Told Berlin Must Await Legislative Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Baron Ago von Maltzan, the German Ambassador, has been informed that the question of the return of German property seized in the United States during the World War is entirely in the hands of Congress.

It became known today that this fact was called to his attention when he delivered the recent note from the Berlin Government asking for the return of the sequestrated property.

When the property was taken over, it was provided by the Alien Property act that it was to be held subject to the disposal of Congress.

It was said at the State Department today that the right of Congress to determine what disposition is to be made of it is not in the slightest degree impaired by the Treaty of Berlin, in which is incorporated the text of the Knox-Porter resolution declaring the state of war with Germany at an end. Administration officials hold to the view that the United States is free to dispose of this property as it sees fit.

The note delivered by the German Ambassador has not yet been studied by Secretary Kellogg, officials said today, but is now under study by legal and economic experts in the State Department and in due time will be answered.

While officials declined to comment on the contents of the note, they expressed the opinion today that the German Government is well aware of the fact that action lies wholly with Congress.

There is every indication that the question of the disposition to be made of the seized property will be brought prominently to the attention of Congress next Winter. Senator Borah, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who favors the return of this property on the ground that the United States should not confiscate the property of private individuals taken in wartime, is expected to lead a fight for its return.

Senator Borah is said to be prepared to urge the passage of a bill he has already introduced on the latter subject. When the measure was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee on Feb. 7, he said he considered the matter "extremely important, since the claim which is now made to the effect that arrangements have been made for the payment of American citizens, that we release this property and get rid of the alien property institution as a matter of self-respect just as rapidly as we can."

This was a reference to the arrangement for paying American claims out of Dawes's plan annuities. Senator Simmons asked Senator Borah whether there was anything in the Dawes plan, or in the agreement by which American claims were to be paid out of Dawes plan annuities, which committed the United States to the release to Germany of the alien property. Both Senators Borah and Smoot replied that there was no such commitment.

Administration officials have been formulating data to be used in the diplomatic exchanges with Germany and for consideration by Congress. The Alien Property Custodian has been requested by the Administration to make a more complete survey of the probable present value of the alien enemy property now under his control. He is now engaged in making an audit.

The seized German property consists of stocks and bonds, cash, real estate, mortgages and bills receivable. The cash now amounts to about $150,000,000. All the big factories seized have been disposed of and the real property now held is in the form of small individual holdings. The value of the securities fluctuates with the market.

About $30,000,000 has been parted with by the Custodian under the Wilson act, which authorized the return of all trusts not in excess of $10,000 and likewise the income up to $10,000 from trusts larger than $10,000.

JURY CONVICTS TWO IN PICKFORD 'PLOT'

Third Man Tried at Los Angeles for Conspiracy to Kidnap Is Acquitted.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13 (AP).—Claude Holcomb and C. Z. Stephens were convicted in Superior Court tonight of conspiring to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom.

A third defendant, Adrian Wood, was acquitted.

An attempt to wind up the arguments last night was frustrated when the illness of a juror forced adjournment.

Arguments in the trial which lasted more than two weeks were completed just before noon today. Superior Judge Victor McLucas adjourned the court until 2 o'clock, when he instructed the jury, which then retired for deliberation.

Neither of the convicted men showed any emotion when the verdict was read. They will be brought into court for sentence tomorrow, at which time the attorneys plan to present a motion for a new trial.

The jurors deliberated about six hours before signaling that they had reached an agreement.

MARINO IS ARRESTED IN TROLLEY MURDER

Admits Being Near Scene When Westchester Line Employes Were Shot Down.

TRACED BY FINGERPRINTS

Taken at Pistol's Point at Crowded Bronx Corner—Police Say He Did Shooting.

With pistols drawn because of the reputation of the man they sought as a desperate criminal, three detectives of the homicide squad yesterday captured John (Dopey) Marino, sought for more than three weeks as the murderer of a car inspector and a motorman in the holdup of a one-man trolley car in Mount Vernon on July 20.

The arrest took place at Southern Boulevard and 149th Street, the Bronx, and passing crowds were startled as the detectives, brandishing their weapons, seized Marino. He made no protest and was taken to Police Headquarters, where he was questioned for six hours by Captain Carey of the homicide squad and District Attorney Arthur Rowland of Westchester and his assistant, Walter A. Ferris.

The only admission the prisoner made, according to the police, was that he had been near the scene at the time of the holdup and murder. He maintained a stubborn silence to every question after making the admission.

Both the Mount Vernon police and the detectives of the homicide squad were said to be confident that they had caught the man who did the actual shooting. They said they hope through the capture to arrest at least another man accused of having taken part in the hold-up.

Identified by Fingerprints.

After the hold-up in which the two street car employes were shot down without warning, the robbers fled in an automobile belonging to the wife of Marino, which was later found wrecked. Fingerprints found on the car correspond with those of Marino, according to the police. Six passengers in the trolley car at the time of the shooting were to have appeared in an effort to identify Marino as the murderer, but when they failed to come to headquarters it was said that they would look him over in Mount Vernon this morning.

It had been originally intended to take the prisoner to Mount Vernon last night, but the prolonged questioning made a change in the plan necessary. Police officials expressed themselves as well satisfied with the change when they saw more than 1,500 persons gathered at Mount Vernon Police Headquarters to await the expected arrival of Marino. It was feared that because of the feeling the murder excited in the community trouble might have arisen if the prisoner had come while the crowd was assembled. The people left when they learned that Marino would be kept here for the night.

Marino, according to the police, is a drug addict. It was said that the brutality with which the two men on the car had been killed was explained by the fact that the shooting had evidently been done by a man who had just taken a dose of a narcotic. An empty hypodermic syringe was found near the scene after the murder.

The day after the shooting, the police said, Marino fled to Toledo and returned to this city, by way of Cleveland. District Attorney Rowland denied that he had been traced through a woman. Four women were arrested in connection with the case and one of these, Marion Mooney of 162 West Sixty-sixth Street, who was with Marino's wife, was arrested the day after the killing, was held without bail until yesterday morning, when she was released under $1,600 bond as a material witness. It had been rumored that she had been granted bail so that detectives might trail her to Marino.

Has a Long Criminal Record.

Marino, the police records show, has a criminal record dating back to 1907, when he was committed to the Catholic Protectory. He was sent to Elmira for two years on a burglary charge in 1910 and in 1912 was sentenced to five years in Sing Sing on a similar charge.

The hold-up and murder took place early in the morning on a trolley car proceeding from New Rochelle to Mount Vernon. One robber, believed to have been Marino, rode in the car while an accomplice or accomplices followed in the automobile. On the car was Inspector Jacob Schumacher of 21 South Fifth Avenue, Mount Vernon, who was taking $1,800 in small change—the collections of conductors—from New Rochelle to Mount Vernon.

In an isolated spot the robber in the car suddenly drew his pistol and fired at the motorman, Robert C. Nichols of Greenwich, Conn., who fell mortally wounded. He then shot the inspector, who dropped beside the bags of money. The robber, cowing the six passengers, seized the money and threw it into the automobile, which had been driven alongside the car. He then jumped into the automobile and was driven off. The inspector died two hours after the hold-up and the motorman the next day.

The last words of the inspector were, "He never gave me a chance."

When the robbers' automobile broke down they were able to carry away only $200 of the loot because of the weight of the coins.

The detectives who made the arrest were Thomas Martin and Stephen Donahue, who captured Morris Diamond, one of the West End Bank messenger murderers, and Joseph Panevino. Inspector John D. Coughlin praised all three for their work.

Rewards aggregating $7,100 were offered for the capture of the murderer. If Marino is convicted and the three detectives receive the reward, they will have to turn over one-half of it to the Police Pension Fund, under the rules of the department.

Marino's address is 210 East 114th Street. He is 33 years old.

GANG LEADER IS HELD IN CACCHIO MURDER

Bronx Prosecutor Arrests Diamond—Compels Club to Unbar Iron Door.

Joseph Diamond, who the police say is the leader of the gang known as the "Diamond Mob," which has been making trouble on the lower west side of Manhattan recently, was held without bail in the Bronx Homicide Court yesterday morning charged with complicity in the death of Michael Cacchio, whose body was found in the Harlem River ten days ago.

Diamond was arrested by District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx, with the aid of Detectives Duane and Sullivan of the Alexander Avenue Station, in a club which Mr. McGeehan regards with suspicion after having seen the interior of it, at 376 East 149th Street. Mr. McGeehan was returning from an investigation of a hold-up at Starlight Park, when he stopped at the police station and found that the detectives were looking for Diamond, but that they had been refused admittance to the club.

"Come with me," said Mr. McGeehan. When he reached the barred door he demanded admittance and after some argument was permitted to enter. He went upstairs and found an iron door, effectually barred. He was told that he could not come in, but when he threatened to break the door down, it was opened and Diamond was found sitting at a table, reading letters. He was arrested and taken back to the police station.

Diamond denied all knowledge of Cacchio's murder. He has been arrested seven times and has served a term in the reformatory, according to police records. He has also been suspected of knowing a good deal about the operations of truck robbers who have been working in various parts of the city for several months.

"I don't want any one like him in the Bronx," said Mr. McGeehan, "and the reason I went with the detectives was because I wanted to get him outside our lines. Even Commissioner Enright has given the Bronx an unusually clean bill of health and we want to keep it so. I will break into any place if I think I can rid the Bronx of these undesirable persons, and that goes from now on. They can't even be killed in my county if I can keep them outside."

AUTO DIVES 50 FEET DOWN EMBANKMENT

Nuns and Priest Wade Through Weeds to Help Two Occupants Who Are Badly Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

KEARNY, N. J., Aug. 13.—John Mulholland, 28 years old, of 74 Orchard Street, Newark, and Andrew Elliot, 26 years old, of 156 Chestnut Street, Kearny, were injured today, when the car in which they were riding skidded on the wet pavement in North Midland Avenue, Arlington, and went down an embankment over the Passaic River. After plunging fifty feet the car hit a tree, which stopped it, preventing it from falling 200 feet to the river.

Two nuns and a priest of the Sacred Heart Orphanage for Girls saw the accident and rushed to the help of the men, wading through waist-high weeds to get to them. The men were taken to the West Hudson Hospital, where it was said that Mulholland was suffering from severe bruises and possible broken bones. Elliot was discharged from the hospital after slight contusions had been treated.

Injuries received from an automobile which ran her down Wednesday night in front of her home at 617 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken, proved fatal yesterday to Grace Murphy, 6 years old. She died of a fractured skull in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken. Charles Sibes, of 11 Oakwood Terrace, Weehawken, driver of the machine, was held on a technical charge of homicide.

John F. Kane, 60 years old, a chemist, of Hollis, L. I., was struck last night at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-second Street by a Fifth Avenue bus which the police said turned northward into Fifth Avenue in violation of traffic signals. Mr. Kane was taken to Bellevue Hospital suffering with a compound fracture of the left leg. Thomas J. Kyne of 158 Mott Street, driver of the bus, was arrested charged with assault.

UPHOLDS A THIRSTY PUPPY.

Court Rules on What Constitutes Park Drinking—Frees Mistress.

Mrs. Vivian Mende of 27 East Seventy-eighth Street was summoned to the Yorkville Court yesterday by Patrolman James J. Flynn for ignoring the policeman's warning not to let her Pomeranian puppy drink from a public drinking fountain in Central Park.

"But, you see," protested Mrs. Mende to Magistrate Simpson, "my Pom drinks no water. Indeed, he drinks only milk from a bottle, and I merely held his mouth against the stream in the fountain, hoping a drop or two might be swallowed."

Magistrate Simpson held that if the dog's mouth did not touch the metal of the fountain no misdemeanor was committed, and Mrs. Mende was discharged.

NO ALIMONY RECEIVERSHIP.

Court Denies Mrs. Robert's Plea to Sequester Silk Man's Assets.

Supreme Court Justice Donohue denied yesterday an application by Mrs. Garnett May Roberts for the appointment of a receiver of the property of Walter Scott Roberts, silk merchant, from whom she obtained a separation on June 30 with an allowance of $1,000 a month. Mrs. Roberts contends that the terms of the decree have not been carried out and that the property of her husband should be sequestered so that her alimony can be collected from assets which she asserts actually belong to her husband but are held by others.

Justice Donohue decided that the evidence she offered was not sufficient to grant the relief sought, but he directed Roberts to pay all arrears of alimony at the rate of $500 a month and to give a $5,000 bond to secure future payments.

Pola Negri Redeems Gems Seized by Customs; Pays $47,000 Valuation and Fine of $10,000

Pola Negri, screen actress, through her attorney, William M. Chadbourne, deposited $57,000 with the Customs authorities yesterday afternoon in full payment of the fines, penalties and duties imposed on undeclared jewelry which was seized on May 2, when the actress arrived here from Europe on the Cunard liner Berengaria. This finally disposed of the case.

The settlement is said to have been the third largest amount paid by an individual to the Customs authorities to recover seized jewelry. The domestic value of the gems was estimated at $47,000, and the additional $10,000 represented fines and penalties levied by Philip Elting, Collector of the Port of New York.

The jewels consisted of four diamond bracelets, a twelve-carat emerald ring, a ninety-six carat unset emerald, said once to have been the property of a King of Prussia, and a thirty-carat ring.

The jewelry was turned over to Mr. Chadbourne after payment of the $57,000. The actress is in Hollywood.

SCOTT'S GAMBLING DEFENDED IN PLEA

Counsel Says He Had to Play Poker With Cannon and Fordney to Gain Favor.

ASKS DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY

Wife's Lawyer Charges Representative Is Equally Guilty and Not Entitled to Relief.

Special to The New York Times.

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 13.—Admitting that there was no proof of infidelity on the part of Mrs. Edna James Scott, and pointing out that no such charge had been made, I. S. Canfield, counsel for Representative Scott, presented arguments in his divorce suit this afternoon, urging that Mr. Scott receive a decree on the ground of extreme cruelty.

Ward H. Peck, in his argument for Mrs. Scott, contesting the suit on a cross-bill in which she asked for the decree, attacked the Representative, declaring he had come into court guilty of the same conduct he had charged against his wife, and citing the law in an attempt to show that under such conditions he was not entitled to relief.

The case was submitted to the court and Judge Frank Emerick is expected to hand down a decision within a month, after briefs clearing up some of the disputed points have been filed.

Mr. Canfield, in his review of the troubles in the Scott family and Mrs. Scott's cross-bill, in which she charged her husband with excessive gambling and drinking, said that Mr. Scott, in order to serve his constituents and gain the support and advice of Congressional leaders, was practically compelled to become a "playmate" of Joseph Cannon and Representative Fordney of Saginaw when the latter was head of the Ways and Means Committee.

Gambling and Drinking for Favor.

"These two played poker," he said. "It is no secret that Cannon and Fordney like a little game and they associated only with men who showed sporting blood. The Congressman who is a penny-pincher and tries to save his salary does not train with the leaders of Congress, and does not get far with his constituents.

"It was because of this that Scott got to playing poker and did what little drinking he may have done. It was a matter of business.

"Mrs. Scott appreciated this before the trouble arose. At least she helped him, went to parties with him; served and drank the liquor he bought. She has no right to come in here and plead actions in which she participated as cruelty on the part of her husband."

Mr. Canfield attacked Mrs. Scott's actions as indecent, indiscreet and ill-advised—calculated to destroy the happiness of her husband and break up their home.

Miss Volstead on Panama Voyage.

Mr. Scott was on the stand at the morning session for cross-examination. Among other things he informed the Court that Laura Volstead, daughter of the author of the national prohibition law, was on the steamer Cristobal during the trip to Panama and return, which, according to the evidence was a drinking orgy and ended in the running of a truck load of liquor into the United States.

"I want to say that Miss Volstead did not do any drinking on the trip and that neither she nor her father has ever taken a drink as far as I know," said Mr. Scott.

Jane Kennedy was put on the stand to rebut the deposition of Floren Dallaw, Mr. Scott's Filipino servant, that he saw her at Mr. Scott's office in Washington under questionable circumstances. She entered a simple denial.

Mrs. Scott was on the stand for a few minutes to rebut allegations of Mr. Scott that her friend, Mrs. Margaret Hamilton, was not a fit or desirable companion for his wife. Her reply was that Mr. Scott had given a dinner at the home at which Mrs. Hamilton was guest of honor.

Mr. Peck's plea closed the hearing. He wound up his case by declaring that Scott's "hands were unclean"; that he had publicly scandalized his wife's name by publicity given to his charges against her; that if she had been guilty of excessive drinking Mr. Scott had bought the liquor, was a participant in her errors, and therefore that his demand for a decree should be denied.

He asked that Mrs. Scott be allowed additional alimony, which the Court refused.

HURT AT B. M. T. OUTING.

Conductor in Fracas With One of Crew of Excursion Boat.

William O'Keefe, a conductor on the Fourth Avenue division of the B.-M. T. subway, and a representative of the Conductors' Association, went to the Long Island College Hospital with a fractured skull, and Charles Davis, a negro member of the crew of the excursion boat Mobjack, was locked up at Brooklyn police headquarters charged with felonious assault, following a fracas on the boat yesterday.

More than 600 employes of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company and their families were returning from a day's excursion to Keansburg, N. J., when the trouble started. The Mobjack docked at Pier 3 at the foot of Fulton Street and friends of O'Keefe, who said that Davis had struck him over the head with a spanner, called the police. Further trouble developed at the pier when other members of the crew tried to prevent the policemen from coming aboard. Additional patrolmen were sent to the dock and the negro was found hiding in the coal bunkers.

Patrolman's Wife Drinks Poison.

Mrs. Peter Dove, wife of a motorcycle patrolman, who lies in Roosevelt Hospital suffering from injuries he received on duty five months ago, drank lysol last night at her home, 275 West 145th Street. First aid treatment saved her. The Doves have four children. Mrs. Dove said she took the poison by mistake in the dark.

ROCKEFELLER TALKS SHOP WITH DRIVERS

Oil King, Lost on Country Road, Discusses Business With Tank Wagon Chauffeurs.

HANDS OUT HIS NEW DIMES

Gets Road Directions From Truckmen and Asks About Their Families.

Special to The New York Times.

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Aug. 13.—Harold Riley, who was driving a big Standard Oil tank truck, stopped yesterday as he rounded a turn on the hilly road between Riverdale and Bloomingdale as he saw a gasoline truck of the Tide Water Oil Company approaching. Charley Stout of Dundee Lakes was driving it.

"Leave any business for me?" asked Charley coming to a stop.

"I pretty well oiled up the whole country," said the Standard Oil man.

They had talked oil for a minute or two from their seats when a costly closed car coming from Riverdale stopped between them. A door opened and an aged man in a gray cap and a gray duster stepped briskly out on the road.

"We're lost, boys," he said to the two drivers. Then, addressing himself to the driver of the red Standard Oil truck, he asked. "Can you tell me the way back to the Oakland-Suffern Road?"

"Go back to Riverdale and take the right turn, Mr. Rockefeller," said Riley.

"You recognize me, eh?" said the oil man delightedly.

"I certainly do," said Riley.

Shakes Hands With Driver.

The aged founder of the company extended a hand and Riley jumped down and shook it.

"Glad to meet any oil man," said Mr. Rockefeller, shaking hands with Stout, who had jumped down from his seat on the rival truck to shake hands with the oil king. "Always glad to meet a man in the oil business, but, of course (shaking the Standard Oil driver's hand again), the Standard Oil is my first love."

Mr. Rockefeller made a gesture to those in his car to indicate that he had got the right directions and would be with them in a minute.

"Just a minute, boys," he said to the drivers. "Now, Riley, that's for you."

He gave the Standard Oil driver one of his famous bright, fresh-minted dimes.

"Now, Riley, are you married?"

"Yes, sir."

"Any children?"

"No, sir, I've only been married a year."

Dime for Mrs. Riley, Too.

Mr. Rockefeller looked disappointed, but pressed another of the very best dimes in Riley's palm and said, "That's for Mrs. Riley, with my compliments."

"Mr. Stout, are you married?" asked the oil king.

"Yes, sir, and I have one child."

Very much pleased, Mr. Rockefeller counted out three dimes and gave them to Stout.

They talked oil for a minute or two, then wished each other good luck, and climbed aboard their respective vehicles. Mr. Rockefeller was on his way from a visit to his niece, Mrs. Marcellus Hartley Dodge, at Madison, N. J., to Pocantico Hills. His chauffeur had made a wrong turn at Riverdale.

ROBBERS IN ILLINOIS GET REGISTERED MAIL

Lone Man Awes Kewanee Messenger—Four Hold-Up Truck at Peoria Railway Station.

KEWANEE, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP).—A man about 25 years old held up a mail messenger here today and escaped with a registered mail pouch.

Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train No. 9, en route to Denver, arrived here at 1:28 P. M. and the mail messenger had just loaded the pouch into his truck when the young man, flourishing a pistol, confronted him and ordered him to drive west.

After driving about half a mile out of the city the robber ordered the truck stopped, took the pouch, leaped into another automobile and drove away. The messenger was unable to see whether a companion was in the car in which the robber escaped.

Postoffice officials here were uninformed as to the contents of the registered pouch, but said that it usually contained valuable shipments.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 13 (AP).—Four men, heavily armed, held up the mail truck which had just been loaded with mail from the Chicago-bound Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train at 12:38 today and escaped with an unestimated amount of registered mail. The robbery occurred at the station just as the train pulled out.

$3,000,000 Building Contracts Are Tied Up by Laborers' Action.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 13.—About 500 building laborers this morning responded to the call to begin a general strike which was ordered by the builders' unions because building contractors refused to grant an increase from 65 to 75 cents an hour for plain laborers and to promise to employ only union men. Building contracts valued at $3,000,000 are involved in the strike. The largest contract is on the Augusta Troup Junior city high school.

The new Yale dormitory, the Roger Sherman Building on College Street and the Security Insurance Company on Whitney Avenue are also completely tied up. A separate contract will prevent bricklayers from joining the strike, and non-union employes were today engaged to complete most of the carpenter jobs.

Police Get Circulars Offering 'Wishing Dust' and Lucky Charms to Negroes at $1 to $1,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 13.—Twelve thousand circulars said to have been sent to this city by a New York voodoo doctor were seized by the police here today as they were being distributed to negro homes on the north side by six negro boys.

The circulars bore the address of D. Alexander of 99 Downing Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

All sorts of love powders, wishing dust, lucky charms and incantations are offered for sale on the circular, with prices ranging from $1 to $1,000.

"Guffer Dust, New Moon, No. 1 good, $50; Happy Dust, $40; Black Cats Ankle Dust, $500; Black Cat's Wishbone, $1,000; King Solomon's Marrow, $1,000; Easy Life Powder, $100; Tying Down Goods, $50; Chasing Away Goods, $50; Boss Fix Powders, $15, and Buzzard Nest, $100," were some of the goods offered.

Inquiry developed that "Bringing Back Powders" were designed to return an errant wife or husband to a grieving spouse, "Tying Down Goods" were said to keep the object of one's affections from departing, while "Chasing Away Goods" had the opposite effect. "Boss Fix Powders" keep one's employer in a friendly mood.

At 99 Downing Street, Brooklyn, a three-story frame building, the name "D. Alexander" was on the windows of a locked store in the basement. Bottles of fluids and powders were displayed there. Persons in the house above professed ignorance of the basement's occupant.

CURRAN'S CRITICISMS DRAW OFFICIAL FIRE

He Admits Responsibility for Statements and Is Unperturbed by 'Discipline' Threat.

Henry H. Curran, Immigration Commissioner at Ellis Island, who recently criticized the Labor Department for permitting the experiment of examining emigrants from Great Britain abroad and admitting them into the United States without an examination at Ellis Island, appeared unperturbed yesterday by reports from Washington that he was to be "disciplined" for his utterances. He admitted he had received a telegram from Harry E. Hill, Commissioner General of Immigration, asking him if he were responsible for the statements, and he said he had replied that he was.

"I don't know what they have in mind except hard words," he said, discussing the report of the intended discipline. "I am accustomed to hard words. Since when is it lèse-majesté to express an opinion on immigration matters?"

Mr. Curran insisted again that British immigrants should be examined here to avoid bringing in contagious diseases.

"The immigrants of all other nationalities come to Ellis Island for examination, and properly so," he said. "It should be remembered that after the British immigrant has been inspected abroad by the consulate he is allowed a period of four months before embarking for the United States, and, of course, any disease or other defects may develop after his inspection at the consulate.

"The only safe way to protect our country is to examine immigrants thoroughly at Ellis Island."

SHINNECOCK INDIAN JAILED.

One of Few Fullbloods on Long Island Gets Term for Wifebeating.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 13.—Seymour Eleazer, one of the few full-blood Indians left on Long Island, was sentenced to six months in the County Jail today for beating and otherwise mistreating his wife, Annie, at their shack on the Hill Street Indian Reservation last night.

Three weeks ago Eleazer received a suspended sentence for attacking one of his children with a razor. Last night he came home from a party in a drunken rage, threw his wife to the floor, beat her and then forced her to spend the night in a field outside their home, and on his wife's complaint was arrested.

Eleazer's ancestors, who belonged to the Shinnecock tribe, inhabited Southampton before the first Englishmen landed in 1640. His father, Gilbert Eleazer, was well known on the Hill Street Reservation, but is said to have spent forty years out of sixty in prison. One of his offenses was homicide, for which he was sent to Sing Sing for twenty years.

SAY TAXI MEN SPOIL SLEEP.

Brooklyn Residents Ask Court to Stop Use of Street for Repairs.

Application for an injunction restraining the Yellow Taxi Corporation from permitting employes of its garage on Crown Street between Bedford and Franklin Avenues, Brooklyn, to park and repair cabs along the highway was heard yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Dike in Brooklyn. Michael Mingino of 105 Crown Street, representing other residents of the neighborhood, said that the company's drivers and mechanics made sleep impossible for the plaintiffs between midnight and 8 A. M. Grinding brakes, blowing horns and offensive language were among the nuisances cited in the complaint.

The management, it was alleged, has made no effort to remedy conditions, and the Board of Health and the Police Department had likewise failed to take action. The corporation denied the charges.

Justice Dike reserved decision, remarking, however, that the plaintiffs apparently had ground for complaint.

Indian Betters Record in Official Test on Kansas-Missouri Road.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 13 (AP).—More than two bricks a second is the record of James G. Brown, Oneida Indian bricklayer, working on the Kansas City-Olathe Kansas Highway. Brown's speed was determined in official tests yesterday.

On the first test Brown laid a strip four bricks wide, 84 bricks in all, in 36 seconds, considerably more than two a second. He then laid 987 bricks at an average of two a second.

In eight and a half hours the Indian placed 1,187 feet of roadway, 73,815 bricks. This is more than two a second. He receives $2 an hour, compared with a maximum of $1 paid other bricklayers.

BROWNING HOPEFUL; MARY TAKES A REST

"Cinderella's" Ex-Foster Father Sees Vindication of Any Unworthy Motives.

TWO $500 CHECKS MISSING

Parents of Girl Say They Have Lost Gifts Received From Real Estate Man.

Edward W. Browning gave out a long statement yesterday, two days after the abrogation of his adoption of Mary Spas, the Bohemian girl of Astoria, L. I., in which he expressed belief in the ultimate and complete vindication of himself of any unworthy motives or conduct in the adoption.

He also declared that he could not believe that Mary could think or say the things that were attributed to her, referring to the series of newspaper articles purporting to be written by her and published with her knowledge and authority.

Conspicuous in the statement was the qualified promise of a bright future for the girl and the realization of "her more serious aims in life."

"It is probable that when the hysteria and depression of the moment have cleared away," the statement says, "Mary's natural optimistic nature will reassert itself, and that with the assistance of her friends and family, she will not be disappointed in attaining her legitimate aims in life.

"Although I was for a time resentful of the attention attracted to me and to Mary Spas by the officials," the statement continued, "I now look back with a deep sense of gratitude for Commissioner Coler and District Attorney Newcombe that the result of their activities was all that could be desired and highly beneficial to me."

Then the statement sets forth that the representations made to Mr. Browning and the investigations made at his instance, prior to the adoption of the girl, made him think that she was an exceptionally available subject for adoption and for the opportunities he hoped to offer her.

The statement then touches on the articles published in a New York newspaper as purporting to have been written by Mary after the girl had been tempted from the home of Mr. Browning's friends by the offer of $500 for an immediate statement for publication by a man representing himself as a reporter for this newspaper, and his promise of a brilliant career in the movies and on the stage on a "fifty-fifty basis."

Of these articles Mr. Browning says in his statement:

"I was, of course, amazed, at the same time realizing that the context of the statements and writing I have seen her make did not correspond with the words and phrases used by her in her many conversations with me and every one else she had met and spoken to, and were totally foreign to her thoughts and education. I cannot and do not believe that she could think or say the things that were attributed to her.

"When I met Mary and her mother and father in the Surrogate's Court in Queens, I heard from their own lips, in the presence of innumerable witnesses, that the alleged newspaper man with whom she went induced from her a statement which was entirely inconsistent with everything that she had said or had done previous thereto. The newspaper in question will be called upon to account for the articles published by it in a libel action that I am contemplating bringing."

In conclusion Mr. Browning says he cheerfully submits himself to the judgment of those who see the "bright, cheerful, the normal side of life," adding that to the pessimist, or to "those morbid people who prefer to cast a shadow by their inherently suspicious nature upon all the transactions of life, I have not a word to say. I thank the thousands who have already expressed to me in letters and message their kind sympathy and consolation."

Mary from her home yesterday issued the following statement:

To the public:

I don't consider there is anything for Mr. Browning to forgive. If there is any forgiveness in this affair I am the one to display it. And as for my "Cinderella" dreams I have none. All I want is rest and quiet. I want my name cleared. I want to work like I always did before he got me. That's all.

Mary told the reporter that she had lost twenty-eight pounds in weight since the adoption episode began. She said she did not want money, and did not intend to accept any offers from theatrical agents.

Mrs. Spas said that the checks for $500 each, which Mr. Browning gave her and her husband as a present following the formal adoption of Mary, had been lost, and that despite their search through the house for the last three days, the checks could not be found.

Francis C. Dale, attorney for Mr. Browning, denied statements attributed to him in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES, quoting him as saying that Mary Spas possessed a mysterious power not unlike hypnotic influence and other matters of similar character.

"There is nothing so far as I know out of the ordinary about the young lady, temperamentally or otherwise," said Mr. Dale. "The only statement that I have at any time made upon this subject was that Mary Spas, judged by her appearance, would easily pass for 16 years of age, and this has been confirmed by numerous public officials who saw her in connection with this case."

OBJECTS TO FAIR PLAN.

Lord's Day Alliance Wants No Sunday Program at Syracuse.

The Executive Committee of the Lord's Day Alliance of New York State will meet today at Lake Chautauqua to protest against the holding of a Sunday program at the State Fair at Syracuse on Sept. 13, at which admission will be charged, it was announced yesterday. A. W. Brooks, Educational Secretary of the organization, said that the action would be augmented by protests from Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn and other clergymen.

"In our opinion the plan is a violation of Article 192 of the Penal law," said Mr Brooks. "If this plan is carried out the alliance will seek an adjustment of the matter throug hthe proper court."

Bathtub Flood Damage $10,000.

Some one in the apartment of Philip Singer, on the first floor at 734 Washington Street, forgot he had started the water to fill the bathtub yesterday and let it run for several hours, with the result that pianos and phonographs in the Lauter Piano Company were damaged to the extent of $10,000. The manager of the store returned after dinner and had to wade through two inches of water which had flooded his store and damaged his stock and instruments in the basement.

NEW DIFFICULTIES BALK ETAH FLIERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Floating ice which nearly demolished one of the three planes in the party, and bad weather which halted a scheduled flight to the western end of Beitstad Fjord to establish an aerial sub-base, have acted as hindrances to the progress of the MacMillan Arctic expedition in its plans to push from Etah.

Disaster to one of the navy planes was narrowly averted last night when an iceberg drifted rapidly down upon the NA-1, according to a radio message from Commander MacMillan, picked up today by the Naval Research Laboratory at Bellevue for the National Geographic Society.

"Wind blowing hard from the north," the message read, "but with clearing weather. Small iceberg driven by wind and tide constantly threatened the planes. One berg an hour ago threatened to demolish one plane. It narrowly missed the NA-2, which was tied to the stern of the Bowdoin, and drifted swiftly down upon the NA-1. Quick and efficient work by Williams and Reinartz of the Bowdoin crew, later assisted by Bennett and Sorensen of the navy, averted what looked like at least a badly damaged plane, and possibly a complete loss.

"All quiet at present, but more bergs expected when tide changes. Planes plan to leave today for Flagler Bay to put in a cache of fuel oil."

Other messages from Commander MacMillan at Etah received by the Geographic Society during the last twenty-four hours indicate that science, despite the fact that this expedition is one of the best equipped ever sent north, has not yet solved for the Arctic explorer all the difficulties of the past, and the pilots have been experiencing handicaps which never thwarted explorers who relied solely upon the sledge and the Eskimo dog team.

It had been the intention of the aviators to start at 9 o'clock Tuesday night for Beitstad Fjord (misspelled Bettstad in the original message), but today's dispatch indicated that weather conditions had prevented this flight.

The tail end of the long message of Aug. 11 from Commander Byrd, who told of the second aerial reconnaissance flight, reached the Navy Department at 6:03 this morning. It read:

"(Missing word) will leave there food, cooking utensils, primus stove, rifle and ammunition, gasoline and oil. Personnel will be the same as first flight this morning (Aug. 11), except that Commander MacDonald will go in NA-3 instead of Nold and Rocheville in NA-2, instead of MacMillan. Distances are given in statute miles."

This delayed paragraph of the original message refers to the contemplated flight to establish the sub-base.

Winter Due in 17 Days.

Winter is due in the Etah section about Sept. 1, and if the expedition is to carry out its original plan of slipping away from Etah about the first week of September to avoid being locked in the ice-pack and to return to the United States this Fall the time is growing short in which the aviators may lay down their intermediate bases, their advanced air base at Cape Thomas Hubbard, and from that point fly in the direction of the assumed "Unknown Continent," an unexplored area of 1,000,000 square miles.

With only about seventeen days of flying time left, officials of the National Geographic Society have been advised that Commander MacMillan and the naval personnel, under Lieut. Commander Byrd, are becoming impatient, while fogs and low-hanging clouds, elements most dreaded by the airmen, obscure the territory where they had hoped to establish a suitable landing field.

"One of the chief disappointments experienced by the expedition," it was stated by the Geographic Society this evening, "has been the inability to find a beach in the vicinity of the ship's base at Etah from which the planes could take-off. If such a beach were available, each plane, with an extra gasoline tank, two pilots, navigation equipment, rifle and ammunition and one and a half months' supply of food on board for emergencies, would be capable of making 1,000 miles. But with the same equipment aboard, the planes, when taking off from the water, must reduce their fuel load to the point where only 700 miles of flight is possible."

It is this reduced cruising radius, necessitated by the fact that the naval aviators are compelled to "take off" from the harbor of Etah, instead of from the shore, that makes it essential that an intermediate base shall be established between Etah and Cape Thomas Hubbard, on the tip of the northernmost known land of Axel Heiberg.

Ten Flights to Stock Base.

Commander MacMillan in a radio this morning stated that it would be necessary to make ten flights over the high peaks of Ellesmere Island, some of them more than 7,300 feet, in order to lay down sufficient fuel to make a temporary base worth while. The most favorable location found thus far, Beitstad Fjord, is a small inlet running in a westerly direction from Hayes Fjord, which empties into Buchanan Bay. This is on the eastern side of Ellesmere Land and east of the many mountain peaks which the navy fliers must cross before they can reach Cape Thomas Hubbard. To the south of Beitstad Fjord is an elevated peninsula known as Alpland, and to the north is the long tongue known as Knud Peninsula, which separates Hayes Fjord from Flagler Fjord in latitude 79 degrees.

Commander Byrd, in a radio message to the Navy Department, stated that both Commander MacMillan and Aerographer Francis of the naval unit have advised strongly against making a flight to Beitstad Fjord with a view to landing until the snow clouds and the fogs lift from the ground and the mountains, and this is taken to explain why the scheduled flight of Tuesday night was not attempted. The Navy Department and Geographic Society have been advised that fog is at present covering the valleys, while snow is also falling.

Plan Three Trips Into "Unknown."

Cape Thomas Hubbard is now estimated to be nearer 300 miles than 270 from Etah and the round trip would accordingly be 600 miles. Since the water take-off limits the planes to a 700-mile flight, they would have very little safety margin and spare fuel on a 600-mile round trip flight from Etah to Cape Thomas Hubbard.

For this reason the intermediate base or bases become highly important. The original plan contemplated at least three flights by the planes from Cape Thomas Hubbard over the polar area.

However, if the aviators succeed in the next two weeks in laying down not only the intermediate but also the main advance base at Cape Thomas Hubbard, and in the first flight over the polar sea should discover land and find it suitable for a base, they will use that as a base for two flights of exploration over the discovered territory.

Should they not find land in three flights from Cape Thomas Hubbard they will be compelled to return to Etah and aerial exploration must be abandoned.

"Safety first" concerning weather and risks is the rigid rule under which the naval fliers are operating under explicit orders from Secretary Wilbur.

ESKIMOS HEARD BY RADIO.

Chicago Gets Native Songs of Quartet With MacMillan.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP).—Eskimos in Etah, Greenland, last night gave a musical program by radio which was relayed from Arlington Heights, a suburb, into Chicago by telephone and distinctly heard in the Chicago office of The Associated Press.

The Eskimo program was broadcast on a forty-meter wave length from Station WAP, aboard the Peary, ship of the MacMillan expedition at Etah. It was received by Station 9-XN of the Zenith Radio Corporation.

Through head phones at 9XN the program was transmitted by telephone to the Chicago listeners. The reception was so clear that arrangements were made immediately to broadcast the rest of the program to radio listeners throughout the country by rebroadcasting at 2 A. M., Eastern Time, on a higher wave length through Station WJAZ.

A phonograph selection came through clearly while listeners here were informed that the Eskimo quartet, Imyou-Getook, Kangak, Nu-Kapingwa and Ah-Kom-oing-wa, had rendered the "Song of Snow Bunting," "Song of the Raven" and "Song of the Fox."

The voices were distinct, but no one ventured an opinion on the enunciation.

sentiment. Even before her departure for schooling in Europe she had revealed a deep interest in Turkish problems, especially as they might affect women, and on the first evening of Mustapha Kemal Pasha at her father's house the two of them sat alone—the Turkish idol telling of his hopes for his native land, and the girl drinking in his story and occasionally interjecting her own ideas.

"These conversations," she disclosed later, "continued for four days and on the fifth evening I was surprised when our great General told me in a very matter of fact way that, having a Western education, he thought I would make a fitting partner for him, and before I realized what I was doing I had accepted the offer in a real unsentimental, matter-of-fact spirit."

The engagement met with the approval of her father and, according to report, he arranged a marriage dowry of 1,000,000 Turkish lire, a sum, at the then current exchange, representing about $650,000. The engagement, upsetting all of the well established Turkish customs, was followed by a marriage just as novel.

A party celebrating the recapture of Smyrna was in progress at the home of Mouamerou-Chaki Bey. About fifty guests were there. According to Latife Hanoum's account of it, she was in the kitchen supervising the feast. Mustapha Kemal Pasha asked to see her. He suggested that they utilize the occasion to get married. Taken aback, the girl, however, consented. The father was willing and one of the guests, an official corresponding to the English registrar, performed the ceremony. Latife Hanoum said that she believed she was the first Turkish bride to be married in the presence of her husband, the old time custom providing for proxies to answer the necessary questions.

When she appeared at Angora, the seat of her husband's Government, the bride created a sensation. Dainty and charming, she won approval right and left. She accompanied her husband everywhere; even going to the war front with him. She was quick to use her charm and her position to further her reforms for women. She was proposed as a Turkish Deputy to the National Assembly when women in Constantinople were aroused over the defeat of Deputy Salih Effendi's bill to make marriage obligatory. She never contested for the place, however.

Several months after her marriage Latife Hanoum caused Mustapha Kemal Pasha to break two Turkish rules of conduct for women. When a banquet was tendered to him at Konia, he asked that women be invited. It was the first time that the sexes had sat down together at an official Turkish function, and also the first time that approval had been extended to Turkish women venturing forth after the Mohammedan sunset call to prayer.

There was considerable comment forthcoming on the innovation, but in the main the reaction was favorable.

"My husband and myself," she told an American correspondent who interviewed her in February, 1923, a month after her marriage, "are in perfect accord on the question of woman's sphere, as we are on all political questions."

SAYS SOVIET GAINS POWER IN TURKEY

Senator King of Utah Found Angora Regime Looking to Moscow and Western World.

GERMANS GETTING TRADE

Treaty of Lausanne Not Being Complied With, He Asserts—Doubts Value of Closer Relations for Us.

BERLIN, Aug. 13 (AP).—Germany appears to be regaining her former position in trade with Turkey faster than with other powers, and the Soviet Government of Russia is a factor that must be reckoned with by any power or government dealing with Turkey, Senator William H. King of Utah said today on his arrival here after a tour of the Balkan States, Turkey, Syria and Palestine. Senator King was one of the irreconcilables who opposed the Turkish American treaty for the re-establishment of diplomatic relations between Turkey and the United States. He is in Berlin for a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Carl Fisher, wife of a secretary of the American Embassy here.

While Senator King said he had not yet made up his mind as to his future attitude toward the Turkish treaty, his careful study of the situation in Angora, Constantinople, Konia and Smyrna have persuaded him that the courts of law established by the Turkish Government, under the provisions of the Lausanne treaty, are similar to the Cheka courts in Russia and that the terms of the treaty are not being complied with in many other ways. For these reasons, Senator King said, it is an open question whether treaty relations with the Turkish Government under Mustapha Kemal Pasha would be of much value.

Senator King said that it was evident that all of the legations must move from Constantinople to Angora and remain there, as Mustapha Kemal's Government had abandoned Constantinople as definitely as the Soviet Government has abandoned Leningrad. While Angora is a primitive and medieval city without modern conveniences, Senator King said that the nations which wished to deal with the Kemalists must imitate the Russians and Germans and locate their embassies and legations there.

Soviet Russia has a permanent legation building in Angora, with a staff of forty or fifty. The opinion is quite general in the Near East, according to Senator King, that Russia and Turkey have secret treaty relations which cause the Kemal Government to feel quite secure about the safety of the Black Sea and the straits leading to the Mediterranean. Therefore the Turks have no hesitancy about allowing the City of Constantinople to fall into decay.

The Germans are taking the lead in the international bid for Turkish trade, Senator King said. German contractors are building most of the new structrues in Angora and most of the new railway extensions. The Americans are doing well in the tobacco trade, but the Russians are endeavoring to thwart the activities of American oil interests in Turkey.

In fact, Senator King said, Russian influence is in evidence throughout Turkey, and the Soviet Government apparently is extending its power through commercial penetration, while France, Great Britain and Italy, through their jealousy and rivalry of each other, are not gaining much ground.

Senator King does not share the views of the supporters of the Turkish-American treaty that the Kemalists are looking to the Occident for their inspiration and ideals, but said it seemed to him, rather, that they were looking to the Moslem world and to Russia, which boasts that it can take Persia at any time it so desires, and thus has a clear way to the Far East over both the northern and the southern routes.

Senator King said Greece had made a better come-back than any of the other Balkan States and had assimilated 1,500,000 Greeks who were expelled from Turkey, with consequent great advantage to agriculture and industry in Greece.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The discovery at Galilee last June of fossil remains of a Neanderthal man has proved to be an event of immense importance in the study of the early history of the human race. The remains, which consist of a skull of an extremely primitive type, were discovered in a cave near the Sea of Galilee during excavations carried out by the British School of Archaeology at Jerusalem. The skull, which is now in England, has been examined by Sir Arthur Keith, famous anthropologist.

The deductions which he draws from this lone relic of an extinct species unfold a new chapter in the history of early man. They indicate, for instance, that man in his present form has been on earth a much shorter period than had been thought. They afford fascinating glimpses of the appearance and habits of his long-vanished Neanderthal cousin. They show that though the latter was apelike in appearance his brain was nearly as big as that of the man of today. They indicate this very skull may once have been the subject of a trepanning operation carried out with a flint instrument by a Neanderthal surgeon on the shores of the Sea of Galilee 40,000 years ago.

"It is certain," says Sir Arthur, "that for a long space of time Europe was inhabited solely by this peculiar breed of species of mankind—one which differed much more from any living race than does the modern European from the modern negro. The discovery now announced throws welcome light on two problems, namely, where did modern man come from when he made his appearance in Europe and replaced the Neanderthal man, and what is the relationship of the Neanderthal man to the Neanthrophic or modern man?

"Although the Galilean man is of the Neanderthal species he represents a peculiar variety, one which approaches in several respects the man of modern type. The Galilean type finds its nearest European allies in the Croatian or Krapina type, but differs from that type and all others in Europe in having a narrow, high-vaulted skull, thus approaching modern man. Although the eyebrow ridges were very massive the strong bone enclosing the brain cavity is no thicker than is the rule in European men of today. It may be inferred that in size of the brain the ancient Galilean fell only a little short of that of the average modern Englishman of today. There is nothing in the brain of this ancient type which leads us to think it had not attained the full status of humanity.

"Although young, the Galilean man had apparently suffered, for in the region of his forehead are three depressions of peculiar character which were caused long before death. In France, during the Neolithic period, large trephining operations were carried out on the skull and often, instead of making an actual hole, the Neolithic surgeon was content to do merely a scraping operation. One of the depressions in the Galilean skull resembles a condition produced by such an operation.

"The just inference from this discovery in Galilee seems to be that the ancestor of modern man must be sought still further to the east or perhaps south. This discovery, taken with those of recent years, shows us in all parts of the world, even as late as the middle part of the Pleistocene period, that mankind of all species was, so far as bodily features are concerned, still of primitive state. Apparently man has come by his present form in a much briefer space of time than many of us were prepared to allow only a year or two ago. The human body seems to have been plastic in the hands of evolution in quite recent geological times.

"This discovery also opens the possibility that the Near East contains data which will unfold for us critical chapters of the evolutionary history of modern man."

REFUGEES RAID BULGARIA.

Two Bands Are Pursued by Troops to Yugoslav Border.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 13 (AP).—Small bands of political refugees dressed in Serbian military uniforms have raided the frontier at two points. One of the bands attacked and robbed a house near Kustendil, about ten miles from the Yugoslav-Bulgarian border; the other attacked two villages near Petrich, further to the south.

The bands, which only numbered half a dozen apiece, retreated to the frontier after the attacks, with Bulgarian troops in pursuit.

GERMANY WILL ASK SECURITY PARLEY

far standing out for what they regarded as an ideal arrangement, but in seeking England's guarantee against German aggression they must take into consideration the sentiments of the English and that the agreement he had made represented the limit to which London would go.

This sort of criticism of the London agreement appeared in yesterday afternoon's press. The Journal des Débats, concluding a long article on the London conversations, said:

"It is extremely unfortunate that France and England could not agree ahead of time on a common program. Now Germany will appeal to England to become the arbiter in all disagreements between Paris and Berlin. We regret to see there has not been established the necessary Franco-British accord."

To understand this comment one must bear in mind that many Frenchmen consider the proper way to handle the Rhine treaty is for the Allies to agree on its terms and leave Germany to take it or leave it.

The paper continues that all M. Briand and Mr. Chamberlain agreed on was to invite Germany to a security conference and insist that she join the League of Nations.

The Temps expresses the hope that there exists outside the published communiqué agreement at least on the bases of the proposed treaty with Germany, for it fears all sorts of complications if the conference on security takes place with an open program—that is, with Germany free to make all sorts of moves in attempting to divide the Allies.

Observers here agree that the terms of the French reply will be such as to leave the next move up to Germany, which is to say that the speed with which the conference will be held depends on what moves the Reich may make.

Before entering the Cabinet meeting M. Briand expressed himself as delighted with his London trip and said he found popular English sentiment refreshingly in favor of France.

The text of the French reply to Germany will be submitted today to the Italian and Belgian Governments and will be sent to Berlin in the first part of next week.

BRIAND GAY AS HE DEPARTS.

Astonishes Chamberlain by Calling From Train "Good-bye, Austen."

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Despite the optimism of both M. Briand and Mr. Chamberlain when they appeared this morning at the Victoria Station, the former to return to Paris and confront the French Cabinet and the latter to bid a polite farewell to his French colleague, the feeling is strong here that little really valuable was accomplished in this week's conversations between the French and British Foreign Ministers.

The question of the security compact, according to competent students of international complications, is just about where it was when M. Briand arrived in London, despite the enthusiastic comment indulged in throughout the world implying that as a result of the London conversations Europe had moved with seven-league boots toward a lasting peace.

The question of the security compact has become involved in such a mass of quibbling and hair-splitting that outsiders are inclined to believe it will be impossible so to word it as to please both France and Britain—to say nothing of Germany, scowling and fidgeting in the background like a child reluctant to take the nasty medicine prescribed by the doctors.

Those who have followed the Briand-Chamberlain conversations here this week are quite willing to believe the statements emanating from British and French official circles, that much more preliminary talking must precede the definite drafting of the compact.

"I am satisfied with my visit to London," said M. Briand as he stepped aboard the train for Paris this morning. "We accomplished a good deal from which greater results, I believe, will spring."

On the way to the station with the French Ambassador, M. De Fleuriau, he placed a wreath on the cenopath inscribed "Au soldat inconnu."

He was in excellent spirits and chatted gaily with the reporters as he awaited the train. The light he gave them on European affairs was limited, but he imparted a new tip on the improvement in Anglo-French relations.

"While I have been here," he said, "I have smoked about fifty cigarettes daily. But di I smoke French cigarettes? Mais non! I smoke half French and half English. I alternate, first French, then English, with mathematical precision."

Austen Chamberlain came hurrying up the platform to bid his French colleague farewell. The two Foreign Ministers talked animatedly and then after M. Briand was in the train he leaned out and startled the hardened diplomat Chamberlain by calling cheerily "Good-bye, Austen."

From the station Mr. Chamberlain went straight to Buckingham Palace to report to the King the result of the conversations and later in the day imparted them to his colleagues at a Cabinet meeting.

The arrangements between Mr. Chamberlain and M. Briand concerning the actual interpretation of the compact, it is learned, run along the following lines:

It has always been a question between England and France as to how a bilateral agreement between France, Germany and England would work out if violated. France has been most willing to whittle down any of her rights under the treaty of Versailles to take action against Germany in case of violation of treaty clauses, as, for example, violation by Berlin of the demilitarized zone. What action would England take, seeing she insisted that her guarantee of the Franco-German frontier must be maintained quite as much against France as Germany?

The understanding now is that in the event of Germany making a really flagrant breach of the treaty, England would acquiesce in France taking whatever steps she desired without submitting the matter to the League of Nations. There would be no question of England deliberating in a perfectly plain case as to which was the innocent party in the quarrel, and there would be no requirement that France wait while the question was decided by the slow methods of the League of Nations.

But in doubtful cases of German aggression—for instance, the construction of a railroad siding which France maintained could only be for strategic purposes—then, before France took any action, the matter must be decided by the Council of the League of Nations. That Council would be invoked even in the case of the most flagrant aggression by Germany, but England would insist that France hold her hand in the class of doubtful cases before she went ahead.

Regarding the eastern frontiers of Germany and the arbitration treaties to be concluded, some of which France intends to guarantee, the French answer to the German note will, it is understood, probably take into consideration Berlin's objection to having an arbitration treaty between Germany and Poland guaranteed by any other single power. But it will be pointed out that theoretically there cannot be objection to any treaty being guaranteed by a single power, and France fails to see why she should not undertake to support an arbitration treaty if she chooses.

England will have nothing to do with these eastern arbitration treaties except as a member of the League of Nations. If they are violated the matter is bound to come before that body, since the peace of the world will be involved, but England will not assume any special responsibility for them.

This understanding between Britain and France is founded on the belief that it is impossible to conceive that France would attack Germany unless Germany committed an aggressive act in the west or threatened Poland or other border States in the east. France has obtained the frontier she desires and could gain nothing, she contends, by a further conflict with Germany.

The impression conveyed by Ambassador Houghton's luncheon with M. Briand during the security compact negotiations, that the United States is taking a hand in their furtherance, has evidently taken deep root in London. The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "It is believed that American influences in Berlin will be discreetly exercised for the purpose of inducing Germany to court League membership without undue delay, just as parallel American influences were latterly exercised with no small success in London for the purpose of ensuring for the pact a truly bilateral character and of averting the drawbacks of another dictated peace to Germany, as in 1919.

"It is not easy for the French mind to accommodate itself to the idea of a truly bilateral pact of guarantees. It proved by no means easy to obtain of our French friends that Germany should be authorized to act in certain clearly defined and flagrant emergencies without waiting for a League decision, as France is authorized to act in corresponding eventualities.

"There is nervousness in allied circles over the development of the 'optants' question between Germany and Poland. The latter's handling of the situation has accentuated the feeling for caution, in connection with the eastern side of the pact, not only in London but in Paris."

ASSERT ITALY IS IGNORED.

Italians Think Security Compact Should Cover Her Own Frontiers.

ROME, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Briand-Chamberlain parleys in London have caused in Italian circles a feeling of chagrin, tinged with a certain resentment, over what is described as a growing apparent tendency among the leading European powers to ignore Italy in the considerations of the great post-war problems.

It is pointed out that when the question of a security compact first arose Italy, on being asked unofficially as to her attitude, explained that she was not prepared to subscribe to any compact which did not include a clause guaranteeing the status quo of the Italo-Austrian frontier, as prescribed by the treaty of St. Germaine.

It is now remarked by Italian observers that since Italy made this position clear the other powers have continued to discuss a security compact without further consideration of Italy's claims, apparently thinking it unnecessary to invite Italy to join in the subsequent pourparlers.

While the Italian attitude has not changed as to joining a security pact, there is an unmistakable feeling of disappointment over being completely ignored in the discussions which it is felt should be inclusive enough to cover the European problem as a whole, all of which are inextricably interwoven.

has called me and my answer

My name is M. L. Brode.
My friends call me Moe.

I have been associated with my father—A. Brode—since I was sixteen years old except during one short period when my youthful enthusiasm painted a picture that lured me to the great West where I was sure a big fortune awaited me.

My father—wise man—did not object to my going because he believes that young men must have an experience before they can acquire common sense and judgment.

I bought a lot in a Western development because I thought I ought to show my faith in the proposition that I intended to help put over.

On my way West I stopped off at Denver. At the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, I fortunately met some experienced business men who advised me to turn back home, saying that the proposition that had lured me away was not sound. I came back home and resumed business relations with my father. When I went West to make a fortune I was twenty years old. Today I am thirty-nine, married and blessed with a fine family.

I have been connected with my father all these years. It has been a splendid training for me, for my father has grounded in me the fundamentals that insure success in business, and cement and hold friendships.

What is it that comes into our lives and urges us to make a change?

If you can tell me you will be able to do something that I cannot do.

Sitting in my home on Sunday morning, July 26th, I was attracted to an advertisement in The Times about Florida. It was written by William C. Freeman, Vice-President of Smitz-Freeman Corporation, Realtors, St. Petersburg, Florida. Many times I have read Advertising Talks written by him that appeared daily in the New York Evening Mail. They helped me in my work as a salesman in my business. I am a wholesale dealer in men's furnishing goods at 710 Broadway.

There was something in that advertisement that called me and I couldn't resist the call. I sought an appointment with Mr. Freeman. He invited me to call on him. I did so. The result is that I have decided to become associated with the Smitz-Freeman Corporation with the idea of finding through this corporation safe investments in Florida real estate for my friends, their friends and the public generally.

Until such time as the Smitz-Freeman Corporation establishes an office in New York City I will operate from my own headquarters at 710 Broadway.

In the meantime I want to assure my friends and their friends that I have made a connection with an institution whose first objective always is to find desirable properties throughout Florida where there can be no question as to their value nor any question regarding the growth of the communities in which the properties are located.

This principle of business appealed to me strongly as I know it will appeal to you.

THUS DISORDER IS SPREAD

Better Foreign Elements Know of Evils and Even Talk of Urging Prohibition.

By THOMAS F. MILLARD.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, July 12.—Probably it was inevitable that the complex form of government of this port would give occasion for and lend itself to evasions and abuses.

"In many laws lies the rogue's opportunity" is a free translation of a Chinese proverb; and no other place on earth has so many kinds of laws as Shanghai.

Passing by for the moment (but always remembering) the two major kinds of government—Oriental and Occidental—attention can be given especially to the foreign concessions.

The area of what now is the International Settlement was allotted originally to the British and American Governments and for many years was under their exclusive authority. Those nations have almost the same background, political and social ideas and jurisprudence. On the fundamentals of human conduct and what is thought to be right and what is believed to be wrong and what is proper and what is improper, British and Americans think very much alike.

So long as the authority here resided with the British and American Consuls there was no broad clash of systems; and in their own concession the French carried on in their own way.

But when the settlement took on an international character and some twenty nations, large and small, were given equal footing and consular status, complications multiplied.

All of the Western Christian nations have similar ways of dealing with major crimes, and concerning property, marriage and the fundamental relations of society; but even in these matters there is as much, perhaps more, difference among laws of the nations represented here as there are among laws of the States in America. Probably it is as good a comparison as can be made to imagine a city like Chicago having the laws of twenty States simultaneously in force and in some degree administered by as many different State courts.

Results of this condition can be illustrated by citing a few particular instances.

Trouble Over Gambling and Opium.

Take gambling. This practice is publicly frowned on by British and American society (but practically done by nearly every one) and in those countries gaming places are prohibited; in America even lotteries are against the law. But a very different view of this matter is held in many countries of Europe and South America.

Take opium. This question is an international sore spot. For years an effort has been made to rid China of this vice and the American Government again and again tries to procure a sweeping international agreement to suppress and regulate the traffic. But there we differ even from Britain, which Government (in India) derives revenue from opium and is reluctant to give it up. (I intend to give more extended treatment to the opium question in subsequent articles.)

Take the traffic in arms and munitions. All will remember the constant, and so far the futile, efforts of the nations to agree on strong measures to regulate and confine the international commerce in arms. This is a matter of especial interest in China, for unless the Chinese militarists obtained arms and munitions from abroad, they could not have organized their swollen provisional armies and could not keep up their petty wars, and we would not be confronted in China today with Chinese military forces of nearly 2,000,000 men.

I do not play cards or mah jong, I do not "play" the races, I do not indulge in any form of gambling, but I have not much sympathy with efforts to transplant some of our strict social ideas and inhibitions into Asia. Yet I can see that it was inevitable that we would try to do that. Missionaries are born reformers. In China they try to order their lives according to church ideals and in civic matters they desire to apply the standards and laws of the home countries.

"We should set an example for the Chinese" is their slogan; and in all of us there is enough of inherited respect for tradition and our home habits to make the non-missionary elements here yield the point in most things.

As a consequence, in this Settlement gambling places and licensed houses of prostitution are regulated after the British and American home methods and are prohibited by the by-laws. But those who know how hard it is for the police in New York City to suppress gambling and prostitution will understand how much harder it is to do that here, where under the laws of several nations having consular jurisdiction those things are legitimate. Chinese love to gamble and liberally patronize all speculative enterprises.

The foregoing items are mentioned in order to illustrate certain abuses inherent to the nature of government in these Settlements. In view of international amenities one will not particularize; but there is little doubt that consuls of some of the smaller nations in Shanghai exist and use their offices almost solely for the purpose of giving protection to illicit and, under the by-laws, illegal traffics and occupations. A few instances are known where persons wanting to get under such protection have managed to induce little nations, whose nationals in China number perhaps scarcely a dozen, to appoint consuls who previously were subsidized by the interests that were to be protected.

Evidences of Occidental Grafting.

One would not need to go back to the court records in Shanghai within the last six months to find many specific instances of illicit occupations getting under the wing of one or another of the foreign consular jurisdictions.

There is an agreement among the principal powers to prevent the importation and sale of arms and munitions to China. The agreement primarily was at the instance of the Chinese Government, which wanted to prevent revolutionists from obtaining arms; and the foreign powers had almost an equal interest in putting an embargo on arms because of the turmoil into which the constant revolutionary efforts and the provincial wars put the country.

The case of Mexico is nearly parallel. It is legal for foreigners to sell arms and munitions to the recognized Government of China, but it is illegal for them to be sold to any one except the recognized Government. Consequently, the Chinese Government constantly is making an effort to prevent the smuggling of arms and munitions and the foreign powers are obligated to prevent their nationals from engaging in the business here. On the other hand, the Chinese militarists always are trying to obtain arms and ammunition and will pay high prices for them. Scarcely a week passes here without the Chinese or Settlements police making a seizure of small quantities of arms which are being smuggled in from ships in the port, but it is notorious that large quantities get into the country frequently. Also it is notorious that Japan and Italy have been the worst offenders in giving protection to the traffic.

The biggest "graft" in Shanghai is the smuggling of opium. The Chinese Maritime Customs (which are under foreign management) do what they can to check the practice but with poor success, because the traffic is "protected" in so many quarters. The chief profiteers are local Chinese officials and militarists, who even use Chinese warships to bring in opium. A few weeks ago a staff officer of one of the big militarists was sent to Shanghai because his chief suspected that he was not getting his fair share of the graft from opium smuggling, and when the officer called the local officials to task, an affray occurred in which the staff officer was killed. This happened only a few yards outside the settlement boundaries.

But Chinese officials are not the only persons engaged in opium smuggling. Many other Chinese and many foreigners are in it, and as those Chinese want to prevent the Chinese officials from knowing of their traffic and interfering, rascally foreigners are employed so as to obtain the "protection" of a foreign consular jurisdiction. In that manner the opium graft finds its way inside the foreign administration of the concessions. There is evidence that the police of the concessions sometimes are implicated. So far as I know, British and American officials never have been involved with illicit opium transactions, and those Governments are very strict in trying to enforce here both the arms embargo and the opium restrictions. The same cannot be said of some other Governments which rank as principal powers.

(In the examples cited is found the chief reason why the Municipal Council of the International Settlement has come to take the position of being practically independent in local matters of the authority of the consular and diplomatic corps, for if the consular corps actually had the superior authority it would be possible for a bloc of little nations to run the settlement as they liked and we might have another Tia Juana on the edge of China.)

Abuses of "Neutrality."

What, perhaps, is a lesser evil, but one which gives a good deal of trouble, are complications arising out of the theoretical neutrality of the concessions and the use of them as places of political asylum by Chinese officials and revolutionary plotters who temporarily are forced to seek safety out of the reach of their opponents or the Peking Government. When a Chinese official or militarist gets into difficulties he hastens to the nearest foreign concession, where he is immune from the legal or other processes of Chinese authority.

As a precaution against the time when luck may turn against them, almost all of the leading officials and militarists in China have bought homes in the foreign concessions and invested their money there and keep their principal bank deposits there, usually in foreign banks.

When a cashiered official or a defeated militarist escapes into this settlement or the French concession, he is not interfered with by the municipal authorities if he conducts himself inoffensively and does not use the settlements for political intrigue and to organize some attempt to recover power. At times, however, they do that under the noses of the police, and cases are numerous when it has been necessary to deport such persons. When that is done, the practice is to put them on a foreign ship sailing to some port outside of China. Thus, notwithstanding the sincere efforts of the foreign municipalities to avoid being associated with China's internal political and military broils, there scarcely ever is a time when they are free of such complications.

The occasions when Shanghai is the focus of an inter-Tuchun war now are so frequent (it has happened twice within the last few months) that various projects to ease and avoid the dangers of that situation have been advanced. One proposal is that in the Chinese territory adjacent to the foreign concessions there will be marked out a special administrative area which always will be neutral in times of trouble, and which in fact will be a buffer between these settlements and the zones of military operations. This idea found favor with the Chinese and the Peking Government not long ago went so far as to nominate officials to effect the organization of the buffer area, but the project seems to have died a-borning. The minds of the Chinese, since the widespread troubles of this Summer, now are turning toward the notion of getting entirely rid of the concessions and of extraterritoriality.

In fact the concessions are a great convenience to the class of Chinese that make the game of politics and the "squeeze" which in China goes with it their regular occupation. The concessions are pretty well distributed throughout the country and in time of stress the Chinese militarists and political schemers can get to one of them quickly, and once under foreign protection they then can travel where they want to on foreign ships. Many people assume that because the concessions are of this use to Chinese politicians and militarists that they will not want to have them turned back to China, for in that case the political refugees would have to get to Japan or to Hongkong or into Siberia for safety.

But in this matter the few thousands of Chinese who take advantage of these circumstances will not be able to decide the course, for they will be swept along by nationwide popular sentiment. I have talked with intelligent Chinese who believe that to return the concessions will help stabilize the nation and operate to check this game of exploiting the country for the benefit of a few by adding to the risks and dangers of the game.

It may not be amiss, although of small importance, to mention among the anomalies of government in Shanghai the effort which one element of the American community and of Americans at home are making to apply the Volstead law to stop the use of alcoholic liquors in the American clubs here. It is argued that these clubs in effect are American territory and therefore the prohibition law applies to them. If that were true then the residence of any American in China would be covered by the Volstead law.

The contention so far has not been pressed by the prohibitionists, perhaps because such action could result in nothing except to saddle the Volstead law with still another ridiculous paradox. To apply prohibition to the American clubs here, when for any member to obtain a drink it would be necessary only to go a short distance to another club (most Americans here belong to several clubs) or to a public bar, would result in one of two things: it would close the American clubs (which have many members of other nationalities) or it would force them to incorporate under the law of another nation. No Americans in Shanghai could by such application of the Volstead law be prevented from getting as much liquor as they want unless agents of the Government followed us about constantly and observed our every action at all times of the day and night. This matter, I believe, some time ago was taken up at Washington by the prohibition extremists, but evidently nothing came of it, probably because the Government understands that there are limits beyond which it is inadvisable to try to extend its plenary powers.

Of course when (and if) extraterritoriality ends all these anomalies and complications arising from the overlapping administrations in this port will be finished; but without doubt a fresh and perhaps a more serious lot of conditions and problems will spring up in their place.

London Clergyman Appeals Against 'Bareness' To 'Sisters, Cousins and Aunts' of Britain

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The campaign here against the audacious new fashions in woman's dress was continued today in an open letter from the Rev. Richard Free of St. Clement's Church, Fulham, London, addressed to "the sisters, cousins and aunts of the British Empire." The irate clergyman denounces the feminine fashions nowadays without mincing his words.

"Why this briefness, this bareness?" he asks. "Why this bobbed and shingled hair, this realistic imitation of nature's body tints?

"The present fashions seem to be shed of everything possible in the way of apparel. When the women have succeeded in ridding themselves of the last available encumbrance—what then?

"There is no freedom beyond freedom. What lies beyond is laxity."

The vicar declares that women who think themselves up to date because they discard more and more clothing are merely old-fashioned, as the habit of going about with a minimum of apparel has been in vogue many times before, notably during the Directoire period in France. Then French women shed so many garments that, according to the horrified vicar, they died prematurely by the thousands because they caught such awful colds. In a final appeal to modern girls he says:

"If I were you, I would abandon this affectation and indelicacy and be again your own sweet selves."

DEBT SETTLEMENT NOW UP TO BRUSSELS

Commissioners Cable Proposals for Decision by the Brussels Government.

APPROVAL EXPECTED TODAY

Low Interest Rates and a Moratorium Said to Have Been Agreed To by Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—When the Belgian and American Debt Commissions adjourned after a short meeting today the hope was expressed that an agreement would be reached tomorrow or Saturday on the main points of a debt funding compact which would be acceptable to the Governments of Belgium and the United States.

The Belgian Commissioners have sent a communication to their home Government and expect a reply by tomorrow morning, when they will again meet with the American Commission. If this reply is favorable it is probable that the Commissions will quickly reach an agreement as to the principles which shall govern a tentative program, to be submitted formally to the legislative bodies of the two Governments for approval.

While officials would not discuss today's developments in detail, more optimism was displayed than at any time since the commissions began their negotiations on Monday. It was stated that all of the meetings had been marked by most cordial relations.

The nature of the communication sent by the Belgian Commissioners to their home Government was carefully guarded, but several versions were to be heard. One was that the negotiations had reached a point where the Belgian Commissioners were in a position to place before their Government the main principles of an agreement which would be acceptable to the commissioners of both countries if the Belgium Government gave its approval.

The immediate success of the negotiations, therefore, may well rest upon the nature of the reply which the Belgian Commissioners are awaiting. With the guilding principles agreed upon, Treasury officials would be able quickly to work out the details of a compact.

The Belgian Commissioners, it was understood, had agreed to the position taken by the American officials that all of Belgium's war-time debt of $480,000,000 be included in a funding agreement, and that the United States should not be asked to accept German bonds for that part of the debt contracted prior to the signing of the armistice in November, 1918.

In return, the American Commissioners, according to report, have conceded that lower interest rates must be given to Belgium than those set up in the British-American funding compact, and also that she should have a moratorium of five years or more, covering all or part of payments of interest.

The Belgian Commissioners also are seeking a low interest rate on that part of the interest which has accrued since the debts were contracted. In the British-American compact the rate on accrued interest was reduced from 5 to 4½ per cent., which meant that the accrued interest was reduced by more than $110,000,000. The Belgium position, it is understood, is that a reduction of the rate on accrued interest in the case of Belgium to 3 per cent. or less, would [illegible] much smaller concession as regards money which the countries actually must pay the United States, because the Belgian debt is smaller.

This principle applies also to requests for lower rates on interest to be paid in the future. The British rate was put at 3 per cent. for the first ten years and 3½ per cent. for the next fifty-two years, which meant that Great Britain actually would pay the United States about $3,000,000,000 less than would have been due over the entire sixty-two years period if the rate of 5 per cent. fixed by the demand notes had been insisted upon. A rate of 2 or 2½ per cent. to Belgium would result in a much smaller concession because the principal amount of the Belgium debt is only a fifth of the principal amount of the British debt.

The Belgians, it also is understood, have asked for a distinction in the manner in which payments of interest shall be made on the pre-armistice and post-armistice debts, although agreeing to a funding compact which would cover the entire debt and make Belgium the responsible debtor. An effort to work out some such arrangement has been made, but no details have been made public.

PARIS WATCHES DEBT PARLEY.

Discussion With London Awaits Belgians' Deal Here.

PARIS, Aug. 13 (AP).—Intense interest is being taken in French Government circles in the Belgian-American debt-funding negotiations now in progress at Washington. The French Foreign Office is receiving each day long communications from Emile Daeschner, French Ambassador at Washington, giving a full report of the proceedings.

The return of the French Funding Mission to London has been postponed until next week in the expectation that the developments at Washington will assist greatly in shaping French policy for the resumption of the negotiations with the British Government.

Finance Minister Caillaux is now almost certain to head the French delegatoin when it returns to London, as his 4 per cent. gold coupon loan is making good headway and conditions seem likely to permit the Minister of Finance to be absent from Paris for a few days.

It is now known that France and England are thus far agreed in principle; that the British yearly demands for payment of the French debt will be fixed not according to the amount of the French debt, but according to France's capacity to pay.

The fundamental basis upon which an agreement has already been reached is that the idea of a temporary settlement for four or five years, which was proposed by Great Britain, shall be abandoned, M. Caillaux's viewpoint demanding a permanent settlement having prevailed.

France has proposed annual payments of £7,000,000 to £8,000,000, three or four of which are to be paid in gold. England has asked annual payments of £15,000,000.

Meanwhile, the appointment of the Debt Funding Commission which will go to Washington is held in abeyance by the French Government until the American negotiations with the Belgians have progressed further, the French hoping to obtain much valuable information and guidance from the terms granted to Belgium.

The general opinion is that the mission will be appointed upon M. Caillaux's return from England and will leave for America early in September, as originally scheduled.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Cabinet has been called to meet in an urgent session to examine the question of Belgium's debt to the United States. The Government is firmly resolved not to take any decision on this question without the approbation of Parlament. Premier Poullet will inform the King of the situation after the Cabinet meeting.

CHINESE PREPARE FOR TREATY FIGHT

Will Denounce One-Sided Agreements at Customs Conference in Peking on Oct. 15.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Aug. 13.—China's intention of taking an opportunity at the opening of the Peking Customs Conference to present demands for complete customs autonomy, the abolition of extraterritoriality and all other points upon which she did not receive complete satisfaction at the Washington Conference, was indicated today by a Chinese official here.

A committee composed of Judge C. T. Wang, Dr. W. W. Yen and D. K. Sai are now examining all of China's treaties, looking for the one-sided ones with the expectation of demanding the abolition of that specific type.

The date upon which the conference will be called depends upon the progress the committee makes, but it is hoped it will complete its work in time to call the parley for Oct. 15.

A Japanese Foreign Office spokesman today stated that there was no anticipation that China would there present questions other than customs revision. He said he thought the Customs Conference would be called without China's waiting for the powers to act regarding the Shanghai affair.

He stated that probably two notes, instead of one, will be handed to China by the powers in the near future; one note referring to the part of the thirteen demands directly concerning the Shanghai shootings and the other referring to the part of the demands considered unrelated to the shooting.

The first note is being prepared by the Peking Diplomatic Corps, where an early accord is expected. The powers have agreed as to the contents of the second note and are now negotiating at various capitals regarding the wording. This will consist of these four parts:

1. Expressing the desire of the powers to assist China.
2. The desire to open early negotiations over the Shanghai affair, including China's demands for representation upon the Shanghai Municipal Council.
3. The desire to convene the Customs Conference quickly.
4. The wish to send a commission soon to investigate China's judiciary, according to the Washington treaty as the first step toward the abolition of extraterritoriality.

As the only disagreement between the powers concerns the wording it is expected that the note will soon be completed.

It is understood that England desires strong wording, that America wishes a friendly tone, and that Japan continues her middle course.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A telegram today from Representative John J. McSwain of Greenville, S. C., asked Secretary Kellogg to investigate a report that the Rev. William H. Mr. Turner had been captured, but immediately cabled to the Consul General in Canton.

Committee of M. P.'s Proposes Merger of British Navy and Air Forces.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—A plan to reconcile the ever-recurring differences between the British Navy and the Air Force has been put before the Cabinet by a Unionist Naval Committee of Members of Parliament and will receive careful consideration.

It is proposed to amalgamate the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force, abolish the Admiralty and Air Council and appoint instead an Imperial Defense Board, responsible for the defense duties of the Navy and Air Force under a Cabinet Minister, with the title of First Lord of Defense.

The argument of the champions of the new scheme is that both the air and sea services have the same sort of problems to solve and would be more economical and efficient if they combined their efforts instead of working separately. Both are forced to attempt to control vast areas which it is impossible to hold absolutely and the flying battleship is the logical line of development. Before flying came in, it is argued, the battleship was unable to pursue an enemy beyond harbor limits, but now, with wings, it should be able to prevent the foe taking safe refuge anywhere.

If this pursuit of an enemy behind defenses is to be a regular thing the navy should have its own air machines and not be required to rely on other services for planes. The Military Air Force would be relieved by not having to provide machines of a type needed at sea, while civilian flying would go to the Board of Trade as the mercantile marine does at present.

According to the champions of the new scheme the navy should develop till it includes airplanes and airships, just as it has been already developed from sailing to steam vessels and from surface craft to submarines.

FRANCE SEEKS WAY TO SATISFY THE RIFFS

Malvy Returns to Madrid to Confer on New Methods of Presenting Peace Terms.

CHIEFTAIN FORCES CHANGE

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Deputy Malvy, who took an active part in the negotiations for joint Franco-Spanish action against the Riff, has returned to Madrid, and it is understood his mission is to obtain some modification of the peace terms, or rather in the presentation of the peace terms to Abd-el-Krim. The difficulty of getting anywhere with the Riff leader has been that the Madrid conference decided to treat him as a rebel and present peace conditions for his acceptance. The French opposed negotiations for peace on the ground that Abd-el-Krim might take advantage of the armistice to spread propaganda among the tribesmen. But his absolute refusal to have anything to do with the peace terms unless treated as an independent ruler and not as a rebel has considerably altered the situation.

There is nothing in the Franco-Spanish peace terms that Abd-el-Krim is not willing to accept though he wants some additions. But he is absolutely fixed in his determination to be treated as a belligerent and not as a rebel and will only make peace on these terms.

M. Malvy's mission to Madrid is believed to be for the purpose of trying to secure some formal alteration in the method of presentation of peace terms which might even go so far as to provide an official conference. The present French Government has been made fully aware of the cost and difficulty of carrying on the war through the rainy season, which beings in October, and appears disposed to make some sacrifice in form if it can obtain peace, but the attitude of the Spanish Government is not yet certain.

Marshal Pétain is expected to leave for Rabat in a few days, and it is understood, during his presence there, Marshal Lyautey will take the opportunity to have the vacation which his health demands.

PARIS, Aug. 13 (AP).—Advices from Morocco today were to the effect that the situation along the Ouergha River front, where the French are facing the rebellious tribesmen, was quiet. The recent successes of the French and Spaniards over the Moroccans have had a cheering effect on the French troops, who also have been favored by a welcome drop in the torrid temperature. The mobile troops are having twenty-four hours of rest.

A general movement northward by the dissident tribes has been reported since the arrival of French reinforcements at the front. The tribesmen are taking their cattle along with them.

Charles A. Fulton, an American residing in Tours, has offered the French Government two automobile ambulances for service in Morocco. He asked to be allowed to run one of the machines. Mr Fulton enlisted in the Foreign Legion at the beginning of the World War and afterward commanded a hospital unit in the American Army.

Spanish General Explores Coast.

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 13 (AP).—What is believed to be the prelude to the long expected Spanish landing at Alhucemas for the purpose of blocking Abd-el-Krim's access to the sea, began today with the departure of General Saro on board a torpedo boat to make a special exploration of the Mediterranean coastline in the Alhucemas Bay district. Before sailing he had a lengthy conference with General Primo de Rivera, Commander-in-Chief of the Spanish forces in Morocco.

A dispatch from Fez says the French and Spanish forces have put the enemy into precipitate flight in a brilliant operation in which aircraft and artillery played a most efficient part. Aviators set fire to camps of the rebel tribesmen while artillery rained shells into their ranks and the infantry advanced to finish the task while the Riffians were in flight.

Great uneasiness reigns among the tribesmen who are making overtures to submit to Franco-Spanish authority, but it appears that Abd-el-Krim also is threatening the Moroccans who are weakening with reprisals.

AMERICAN UNIT FORMED.

Airmen Enter Service as Squadron of French Aviation Regiment.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Aug. 13 (AP).—The American aviators who volunteered to fight for France in Morocco against Abd-el-Krim's Riffian tribesmen now are a formal unit in the French forces and known as Squadron 19 of the Thirty-seventh French Aviation Regiment.

The squadron consists of Colonel Charles Sweeney of Spokane, Lieut. Cols. Austen Parker of Helena, Mont., and Charles Kerwood of Philadelphia; Major Granville Pollock of New York, Captains W. G. Bullen of Miami, Fla., Arthur Holden of New York and James Mustane of New York and Lieutenant Cousins, pilots, and Captains Paul Rockwell of Asheville, N. C.; R. H. E. Weller of Fon du Lac, Wis., and Donald McGibney, bombers and observers. Major James Sussan of Daytona, Fla., a motor expert and pilot, is in charge of the French mechanics and will inspect each plane before flights are made.

Dr. V. Sparks of Indianapolis, who first enrolled as a medical officer, upon hearing accounts of Ruffian atrocities to their prisoners, requested that he be made a bomber, and he will also undergo training as a pilot.

Two experienced French officers have been assigned to the American squadron for liason and other purposes, and there is a personnel of fifty French non-commissioned officers and privates, including mechanics, chauffeurs, cooks, secretaries, motor cycle riders, tailors, bootmakers and woodworkers. Eight Breguet two-seated bombing planes have arrived for use by the Americans.

Nine individual tents and four larger ones and a rolling field kitchen have been added to the units' equipment.

At dawn today each American took a trial flights at the Casablanca Flying Field despite the mist that was rolling in from the ocean. After a few days' training here the pilots will go to Mekines for a further stage of training, while the bombers will go directly to the front to obtain practical experience while attached to French squadrons.

Lieut. Col. Kerwood and Captain Arthur Holden are still at Malaga, Spain, where they were obliged to land on their flight from Paris. The yare repairing their planes and are expected here Saturday.

Hailstorm Kills Siberian Peasants.

CHITA, Siberia, Aug. 13 (AP).—Two peasants were kille dand several injured by a hailstorm which ruined thousands of acres of crops, meadows and vegetable gardens in the Transbaikal district yesterday. Unprecedented rains have been in progress in the whole region for several days, while snow and severe frost are reported in the Lena River region. These conditions are abnormal for this season in Siberia.

Pay Cash
and Keep Out of Debt

LIFE is already so filled with problems we do not create and cannot control, that it is hard to understand the man or woman who adds to them by deliberately walking into debt.

It is often the weak inability to resist temptation that permits men to add to their burdens by pledging their future earnings on the instalment plan.

In a recent article in the American Mercury, J. R. Sprague relates the following:

"I had occasion to visit a city of about 50,000 inhabitants. Main Street was ablaze with bright looking shops among which I counted more than 40 shops that advertised instalment payments. Everywhere were the familiar slogans. 'We trust the public', 'Wear our clothes while you pay for them', 'Pick out what you want; we will arrange terms to suit', 'No money down'.

"It would be a strong-minded person who could walk down that main street and not be tempted to take home some article on such ridiculously easy terms.

"The ultimate price paid for these things, I fear, will be the breaking down of the whole morale of the nation."

Macy's is in entire sympathy with Mr. Sprague's condemnation of the instalment method of buying, but we do not feel alarmed in any such degree as he. We are happy to report that our business shows a very gratifying increase in the number of people who realize the wisdom and sanity of buying for cash at Macy's, where prices are always lowest-in-the-city.

COAL PEACE SEEMS TO HANG ON DAVIS

Secretary of Labor Expected to Act in Deadlock on His Return From Europe.

MINERS' CHIEF STILL FIRM

Won't Negotiate Unless Operators Recede; Won't Arbitrate, Says Lewis as He Leaves.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 13.—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, left for Philadelphia today firm in the position he has taken not to resume anthracite wage negotiations unless the operators recede from their decision to refuse all contract changes that might mean increased production cost.

Efforts to break the deadlock between operators and miners are expected shortly after the arrival in the United States of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who is expected back from Europe on Aug. 25. It is understood that Mr. Davis will not officially intervene in view of the Administration's policy to keep out of the dispute until an emergency has been created. He is, however, expected to act unofficially in an endeavor to have the interrupted parleys resumed.

It was indicated today that Mr. Lewis's position on arbitration will not change, no matter what circumstances may arise. The operators plan to present arbitration as their solution of the trouble at every possible opportunity.

The miners view the campaign to acquaint the public with the uses of bituminous coal and other substitutes for anthracite as a waste of effort. They say that few householders would go to the expense of discarding their anthracite furnaces and buy bituminous coal-burning apparatus. They are of the opinion that the costly changes involved in shifting to soft coal or oil would discourage the public from acting on the suggestions that are being offered for use in a possible emergency.

Mr. Lewis declined to comment on the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission published today in which the Commission refused to reduce freight rates on anthracite and cut rates on bituminous coal between West Virginia and New England. He said that until he had read the entire report he would have nothing to say.

Among the miners it was held that the Commission's decision was in effect encouragement to the non-union soft coal operators of West Virginia who have been fighting the union for many years.

The miners were disappointed that the Commission did not reduce freight rates on hard coal for which they have been contending for several years. During the wage parleys which broke up on Aug. 4 the mine workers' spokesmen maintained that such a reduction would benefit the consumer. They asked the operators to join with them in a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission asking for an investigation of the facts in the situation. This request was refused by employers on the ground that such an investigation was under way at the time.

LEWIS QUITS ATLANTIC CITY.

Miners' President in Philadelphia Nearer Centre of Action.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13 (AP).—John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, arrived in Philadelphia today for an "undetermined stay." He was accompanied by his family.

"Are there any developments in the anthracite situation?" he was asked.

"It looks like rain," he observed.

"Did you transfer your headquarters to be nearer the operators? They're only a few blocks away."

"I had a very pleasant motor trip over from Atlantic City," he replied.

The miners' chief indicated that the transfer of his headquarters was largely a matter of "mechanical convenience," facilitating close intercommunication with the hard coal fields.

SAYS CITY WANTS HARD COAL

S. M. Schatzkin Sees Little Benefit Here in Soft Coal Rate Drop.

The reduction ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission in railroad rates on West Virginia smokeless coal to New England and North Atlantic seaboard points will not greatly benefit New York City, according to S. M. Schatzkin, Vice President of Burns Brothers, coal dealers.

"A long campaign of education is necessary to induce people to use anthracite substitutes," said Mr. Schatzkin yesterday. "The trouble is that no substitute is as good as the real article. Urging a man to use a substitute is like trying to make some one fond of chicken use herring in its stead.

"During the anthracite strike of several years ago there was plenty of coke and soft coal on hand, but people wouldn't use it. If the strike had lasted a long time and there had been desperate need of fuel, the substitutes, no doubt, would have been used because people would have had to use whatever was available.

"I don't think the use of anthracite substitutes has increased much in New York City lately. Soft coal is probably used a little more now than formerly because the smoke regulations are not being strictly enforced.

"I don't believe that there will be a serious strike. A suspension of three months would not cause much trouble, provided the Government kept its hands out of the situation. I don't think this rate reduction will make a great difference in the price of coal substitutes in the city."

BIG COAL MERGER PLANNED.

Backers of $500,00,000 Combination Await Data From Operators.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 13 (AP).—Plans for consolidating Kentucky and West Virginia coal mines into a $500,000,000 company, producing approximately 150,000,000 tons of fuel a year, are awaiting the return of questionnaires now in the hands of operators, an announcement by J. E. Johnson, Secretary of the Hazard Coal Operators Exchange, said today.

Mr. Johnson, who returned yesterday from a merger conference of coal operators of the two States in New York, said the operators believed the merger would reduce strikes and labor troubles to a minimum.

Coal fields included in the proposed consolidation are the East Kentucky fields of Harlan, Hazard and Big Sandy, which produce superior grades of domestic, gas and Elkhorn by-product, and the West Virginia fields of Thacker, Logan, Williamson, Pocahontas, Kanawha, Winding Gulf and Tug River. The Fairmont field, in Northern West Virginia, would not be affected by the consolidation.

Stabilization of the coal industry in the main producing section of the Appalachian Range is the object of the combination, Mr. Johnson said. If the returned questionnaires are favorable to the plan, bankers propose to issue stocks and bonds totaling $500,000,000, covering the agreed valuation of the mines.

Fifty per cent. of the amount would be in bonds, thirty per cent. of which would be turned over in cash to various operators to liquidate accumulated debts and twenty per cent. retained by the corporation for working capital. The other fifty per cent. would be distributed among the mine owners as their shares in the corporation.

The questionnaires will furnish financiers with the tonnage of each mine, the operating expenses and the total debts, as well as the sentiment of the operators toward consolidation.

Plans can be only tentative, however, until the sentiment of all the operators is known, Mr. Johnson said.

Those attending the New York conference included John J. Riordan, representing the New York and Baltimore bankers; John Lang, President of the Kanawha Coal Operators' Association; M. L. Garvey, President of the New River Coal Operators' Association, Winona, W. Va.; T. J. Robson, Wyatt Coal Company, West Virginia; Dana Grose, Boston; Ernest M. Merrill, consulting mining engineer of the Big River Coal Operators' Association, Charleston, W. Va., and P. T. Colgan, mining engineer, representing the Harlan field, Middlesboro, Ky.

There have been several reports recently of coal merger plans, but nothing definite has been announced in New York. Bankers here expect financing will be arranged when the consolidation plans are worked out, but the amount mentioned in the Lexington dispatch was regarded in the financial district as excessive.

CHRONIC RUNAWAY FOUND.

Brooklyn Girl, Held in Syracuse, Says She Left Home 15 Times.

Jessie Murphy, 19 years old, who disappeared a few weeks ago from the home of her uncle, William Murphy, at 881 Jefferson Street, Brooklyn, has been found at Syracuse, according to a telegram received from the police of that city last night. She was located at the Hospital of the Good Shepherd there.

The girl told the matron at Syracuse police headquarters she had run away from home fifteen times. She had been living with friends in the up-State city but it was not until she was taken ill and removed to the hospital that information of her whereabouts was obtained. She said that running away from home seemed to add to her enjoyment of life.

DAVISON WILL SEEK ALL FACTS ON CRIME

Expert Statistician's Survey Will Pave Way for Action, Commission Head Says.

F. Trubee Davison, Chairman of the new National Crime Commission, told yesterday something of that organizations plans for gathering crime statistics as a basis for its preventive work.

One of Mr. Davison's ideas is to send out a questionnaire to local crime committees throughout the country. They in turn, would not accept figures furnished by any one punitive agency, but would try to get at least an accurate estimate of the character and quantity of crime in their particular communities.

"We shall first get an expert crime statistician," Mr. Davison said, "and provide him with an adequate staff. The details of the plan will then be up to the statistician."

"There were only sixteen murders in London in 1924, their statistics show," Mr. Davison continued. "That was a decrease from twenty-seven murders in 1923. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician of the Prudential Insurance Company of America (who has been mentioned favorably for the position of statistician for the National Crime Commission) has reported that Jacksonville, Fla., a city of about 100,000 population, had three or four times as many murders as London in 1924.

"I can't speak for the commission, but it seems to me personally that murder should be our first consideration. We should find out all we can about murders in this country—not only how many there were, but wherein justice and the punitive agencies fell down, if they did."

Mr. Davison, who was empowered by the commission to name an Executive Committee and a Finance Committee Chairman, said he had been giving thought to these matters, but probably would not make the appointments for a week or more.

It was rumored yesterday that among the statistics to be gathered by the commission would be figures to show just how many crimes of violence prohibition has been responsible for. Mr. Davison refused to discuss that possible phase of the organization's work before its activities actually have begun.

WARNS OF NIAGARA DRAINS.

Hoover Says Uncurbed Diversion of Water Will Spoil Beauty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Secretary Hoover said today that Niagara Falls was "committing suicide" and that unless diversion of water for power purposes was properly controlled and some engineering work done to direct the flow of water over the falls the scenic beauty of the famous resort gradually would be destroyed.

Mr. Hoover said there was evidence that the flow of water was losing volume and was being drained away from the shores of both the American and Canadian wings. If this continued gorges woul be formed through which the greater volume of water would pass, thus leaving the wings dry.

That such a condition would be permitted to develop, Mr. Hoover did not believe. He felt that precautions would be taken during the next ten years and that the scenic beauty of the falls would be preserved.

GARMENT WORKERS PLAN 2-HOUR TIE-UP

Dispute Within Union Leads to Call by Joint Committee of Action for Stoppage.

MAY CLOSE WHOLE TRADE

Move to Demonstrate Strength in Fight to Enforce Three Locals' Demands.

The trouble in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union affecting Locals 2, 9 and 22, the three largest constituents of the organization, reached a climax yesterday when a call for a two-hour stoppage in the entire industry at 3 o'clock on Thursday, Aug. 20, was issued by the Joint Committee of Action. This step came as a culmination of the struggle which followed the ousting of the officials of the three locals for what the International declared was Communist "boring from within" the union. The expelled officials have contended that the charge of communism was a "smoke-screen" behind which were long-standing disagreements between the two sides on questions of union government, dues and other internal problems.

The stoppage was called, according to the Joint Committee, for the purpose of permitting workers to meet in ten halls in order to reiterate the demands of the three locals for the reinstatement of the ousted officials, for the resignation of President Morris Sigman of the International and for the reorganization of the Joint Board. A special reason for the action, it was said, was to protest against the alleged interference of the manufacturers in the union quarrel. A discussion of a general continuous stoppage to enforce the demands is expected.

The statement issued yesterday by Louis Hyman, Chairman of the committee, in explanation of the stoppage, says:

"From the beginning of our fight with the machine of the Joint Board, we have demonstrated that 60 per cent. of the members have renounced their affiliation with the Joint Board, that they are with us, and refuse to recognize that the Joint Board any longer has a moral or legal right to talk for the workers and act as their representatives.

"The discredited officials have used all means in their power to force the workers to recognize them and to take orders from them; but it has all been in vain. The workers would not, under any circumstances, have anything to do with them. They never elected them and they are not going to be forced to recognize leaders who have captured the offices with the aid of strong-arm men.

"Their main supporters are the manufacturers who are doing everything in their power to force the workers to recognize these self-appointed officers. The Dress Manufacturers Association sent out letters to their members asking them not to engage any workers who have not working cards signed by the appointed manager of the Joint Board, and not to deliver any mail to the chairmen except that sent from the Joint Board office. Also hundreds of cases have been reported to us where the association threatened to expel from the organization their own members who were unwilling to discharge their workers for refusing to go to the Joint Board and pay dues. In our opinion such tactics are not only unfair but criminal.

"As a protest against this interference of the manufacturers in our internal union affairs, and their efforts to dictate to our workers what officials they shall recognize and where they shall pay dues, we have decided to ask the workers to stop work on Thursday, Aug. 20, at 3 o'clock, as a warning to the manufacturers to keep hands off. The workers will gather in ten of the largest halls in the city and there discuss the necessity of calling a general stoppage throughout the whole cloak and dress industry to prevent the manufacturers from taking advantage of the present situation to take away the rights and reduce the standard of the workers.

"Thursday's stoppage will also demonstrate, once more, that the vast membership of the union stands with us in this fight, and both employers and union officials will be forced to recognize the fact and act accordingly."

A decision for a further stoppage of work in the three locals would affect about 30,000 workers. The Joint Committee, it was said, expects that a majority answer to their call for a stoppage would force the International and the Joint Board to yield.

GEO. F. BAKER DENIES ZONE LAW VIOLATION

Action Brought to Get Review of Business Restriction in Murray Hill Section.

A contention that "a professional office building" owned by George F. Baker and J. P. Morgan at 17 East Thirty-eighth Street, at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue, was not a violation of the zoning law prohibiting business buildings in the Murray Hill section was made in an answer filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mr. Baker, his son, George F. Baker Jr., and other residents of the neighborhood, including Gherardi Davis, Charles L. Riker, Florence B. Loew, William Skinner and Joseph F. Stillman.

The answer was filed in the suit brought by the 257 Madison Avenue Corporation, owner of the property at that address, for a court review of the decision by the City Board of Appeals upholding the decision of the Superintendent of Buildings, which denied the right of the plaintiff to build a high business building there. The residents of the neighborhood got permission to intervene in the case in order to uphold the decision of the city authorities.

Mr. Baker and the other defendants alleged yesterday that the plaintiff knew when it purchased the property in January, 1924, that it could be used only for residential purposes, and also alleged that the plaintiff will be able to put the property to profitable use for such purposes.

In answering the allegations of the plaintiff that the building owned by Mr. Morgan and Mr. Baker is a violation of the restriction in the Murray Hill section, the defendants submitted an affidavit by W. C. Heinkel, private secretary to George F. Baker Jr., who said that he managed the property known as the Professional Building at 17 East Thirty-eighth Street, which, he said, was occupied by fifty tenants, all of whom were doctors or dentists. He said that Mr. Baker bought the property in 1909, not as an investment nor as a taxpayer, but to prevent the erection there of a twenty-story office and loft building which would have adjoined his residence at 256 Madison Avenue.

VENICE ISOLATION MAY END.

Auto Road Is Planned Joining Island to Mainland.

VENICE, Aug. 13 (AP).—Loss of the isolation which the City of Venice, as an island, has enjoyed for centuries is threatened by the arrangements which have been completed for the construction of an automobile road connecting Venice with Padua. Later, it is planned to join this road to the Padua-Milan road.

The importance of this project arises from the fact that hitherto the City of Venice has never been joined by road to the rest of Italy, the only communication being by boat or by train, crossing the lagoon by means of a pontoon bridge.

The usual polemics are expected between the proponents and the opponents of the plan for the "de-islandization" of Venice. Final decision on the plan rests with the Government.

CROSS-COUNTRY BY WATER

Three Californians in Launch Reach Chicago on Way to New York

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP).—Three modern explorers from Los Angeles have anchored their motor launch in the Chicago River after completing 3,500 miles of a 5,000-mile cross-country jaunt in a boat.

The party will leave this week to negotiate the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence and the Hudson to New York. They left Astoria, Ore., May 20, and hope to reach New York in September.

They are traveling in a 19-foot craft and, with the exception of a short portage over the continental divide, have covered the entire distance by water.

Captain John Hoag, a writer, Frank Wilton, a photographer, and Valentine Woodbury, a Los Angeles business man, are making the trip with a dog as mascot.

TWO GIRLS MAY TRY CHANNEL TUESDAY

AMERICAN IS CONFIDENT

Her Coach, However, Complains That She Will Not Follow His Instructions.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 13 (AP).—Both the girls who aspire to the honor of swimming across the English Channel are again training for the feat, and swimming fans may have the satisfaction of seeing them attempt to make the crossing at the same time, on Aug. 18 or thereabouts.

Miss Gertrude Ederle of New York, who was to have started last week-end, has completely recovered from the slight indisposition which prevented her attempt, and is again in active training.

Miss Lillian Harrison of Buenos Aires, who announced while in a state of collapse after her unsuccessful fourth try at swimming the waterway on Monday that she would not make another attempt, now says she hopes to try again.

While Miss Harrison is easy to train, preparing Miss Ederle for the long grind is presenting difficulties to her trainer, Jabez Wolfe. To begin with, he disagrees as to methods with her chaperone, Miss Vieta of the Women's Swimming Association of New York. Wolfe, who has made eighteen attempts to cross the Channel, contends that Miss Ederle ought to do more work in the water. Miss Vieta holds for road work, with about two hours in the water daily.

Miss Ederle's trainer makes no secret of his disapproval of some of the training methods indulged in by his charge. He has told newspaper correspondents repeatedly that she does not do as he tells her and refuses to follow his instructions. Miss Vieta, on her part, says the trainer may know all about the swimming conditions in the Channel, but that he knows very little about the temperament and feelings of an 18-year-old girl swimmer.

Meanwhile those outside the training camp, who have watched Miss Ederle's activities are certain that she has a splendid chance of performing the feat. Her strong physique continues to attract much attention.

Miss Ederle's hard training is not preventing her from putting on weight. She said today that she was about fourteen pounds heavier than when she left New York. She is fully confident of success in her coming attempt.

Baisville, an English swimmer, has arrived at Cape Gris-nez, planning to attempt the Channel swim in a few days.

BABY ABANDONED IN CHURCH

Girl, 3 Weeks Old and Expensively Dressed, Taken to Bellevue.

Abandoned by a young couple in St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church, 310-312 East Thirty-seventh Street, last night, a 3-weeks-old baby girl, expensively dressed, was taken to the Foundling ward at Bellevue. The police are attempting to trace the couple, who left the baby in a pew during the evening service.

Mrs. Sarah Jordan of 250 East Fortieth Street told the police she entered just behind the couple. The woman carried a bundle, she said. They sat down several pews ahead, Mrs. Jordan said, and left hurriedly, without the bundle. She notified Michael Sheehan, janitor of the church, who called Patrolman John Kubiscek of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station.

The baby is described as having reddish hair, gray eyes and a fair complexion. She was dressed in white linen, white wool jacket and white bonnet trimmed with pink, and bootees of white leather.

GREENFIELD HURLS GIANTS TO VICTORY

CHAMPIONS AT HOME TODAY

Will Meet Robins in Two Games at Polo Grounds—Get Even Break in Pittsburgh.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—The good right arm of Kent Greenfield and the potent ash bludgeon of Frank Frisch were a combination that gave the Giants a 4-1 victory and an even break in the Pittsburgh series this afternoon.

While Frisch was strong-arming three Pirate pitchers for four hits Greenfield held the local wrecking crew to five safeties. He was in serious straits only twice during the nine innings and easily hung up his third victory in three starts against the terrors of the main.

As a result of the Giants' victory quotations on the Pittsburgh pennant chances fell off five points in a bearish market today. The mercurial Pittsburghers are still afraid they will have to hear the world's series over the radio. They still entertain a deep respect for the Giants, who outplayed the home favorites so widely today that the innocent bystander might have supposed that it was the Phillies who were receiving with their chins.

Still, the statistics show tonight that almost five games separate the two leaders. The series, which was to decide the race, decided nothing except that the Pirates, protecting their four-and-a-half-game lead and splitting even, showed steadiness under pressure and refused to break and run. If the Corsairs can keep step with McGraw's men for the rest of the run New York supremacy will be a dreaded memory of the past.

Giants at Their Best.

It was an uneventful game. The youth Greenfield outpitched Vic Aldridge, Babe Adams and Tom Sheehan both ways from the jack. The Giants played capital baseball and the Pirates' work was loose, especially behind the bat, where "Oil" Smith, the only catcher who can outtalk Gabby Hartnett, was found guilty on two points—a schoolboy muff and a passed ball.

The game also ran true to form in climatic conditions. For the third time during the series it was necessary to stop hostilities while a crew of groundtenders got in some nifty work with the tarpaulins. One of the features of the series has been the clean, crisp and workmanlike performances of the local chapter of the Groundkeepers' National Association. They were slightly weak in running the canvas back and their work in the box could be improved upon, but these are minor details that will be corrected with more experience.

It was in the sixth inning, with the Giants at bat, that Charley Moran advised the players to dodge the raindrops. In about twenty minutes they were back at it hammer and tongs, with the Pirates just as bad on a muddy field as they had been on a dusty terrain.

Just before time was called, Travis Jackson, the wizard of Waldo, hurt his knee again while taking a cut at the ball, and when play was resumed Earl Webb, the Giants' new outfielder, finished Jackson's turn with the willow. Frisch then shifted to short and Lindstrom took up the social duties at third.

Jackson, it is believed, will be able to play in New York tomorrow. He was yanked more as a precautionary measure, because of the sloppy state of the diamond.

Greenfield, the best young pitcher of the year, had the Pirates going through one of the finest exhibitions of Indian club swinging ever seen in this neck of the woods. He was steadfast, cool and determined, a tough combination when linked up with a flaming fast ball and a tricky, twisting curve. Kent snaked his hook over the corners, but in the tight places it was the fast one that shot through on a clear track.

Pirates Flare Up Only Once.

Only once did the Pirates flare up in a real rally. Carey and McInnis doubled to centre with one out in the third, Max scoring, but Greenfield sat down hard on Cuyler and Barnhart.

In the fourth Wright's walk and Smith's single put the Pirates on first and third with two out, but on a double steal Snyder was waiting for Wright at the plate. Again in the fifth the Buccaneers threatened. McInnis walked and Kelly dropped Cuyler's pop-up with two dead. The rally blew over when Southworth shagged Barnhart's long fly.

Aldridge gave a poor exhibition. Although not hit frequently, his wildness was chronic and incurable, and in the seventh, after Southworth had walked and Frisch doubled, Victor was asked to take the air. Old Babe Adams, who must be 44 by now, finished out the inning. A pinch hitter batted for him pronto and Sheehan rounded out the fracas.

The Giants rallied again in the third and hung up three runs. One out when Southworth walked. Frisch singled and Young doubled to right, scoring Southworth and moving Frank to third. Meusel hit to Traynor, but Smith muffed the plateward toss. This schoolboy exhibition moved Young to third and Meusel to second, and the former scored when Terry hit a short fly to Barnhart, whose throw home was weak and wide.

Southworth's base on balls and Frisch's two-base crack brought Adams to the mound on the run in the seventh, but before Babe could extinguish anything, Southworth had come home on Meusel's lift to Carey.

Cuyler clouted one to right in the eighth after a bad day at bat, but when he got to third he oversild and was nailed by Lindstrom. Kiki hit the mud and simply kept on sliding.

Before the game Bill McKechnie, the local skipper, was called to the plate and handed a clock by a delegation of orators.

After making three singles and a double, Frisch grounded sharply to Moore on his fifth parade to the plate. The harder the crowd booed the harder Frankie hit.

The Giants left for home tonight to swap compliments with the Robins in a double-header at the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

It was a sorry Western trip. The Giants lost three out of four in St. Louis and Cincinnati, won in the same ratio at Chicago and split even here. Seven won and nine lost. Well, that's that.

PITTSBURGH POLICE WAR ON GAMBLERS

Detectives Invade Forbes Field on Complaint That Thousands Were Being Bet on Giant Series.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—Thirty city detectives under command of Lieutenant Peter Conners crowded into Forbes Field today at the closing game of the Giants-Pirates series with orders from Police Superintendent Brophy to halt betting in all its forms at any cost.

It is said thousands of dollars have changed hands at the field since the series with the New Yorkers opened, and scores of complaints have been received by the police head from various individuals. Officials of the club have tried in vain, it is said, to prevent gambling in the park.

One well-known local gambler is said to have dropped $30,000 in the past few days, according to a report reaching Superintendent Brophy. Other thousands also have been lost and won, according to Brophy.

The gamblers, it is said, gather in the aisle at the back of the first floor in the grand stand and make their bets. Many wagers are laid outside the park before the game begins, but most of the big bets are said to be made after the pitchers start to warm up. Still other bets are made on the innings in which the teams score.

Lieutenant Conners was instructed to put his men into the park and to halt betting in all its forms. The congregations of gamblers in the rear of the first floor were to be scattered and arrests were to be made if evidence of actual gambling could be obtained.

40 CYCLISTS ENTER RACE.

Star Field in 25-Mile Title Event at Velodrome Here Tonight.

Forty riders are scheduled to take part in the twenty-five-mile national championship bicycle race at the New York Velodrome tonight. Cecil Walker, the American all-around champion, and Alf Goullet, former titleholder, are among those who will start. Other headliners slated to compete are Willie Spencer, Alex MacBeath, Alf. Grenda, Reggie McNamara and Bobby Walthour. The race will be paced and special prizes will be awarded for lap honors as well as for first place.

Two other feature events are on the program, one a twenty-mile motor paced event and the other a three-cornered one-mile match race. In the motor-paced grind the starters will be Clarence Carman, former American pace champion; Larry Gaffney, Frank Keenan, Dan Pichione, Sam Gastman and Amelio Capazone. In the match race Arthur Spencer, Orlando Piani and Caesar Moretti will clash. There also will be a two-third mile professional handicap and three races for amateurs, consisting of a half-mile handicap, a two-mile class A invitation and a one-mile class B invitation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—Washington and Cleveland divided a double-header today, the champions bowing to superior pitching by Uhle in the first game and taking the second with a ninth-inning rally to break a tie. The scores were 2 to 0 and 5 to 4.

Zachary pitched well against Uhle in the opener, but had two bad innings. In the final Karr was hit hard by the champions. Walter Johnson opposed Karr, but gave way to Gregg in the fifth inning, the latter getting credit for the victory.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—Twelve students from the July and August citizens' military training camps today were designated by Colonel J. Malcolm Graham, camp commander, to represent Plattsburg Barracks at the national rifle matches to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, from Aug. 20 to Sept. 20.

The appointment is a coveted honor, as it requires not only that students shall be graduates of the red, white and blue courses, but shall indicate a sense of responsibility, be of good character and show ability to become instructors in rifle practice.

Those appointed were:

YANKEES EMBARK ON TOUR OF WEST

Open Series in Capital Today, Then Go to Detroit—Rain Cancels White Sox Game Here.

By HARRY CROSS.

Rain yesterday washed out the final game of the home stand of the Yankees in the Stadium against the White Sox and last night the Hugmen pulled up stakes for Washington, to be gone on a tour during which they will make their third and last Western trip of the season and which will not bring them back to the home grounds until Sept. 1. The Yanks will meet the Senators in the Capital today and after also playing there tomorrow and Sunday the club goes West to open in Detroit on Tuesday.

The Yanks have done better on this last home stay than on their former road trips and have overcome several jinxes which have been bothering their mental attitude all season. They are no longer possessed with the complex that it is impossible for them to win more than two games in a bunch.

The pitching has improved during the last few weeks and they will start this trip with the prospect of getting better work on the mound than at any other time this season. A good start is likely to make the Yanks surprise even themselves. They have surprised every one else all season by in-and-out playing, and a consistent stretch of games will certainly give them a higher opinion of themselves.

Yesterday's game was called off on account of wet grounds, and the Yanks didn't relish the postponement because of the highly respectable game they played against the White Sox on Wednesday. Behind the kind of pitching Pennock showed the Yanks may usually be expected to play their best. It gives them the right kind of confidence. And they need it.

The Giants are back today after a disastrous Western trip to attempt to retrieve their slipping fortunes against Brooklyn in a double-header at the Polo Grounds. The opening game will start at 1:30 o'clock and the inter-borough strife, which has been stirring up the interest of the fans of the two boroughs, will begin where it left off a few weeks ago.

The Giants will battle Brooklyn, Boston and the Phillies before they take on the last invasion of the Western clubs next Tuesday. At the pace the Giants have been going none of these games looks like anything particularly easy.

The Robins, who had no league game scheduled yesterday, nevertheless had a profitable day, going back to fourth place as the Cardinals lost to the Cubs.

U. S. TENNIS STARS FACE BRITISH TODAY

TODAY'S INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

3:00 P. M.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory (United States) vs Miss Kathleen McKane (England).
4:00 P. M.—Miss Helen Wills (United States) vs. Miss Joan Fry (England).
5:00 P. M.—Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy (United States) vs. Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey (England).

The Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman trophy, won by the United States in 1923 and by England in 1924, will be in competition again when the tennis matches between the international women's teams representing the two countries begin this afternoon in the stadium of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. The first day's program will consist of three matches, two singles and one doubles, during which the two top-ranking players on each team and the No. 2 doubles teams will be seen in action.

The fact that this year's matches constitute the rubber between the two countries, and that the winner will take the lead in the number of victories, has aroused great interest. However, perhaps greater attention has been aroused by the fact that Miss Helen Wills and Miss Kathleen McKane, the No. 1 players respectively on the American and English teams, will meet for the fifth time, each having scored two victories over the other. Miss Wills defeated Miss McKane in the international matches in 1923 and again in the national championship that year, while Miss McKane defeated Miss Wills in the 1924 Wightman Cup matches and again in the Wimbledon championship shortly thereafter.

This afternoon Miss Wills will meet Miss Joan Fry, the sensational young English girl, and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory will oppose Miss McKane. Mrs. Mallory will play twice during the day, for later she will appear in the doubles paired with Mrs. May Sutton Bundy against Mrs. Lambert Chambers, seven times champion of England, and Miss E. H. Harvey.

The two teams are as representative of the best tennis of the two countries as they well can be. On the American side the players holding the first four places in the national ranking are on the team, together with Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, the only American woman ever to win the English championship. Miss Wills, ranked first; Mrs. Mallory, third, and Miss Eleanor Goss, fourth, will play in the singles matches, while Miss Mary K. Browne, ranked second, will play with Miss Wills on the first doubles team and Mrs. Bundy with Mrs. Mallory will play on the second doubles team.

The English team includes the English champion, Miss McKane, and Miss Fry, the girl who was runner-up to Suzanne Lenglen at Wimbledon this year. The other singles player will be Mrs. Chambers. In the doubles Miss McKane and Miss E. L. Colyer, another youthful prodigy, will make up the first doubles team and Mrs. Chambers with Miss Harvey will make up the second combination.

Special trains will be run to the West Side Stadium this afternoon. They will leave the Pennsylvania Station on the Long Island Railroad at 1:33, 2:03, 2:27, 3:09, 3:39 and 4:03 P. M. The running time to Forest Hills is about fifteen minutes.

The automobile route to the stadium is by way of the Queensboro Bridge and east on Queens Boulevard about six miles to Forest Hills. The stadium will be seen across the railroad tracks on the right. Automobiles should turn right at Continental Avenue, pass under the railroad bridge and arch of the Forest Hills Inn, immediately turn right (west) on Dartmouth Street and continue to the stadium. No parking will be permitted on streets west of Continental Avenue.

Braves Buy a Cuban Pitcher.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 13.—Oscar Estrada, outfielder of the Tampa club in the Florida State League, has been sold to the Boston Nationals and is to report about Sept. 5. Estrada, a native of Cuba, played no professional ball prior to coming here last Spring. He is left-handed.

Cards Acquire Bill Barnhart.

JONESBORO, Ark., Aug. 13 (AP).—Bill Barnhart, outfielder, has been sold to the St. Louis Nationals by the Jones club of the Tri-State League. He will report to the Cardinals at the end of the season.

CUBS OUTHIT CARDS AND TAKE GAME, 8-5

Make 13 Safeties for Total of 23 Bases—Hornsby Gets 31st Homer of Season.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs outhit the St. Louis Cardinals today and won the first game of the series 8 to 5. The Cubs got thirteen safeties for a total of twenty-three bases. Manager Hornsby of the Cardinals hit his thirty-first home run of the season with two men on bases in the fifth inning.

Howard Kinsey Again Defeats Dr. King at Tennis

DR. KING SUBDUED BY H. KINSEY AGAIN

New Yorker Gets Commanding Lead Only to Lose 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, at Southampton.

WILL MEET NORTON TODAY

Lott and Major Are Other Two Who Reach Semi-Final Round of Tennis Tourney.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Dr. George King of New York made his second great bid for victory over Howard Kinsey today in the Southampton invitation tennis tournament and, as in the national championship last year, he failed after establishing a commanding lead.

Playing with all the impetuousness and brilliance that characterized his game against Hugh Kelleher on Wednesday, the New York man took the first set at 7—5 and gained a lead of 2—0 in the second set. But Kinsey proceeded to disillusion him. The Californian ran his opponent ragged with a mixture of chops, loop drives and lobs and took the second and third sets for the match, 6—4, 6—2.

In the national championship last year Dr. King led Kinsey at 2—1 in sets and in the third chapter was ahead at 5—2 and 30—0. Only two points stood between him and victory. The Californian pulled out that match as he did today. This sureness of Kinsey, his total lack of nerves and his ability to rise to his greatest heights in a crisis is one of the biggest assets of his game. Last year in this tournament he showed the same lack of concern when Harvey Snodgrass led him two sets to none in the final, taking the next three for the match.

Kinsey in Second Round.

Kinsey's victory put him in the semi-final round. Cedric Major of New York, George Lott of Chicago and Brian Norton of St. Louis are the three other survivors in the singles. Tomorrow Lott will meet Major, and Norton will oppose Kinsey.

Major, the last of the metropolitan representatives left in the running, advanced after a struggle of two and one-half hours with A. H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, Mass. The score was 6-3, 4-6, 10-8.

The play all week here has been notable for the number of hard-fought matches, but none has been more stubbornly contested than was this one. There was hardly a game that did not go to deuce, the rallies were exceptionally long and some of the games lasted ten minutes.

Both men were stroked with terrific pace in driving duels, but the court covering and gets were so remarkable that it was difficult to put over a finishing shot. Three times in the final set Chapin broke through and had only to win his own service to take the match, but Major fought off defeat in stirring rallies. Chapin showed the same sort of fighting spirit in saving himself three times when Major was at match point, but the fourth time he yielded.

Lott Puts Out Bowman.

Lott put out Herbert L. Bowman of New York, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. This match, also, was marked by long and stubbornly contested rallies. Kinsey chopped with great steadiness and kept Norton working hard every minute of the play.

The semi-finals also were reached in the doubles. The surviving teams are the Kinsey Brothers and Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer in the upper half and Lionel Ogden and Gerald Stratford and Norton and Lott in the lower division. The Kinseys defeated Carl and Herbert Fischer after a rather close struggle at 6—4, 6—3. White and Thalheimer, after playing badly off form in the first set, gave a marvelous exhibition of furious driving and volleying and crushed J. J. Lezard and James H. Van Alen of Oxford, Cambridge at 3—6, 6—3, 6—3.

The Meadow Club courts were heavy from the morning's rain when Kinsey and Dr. King began their match. This aided Kinsey's chopping game and was not suited to Dr. King's rushing style of attack. The New York man was slow in warming to the fray and it was not until he had fallen behind at 3—1 that he began to play his best tennis. Then he set a pace that kept Kinsey on the defensive.

Dr. King won his service games with ease, volleying in deadly fashion. His foreband drives continually sent up spurts of dust in Kinsey's baseline corners and behind these forcing shots it was a simple matter for him to go to the net for kills. He tied the score at 4-all and again at 5-all, took the eleventh game after trailing at 15—40, and took the set in the twelfth.

Dr. King Spends Himself.

In the second set the New York man continued to play with the same blinding speed, in spite of the fact that he was tiring from his constant pursuit of his opponent's cleverly placed returns. He took the first two games and then dropped the next two on errors.

He won the fifth only after it had gone to deuce eight times and the effort was too costly. He was spent badly and Kinsey took four of the five next games. Dr. King continued to fight in these games and to the end of the match but he could not fathom his opponent's shots and was always on the run.

Kinsey's keen sense of anticipation enabled him to keep in position with little effort and in the concluding stages he was as fresh and hitting the ball with more pace and accuracy than he was at the start.

Among the spectators was Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador to France. Mr. Herrick at the invitation of Lyttleton Fox, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, is expected to attend the matches tomorrow to see Jean Borotra, the French Davis Cup star, play.

U. S. Rifle Team Finishes Second to Swiss In Tourney at Saint Gall, 5,246 to 5,385

SAINT GALL, Switzerland, Aug. 13 (AP).—The United States rifle team competing in the international rifle tournament here received a setback today at the hands of the Swiss team. Switzerland won with a total of 5,385 points to 5,246 for the Americans, who finished second.

The individual scores follow: Hartmann, Switzerland, 1,109 Lienhard, Switzerland, 1,103—which also beats the world's record; Zimmermann, Switzerland, 1,062; Dodson, United States, 1,059; Reich, Switzerland, 1,055; Pelli, Switzerland, 1,054; Boles, United States, 1,054; Coulter, United States, 1,052; Fisher, United States, 1,050, and the other American, Morgan, scored 1,031.

In shooting from a prone position two Swiss riflemen led the list of scores—Hartmann with 384 and Lienhard with 381. Three Americans followed—Sergeant R. O. Coulter, 377; Sergeant Morris Fisher, 374, and Ensign A. M. Morgan, 371. Other scores were: Reich, Switzerland, 369; Burand, France, 367; Scheuter, Holland, 361; Parmentier, France, 348.

In firing from the kneeling position the descendant of William Tell again beat the Americans. Hartmann scored 376, beating the world record which another Swiss, Staehl, with 394, set at Biarritz in 1912. Hartmann's teammate, Zimmermann, scored 354; then came Coulter of the American team with 350, Pelli of Switzerland with 345, and Boles and Fisher, Americans, with 344 and 341, respectively. Beginning the firing from a standing position, Morgan of the United States made 322.

The International Rifle Union has decided to hold the 1926 tournament at Rome.

Crocker and Wright Succumb to Anderson and Patterson in Davis Cup Play.

LATTER HAS HARD FIGHT

Spain and Japan Break Even at Baltimore When Harada and Alonso Win Matches.

MONTREAL, Can., Aug. 13 (AP).—Australia captured the first two singles matches of its second round Davis Cup tie with Canada on the Mount Royal grass courts today. James O. Anderson, lanky No. 1 man of the Antipodes team, defeated Willard F. Crocker, Canadian champion, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, 6—3, and Gerald Patterson of Australia defeated Jack Wright, runner-up in the Canadian singles championship, 5—7, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3.

Anderson won easily from Crocker, at no time being unduly extended, but Patterson found Wright at his most brilliant form and was carried to five sets to win. For a time it looked as if Canada was to take the second match. Wright never played better tennis and before Patterson could get the range of the courts Wright had pocketed the first two sets.

Then Patterson tightened his game. He evened the match by winning the next two sets, Wright tiring slightly and losing the dash which marked his earlier spectacular efforts.

The deciding set was brilliantly played, Wright fighting gamely against the deadly service and steady placements of the Australian without success. Sensational strokes at the vital stages contributed to Patterson's victory.

Tomorrow's schedule will bring together the doubles combinations of the two countries. Patterson, paired with the sensational southpaw, J. D. Hawkes, will meet Wright and Crocker, playing for Canada.

Spain and Japan Break Even.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13 (AP).—Spain and Japan broke even in the opening day's play of the Davis Cup tennis preliminaries here today. Takeichi Harada defeated Eduardo Flaquer in straight sets, and Manuel Alonso defeated Zenzo Shimizu, 7—5, 6—0, 3—6, 6—3.

Shimizu took the second set from Alonso largely by using a soft lob for placement. The errors Alonso made in attempting to kill it helped. The Spaniard showed superior power throughout the match. His smashing drives for placement down the baselines and his brilliant cross-court game were too much for Shimizu.

Harada's game was flashy throughout. The Spaniard seemed not up to his top form, and apparently tired rapidly. In the second set, with the score 5 to 1 in Harada's favor, Flaquer rallied and expended his last telling efforts in winning the next three games. Harada took the last, to win, 6—4. In the third and last set Flaquer showed fatigue. It was Flaquer's first competition in the United States.

TEAM FOR DAVIS CUP IS VIRTUALLY SETTLED

Tilden and Johnston Expected to Carry Burden in Singles for the United States.

Although the test matches of the past fortnight haven't entirely settled the problems of selecting America's Davis Cup teams, it was learned yesterday that the line-up virtually has been decided upon for the challenge round at Philadelphia next month, according to The Associated Press.

The team, it was said, would be composed of William T. Tilden, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, the latter to serve as playing captain.

Tilden and Johnston will carry the burden in the singles under this line-up, while Williams and Richards are slated to take the doubles assignment.

Johnston's victories over Richards in the two tests between these rivals definitely earned the No. 2 singles position for "Little Bill," but at the same time it complicated the doubles situation, which previously had been thought settled by the triumphs of Johnston and Tilden over Richards and Williams in two out of three matches.

With Johnston in the singles, a post he held without interruption from 1920 until last season, it is understood the Davis Cup Committee feels it would be too great a strain upon him to play three successive matches in as many days. Furthermore, it is felt that the Richards-Williams combination is so closely on a par with the Tilden-Johnston team that this arrangement would not lessen the strength of the American team.

Final decision, however, on the doubles question may not be reached until next week, when the Davis Cup Committee meets again. The announcement of the team personnel is not necessary before Aug. 20, as provided by the Davis Cup rules.

It seems definite, however, that Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, who won the singles round Robin among lesser team candidates, will not gain a place on the international squad. He was picked for the squad a year ago, when Williams was named non-playing captain, but did not complete in the challenge round.

WIENER IS PUT OUT IN JUNIOR TENNIS

JOHNSON OTHER SURVIVOR

Is Only Easterner Left in Singles—Holman, Tourney Favorite, Beats Hill, 6-0, 6-2.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP).—Decisive victories for young Western stars over their Eastern rivals featured the fourth day's play of the national junior and boys' tennis championship on the turf courts of the South Side Tennis Club here today.

Three Westerners—Cranston Holman of San Francisco, the favorite to win the title; Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines and Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas—are in the semi-finals of the junior singles as a result of easy fifth-round matches.

Henry L. Johnson Jr. of Waban, Mass., is the only Easterner to gain the semi-final bracket. Three Western doubles teams and one team from the East are in the semi-finals of the junior doubles.

In the feature match of the day Coggeshall fought his way to victory over A. L. (Sandy) Wiener, Tilden protégé and doubles partner, from Philadelphia, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3. Wiener, despite Tilden's teaching, could not cope with Coggeshall's versatile game on the soggy court. Coggeshall took the lead at the start and held the upper hand throughout the match by driving hard and chopping down the side lines.

Holman won with unexpected ease over Malcolm T. Hill of Waban, Mass., 6—0, 6—2. Holman was at the top of his game, taking the first nine games of the match.

Bell used his deadly chop stroke on the heavy court to outclass Frank Luce of Boston, 6—1, 6—1. Luce was erratic, while Bell sliced accurately.

Johnson won the only match for the East in the singles when he defeated James Doeg of Santa Monica, 6—1, 9—11, 6—1. Only in the second set did Doeg threaten, but Johnson ran out the final set easily.

Holman and Emmet Pare of Chicago won their way into the semi-final round of the junior doubles, defeating David O'Loughlin of Pittsburgh and Lawrence Semans of Uniontown, Pa., 6—1, 6—2.

Bell and James Quick of Dallas were the third Western doubles team to enter the semi-finals when they defeated Robert Elliott and E. D. Jacobs of Baltimore, 7—5, 6—1. The Eastern boys were more successful in their division, two teams entering the semi-finals. There were no singles matches played today in the boys' division.

Junior Singles, Fifth Round—Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, defeated A. L. Wiener, Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—3; Henry L. Johnson Jr., Waban, Mass., defeated James Doeg, Santa Monica, 6—1, 9—11, 6—1; Cranston Holman, San Francisco, defeated Malcolm T. Hill, Waban, Mass., 6—0, 6—2; Berkeley Bell, Austin, Texas, defeated Frank Luce, Boston, 6—1, 6—1.

Junior Doubles, Third Round—Holman and Emmet Pare, Chicago, defeated David O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, and Lawrence Semans, Uniontown, Pa., 6—1, 6—2; Bell and James Quick, Dallas, defeated Robert Elliot and Ed Jacobs, Baltimore, 7—5, 6—1.

J., and Frank Shields, New York, defeated William Bascon, St. Louis, and Harold Krug, Cincinnati, 6—1, 6—0.

Miss Aileen Riggin, national springboard diving champion, nosed out her teammate, Miss Eileen O'Mara, in the 220-yard backstroke. Miss Virginia Whitenack won the 440-yard free style.

The junior mile went to Sam Shields, Louisville Boat Club, in easy style. His time was 26 minutes, 2 2-5 seconds. PADDOCK PREDICTS ATHLETIC INVASION

Sprinter, Returning From World Tour, Says Other Nations Challenge Our Supremacy.

COMPETED IN 100 RACES

Discounts German Reports of Professionalism—Nurmi's Success to Bring Others Here.

Charles W. Paddock, California's renowned sprinter and record-holder, arrived here on the Arabic yesterday from his round-the-world tour. He said that track and field athletics were destined soon to take front rank in international sport and that the tremendous development he noted in foreign fields presaged stiff competition for America if it expects to maintain its supremacy on the track.

There already are three nations, declared Paddock, which have made track athletics their major national sport. These are Japan, Germany and Finland. In other countries the development is growing apace, he said, and in many lands there are athletes who either must be ranked today as the greatest in their fields, or who will be supreme with a few more years of intensive training.

Paddock, who left last March for the Orient, accompanied by Loren Murchison, the Newark sprinter, visited sixteen countries during his tour and competed in more than a hundred races, a feat never before done by an American athlete. New York will see the great sprinter only for a few days. According to his present plans he will leave for his home in Pasadena, Cal., in a few days to resume his lecturing which he has made his profession. He will not compete while here.

Will Keep in Training.

"I would like to remain here," he said, "for the big international meet to be staged in September for I learned abroad that many of the foreign stars are planning to be here, but I must get back home. I intend to keep right on with light training, however, and maybe next Spring I will be back to compete in the East."

Paddock, like Murchison, who returned to New York a few days ago on another steamer, was inclined to view lightly the allegations of professionalism that had emanated from Germany against the two American sprinters. He said he never had received any official complaint from any athletic authorities in Germany and expected none as all his expense accounts had been accepted.

"The writer of the newspaper story that caused the trouble," said Paddock, "seemed to have picked up the information that we received $500 for competing in a meet in Germany. As a matter of fact, our expenses in Germany were considerably in excess of that amount but were in strict accordance with the pro rata share agreed by Germany under the plan whereby all the nations in which we competed covered our expenses."

Aside from this, he said, he had heard no complaints and instead had noted great enthusiasm in track athletics everywhere. Paavo Nurmi, he said, was only one of many national figures abroad who are chiefly responsible for this interest.

Predicts Foreign Invasion.

Germans, he said, were going wild over Houben and more than 55,000 persons attended the meet in Berlin in which Houben faced Paddock and Murchison. Paddock regretted that both he and Murchison were not in the best of condition when they met Houben, but he nevertheless praised the prowess of the German star, whom he considered the best sprinter he had seen in his travels.

Edwin Wide and Petterson, a great hurdler, are Sweden's outstanding athletes, he said. Tani, another great sprinter, is the centre of attention in Japan; Van der Berg is arousing great interest in Holland, while Guillemot, who defeated Nurmi in the 1920 Olympics, has all France stirred up. He soon will meet Nurmi in a match race.

Nurmi, he said, is the man of the hour in European athletics, and his tremendous success in this country probably will lead to a general invasion of foreign stars. "They all want to come over," said Paddock, "to duplicate Nurmi's achievements."

The vanguard of the invaders will be Wide. The Swedish star will be here next month. Paddock said he knew this for a certainty as he had been asked to file A. A. U. papers here for the Swedish winner.

Paavo Nurmi is living now in a sumptuous home of his own, the gift of the Finnish Government, according to Paddock. Nurmi, Paddock said, was lavish in his praise of the treatment he had received during his visit to America last Winter and said he looked forward to another trip to America next year. Paddock said, however, that Nurmi was not the athlete nearest the hearts of the Finnish people. In this he rates only third. Hannes Kolehmainen is still the idol and Willie Ritola comes next. He explained that the latter two spent more time competing in the smaller towns.

Among the countries in which Paddock competed were Japan, China, the Philippines, India, Ceylon, Egypt, Italy, France, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, England, Norway, Holland and Finland.

AN 'AMERIAD' MEET IS HULBERT'S PLAN

Declares Next National Title Track Event Will Be Held During Philadelphia Celebration.

FINDS WEST ENTHUSIASTIC

Head of A. A. U. Reports, After a Tour to the Coast, Interest in Sports Is Growing.

The 1926 national track and field championships in all probability will be held in Philadelphia in connection with the sesqui-centennial celebration and will be on a Pan-American basis, in which all countries of North and South America will be invited to compete. This was the plan disclosed yesterday by Murray Hulbert, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, upon his arrival in the city from a tour of the West and Middle West.

Mr. Hulbert stated that arrangements were well under way and he expressed great enthusiasm over the idea of calling these games the "Ameriad" or "Americs." He pointed out the possibility of developing the meet into a fixture, which would be held every four years between the Olympic Games. He said the plan was meeting with approval among athletic officials throughout the United States.

Mr. Hulbert's arrival in the city yesterday was rather unexpected as he only had reached Chicago from the Far West on Wednesday and it was understood he would make a more elaborate tour of the Middle West. He explained, however, that he was returning to Chicago soon and would continue to Indianapolis, Detroit and Cincinnati.

President Hulbert stated he was very well pleased with the result of his trip to the Far West, where he noted a tremendous growth in interest in athletics. Keen rivalry, he said, existed among Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland for recognition as the leading athletic centre on the Pacific Coast. Each city already is laying plans for sending a powerful track team to the next national championships.

In Omaha, he said, he found great interest in swimming, and an effort is being made there to get the next national swimming championship meet. Creighton University, President Hulbert also reported, is anxious to hold a national championship track meet in its new stadium. He said he planned to return to the Coast in October.

The Champlain Is Won by Riddle's Big Blaze at Saratoga

BIG BLAZE IS BEST IN THE CHAMPLAIN

Rangy Glen Riddle Colt Runs Away From Sunsini in Rain and Mud at Saratoga.

IS FIVE LENGTHS IN FRONT

Splashes Under Wire Eased Up—Avisack Beats Lucky Play in Burnt Hills Handicap.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Racing through the rain and over a track deep in mud, the Glen Riddle Farm's four-year-old colt Big Blaze splashed his way to victory this afternoon in the twenty-third running of the Champlain Handicap. Taking up top weight of 116 pounds and with Alfred Johnson in the saddle, Big Blaze ran the mile and a furlong in 1:54 flat. Gwyn Tompkins saddled the winner, which was the 9-to-5 favorite. By his victory the big chestnut earned $3,975 for Mr. Riddle and he easily beat the Liliane Stable's Sunsini, A. C. Bostwick's Spot Cash and Lee Rosenberg's Sun Pal.

It was a day for the mudlarks and for the first time overcoats and furs were welcome at the course. Rain began falling early in the morning and it was in such volume that the track was hopelessly muddy long before the racing hour. It continued to drive or drizzle throughout the racing.

Big Blaze was easily the best of the four that paraded through the rain for the Champlain Handicap. The chestnut son of Campfire and Queen of the Hills is partial to the mud and never looked like being beaten. Johnson took the big chestnut to the front soon after the barrier rose on a good start from in front of the grandstand. He was able to take the rail on the paddock turn and, while Johnson had him under wraps, he opened three lengths on the run down the back stretch.

Little Sunsini made a vain chase after the flying leader and tired from his efforts, although he was in light under 106 pounds. Spot Cash headed him in the stretch, but in the final sixteenth Sunsini outgamed the Bostwick gelding to take the place by half a length. Sun Pal was a bad last. In the stretch Big Blaze drew far away from the others and won eased up by five lengths.

Big Blaze Is Favorite.

Big Blaze opened at 3 to 2 in the betting, went to 2 to 1 and closed at 9 to 5. Spot Cash was the second choice at 5 to 2 with Sunsini held at 3 to 1 and Sun Pal at 4 to 1.

N. Loscalzo's speedy and consistent mare Avisack once more proved her superior mud-running qualities in the Burnt Hills Highweight Handicap over the six furlongs route, winning in a driving finish over four others, including Sir Deloes Broughton's imported four-year-old colt Equator II, which was making her first start on this side of the water.

With Serenader, Thunderclap and Hunter scratched the mare was made the even money favorite. She was in under 125 pounds, being in receipt of four pounds from the top weight, the Log Cabin Stud's Lucky Play. Johnny Maiben had the leg up on the winner.

J. E. Davis's three-year-old gelding Storm King showed the way from the start, opening up four lengths in the run down the back stretch, with Lucky Play nearest the leader. Maiben held the mare back off the pace until the far turn, where she began to make up ground. She came around the leaders on the stretch turn and Batt led it out in the last sixteenth with Lucky Play and Laplander, winning by half a length. Lucky Play held on well under his burden, taking the place by the same distance from Laplander. Storm King quit. Equator II probably will show an improved performance his next time out.

Watts Is a Winner.

C. P. Winfrey's three-year-old colt Watts was the best of a quartet that ran for the Ticonderoga Purse over the mile route. He was at home in the slop, took all the racing out of Bud Fisher's Panic in a duel down the back stretch and came home four lengths in front of F. E. Brown's King Jimmy. Flames, the second choice, under top weight of 115 pounds, was third.

W. C. Baine's four-year-old filly Normana, at 6 to 1, breezed home an easy winner in the mile dash for three-year-olds and upward non-winners at the meeting. Under the feather of 100 pounds and with little Tompson up, she rushed into a big lead at the start and held the other five at her mercy. She had four lengths on G. A. Marshall's Gold Button, which led the Everglade Stable's Wax Lady, the 6-to-5 choice, by half a length.

Spa Stewards Fine Barnes $200 For a Wrong Position Start

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The Stewards of the Saratoga Association are determined to stamp out rough riding and unfair practices of every description. One case is under investigation and this afternoon the following official report in connection with the last race yesterday was announced:

"On the report of the starting judge, the jockey, Barnes, rider of Cinema in the sixth race of Aug. 12, is fined $200 for having at the post left the position he had drawn and taking an inside position in defiance of the rules of racing."

Cinema was the winner of the race, leading all the way. The inside position in many instances is of great advantage, and according to the draw Barnes should have broken his mount from the extreme outside position.

$15,250 RAINY DAY TO STATION BELLE

DOUBLE CROSS IS SECOND

Charm, Stable Mate of Winner, Finishes Third—2:04 Pace Unfinished Owing to Rain.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13 (AP).—Taking command at the start of each of the two heats and holding full sway throughout, Station Belle, Belwin-Sienna filly, easily won the main division of the Rainy Day Sweepstakes, America's richest event for two-year-old trotters, the feature of today's Grand Circuit racing at North Randall. The race, valued at $15,250, won $5,718.75 for her owner, E. J. Merkle of Columbus, Ohio.

Double Cross, owned by A. B. Cox of Paoli, Pa., and driven by Thomas W. Murphy, was second, and Charm, a stable mate of Station Belle, was third. Charm won the only other two-year-old trot raced this season at Kalamazoo.

Station Belle was driven by Ben J. White of Lexington, Ky. She is a full sister to Sumatra, which won the event for White last year. Because of fourteen entries, the division was raced on the elimination plan. Seven started in each of the two subdivisions, the first four finishing in each racing a final heat to decide the winner.

Station Belle won the first preliminary and Double Cross the second. In the final heat Station Belle, Charm and Peter Hayes raced in front for half a mile, where Murphy made his move with Double Cross. He chased Station Belle for a quarter of a mile, but Double Cross tired in the stretch and finished a bad seventh, Station Belle easily winning from Charm.

As the horses were led off the field after the race a heavy rain fell, causing a postponement until tomorrow of the Rainy Day Consolation and the 2:16 Claiming Pace. Prior to the stake two heats of the 2:04 pace were decided. Both went to Tarzan Grattan, winner of the $25,000 Kalamazoo Derby, with Jakie O'Connor second in each. The third heat will be raced tomorrow.

The summaries:

JUMPER IS BOUGHT BY MARSHALL FIELD

Owner Enters 'Chase Racing With Purchase of Camden's Labrador for $15,000.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Marshall Field is to enter cross-country racing in the United States this season in addition to his activities on the flat on both sides of the water. This afternoon it was announced that he had today purchased the recently developed jumper Labrador from former United States Senator J. N. Camden, Chairman of the Kentucky Racing Commission.

This was the first important private thoroughbred sale during the present season. The price was not announced, although it is believed to be in excess of $15,000, several offers around that figure having been made for the son of Light Brigade and Lardella.

Labrador made his first start through the field on Monday and won in commanding style. It was his first appearance under colors in this kind of a race and he should show great improvement. He is probably the biggest horse in training, standing about 17.2 hands, and is apparently possessed of both speed and jumping ability.

The success of Labrador has led Senator Camden to a determination to turn others of his extensive stable to steeplechasing. Already he has ordered the fleet Dudley, a good winner in the West, to be shipped here in order that he may be schooled through the field.

LIGHTNING KILLS MARES.

Bolt Hits Quatrain's Dam and Two Others at Kentucky Stud.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Arthur B. Hancock received word today that a bolt of lightning had struck one of his brood mare barns at the Claiborne Stud, near Paris, Ky., and killed three of the most valuable mares on the farm. The mares destroyed are Bonnie Mary by Ultimus—Belgravia, Rehu by Disguise—Umbra, and Sun Finch by imported Sunstar—Sweet Finch.

Bonnie Mary was a noted stake winner for the Belair Stable, and since passing into the stud has produced a number of winners, including Quatrain and Bonnie Omar. Bonnie Mary's filly by Ambassador was saved, as was also the colt from Rehu by Omar Khayyam.

Sun Finch was a sister to the noted stake horse and sire Star Hawk. She was the property of Marshall Field. William Woodward of the Belair Stud owned Bonnie Mary, while Rehu was the property of Mr. Hancock. The loss is a serious one, not only to the owners but to the thoroughbred industry at large.

Hoppe Victor Over Cosgrove.

Willie Hoppe defeated Joseph Cosgrove in an exhibition match at three-cushions at the Hoppe Billiard Academy last night by a score of 50 to 34. Hoppe completed his string in fifty-six innings, getting a high run of 5 to 4 for Cosgrove.

37 YEARLINGS SOLD FOR $3,181 AVERAGE

Sum Is Paid for Trap Rock Filly by G. D. Widener, Who Also Gets Sweep Filly for $11,500.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The sixth night of the sale of thoroughbred yearlings in the sales paddocks of the Fasig-Tipton Company was not so liberally patronized as earlier in the week, the unpleasant weather mitigating against a large attendance. Notwithstanding this, the thirty-seven head that came under the hammer brought a total of $117,700, the average being $3,181.

The most important consignments were those from the studs of P. M. Walker and Samuel Ross. Top price of the evening was $15,000, which George D. Widener paid for a chestnut filly by Trap Rock and Federal Girl. This filly is a full sister to Lord Baltimore II. and a half sister to Lady Baltimore.

Mr. Widener also paid the next highest price of the evening when his bid of $11,500 took a bay filly by Sweep and Highest Appeal, she being a half sister to Appellate. A bay colt by Trap Rock and Lady Fern brought $7,500, J. F. Byers being the purchaser.

Mrs. George Sloan of the Brookmeade Stable paid $10,000 for a bay colt by Trap Rock and Moisant. To the Brookmeade Stable also went a chestnut filly by Trap Rock and imp. Star Emerald, this being a sister to Rockstone. She brought $5,000.

Another that fell to the bid of the Brookmeade Stable was a bay filly by Trap Rock and Sister Superior, for $4,500.

STRAWBRIDGE FOUR SCORES AT ROSLYN

Beats Team With Will Rogers at No. 2, 10-9, at Opening of C. G. Fisher's Field.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., Aug. 13.—A red polo team which include Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. in its lineup, defeated a blue team with Will Rogers at No. 2, 10 to 9, here today at the opening of the polo field of C. G. Fisher. W. R. Grace, J. C. Cooley and Howard Phipps played as team mates of Rogers and were not in the least awed by the presence of the young internationalist in the opposing line-up, where he was supported by Thomas Le Boutillier, I. S. Iglehart and R. Penn Smith Jr.

From the opening whistle until the end, the game was hard fought. Every player seemed to be on his game and the issue was in doubt until the final chukker. Strawbridge's work at back made it extremely dificult for the blues to score, yet he found time for offensive work which in the end decided the match for the reds.

The line-up:

RED (10).	BLUE (9).
No. 1—R. P. Smith Jr.	No. 1—W. R. Grace.
No. 2—I. S. Iglehart.	No. 2—Will Rogers.
No. 3—T. Le Boutellier.	No. 3—J. C. Cooley.
Back—R. E. Strawbridge Jr.	B'k—Howard Phipps.

Referee—Major R. E. Strawbridge.

SMITHTOWN HEAPS GOALS ON TORONTO

Long Island Four, With a Handicap of Six, Amasses a Victory by 21 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The Toronto four was defeated by a score of 21 to 4 by the Smithtown, L. I., players in the Thousand Island polo tournament match this afternoon for the Wellesley Island Cup. Smithtown received a handicap of six.

The Toronto players were not up to their usual game. The field was wet and somewhat slippery, but the Long Island four rode hard and shot surely. Earl Potter's horse slipped once, but he jumped free of the pony.

While all of the Smithtown team played brilliantly, Robert Pinkerton's scoring was the feature of the match, with George Kent winning a close second.

The line-up:

SMITHTOWN (21).	TORONTO (4).
No. 1—Henry Potter.	No. 1—R. A. Laidlaw.
No. 2—Earl Potter.	No. 2—Allan Case.
No. 3—R. Pinkerton.	No. 3—Col. Marshall.

Post and Paddock

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Ever since the opening of the meeting visitors here have encountered sweltering heat and humidity. Today at the course those who did not provide themselves with raincoats or overcoats shivered.

Unless tomorrow is bright and breezy the track cannot be at its best for the running of the Spinaway and the famous old Travers on Saturday afternoon.

Preparations are being made by President Richard I. Wilson Jr. and his association for a record crowd this week-end. Given a fair day the plant on Union Avenue will be filled to capacity. Harry Stevens has booked so many parties that it will be a continuous program from the training breakfasts through the later hours.

It was learned this afternoon that H. C. (Specs) Crawford has given up the training of the Queen City Stable and hereafter will do the riding for Thomas H. McCreery's Stable.

Joseph E. Widener's crack distance runner Altawood is scheduled to make his first appearance under silks at the meeting tomorrow in the Geyser Handicap at a mile. He will be asked to take up top weight of 126 pounds.

Notice was posted today that nominations for the National Stallion Stakes of the Westchestetr Racing Association will close on Monday.

Annual Cruise of N. Y. Y. C. Starts From New London Today

100 CRAFT GATHER FOR N. Y. Y. C. CRUISE

Flagship Corsair Leads Fleet on Run From New London to Block Island Today.

SCHOONERS ENLIVEN SCENE

More Than 30, Including Vagrant and Wildfire, to Enter Races in Annual Rendezvous.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.
Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 13.—A great fleet of close to 100 racing and power yachts gathered here today, preparatory to the first squadron run of the New York Yacht Club's annual cruise, which takes the fleet tomorrow from this port to Great Salt Pond, Block Island. It was a rather gray and murky setting in which the flagship Corsair, flying the flag of Commodore George Nichols, arrived here exactly at 6 o'clock tonight to organize the annual cruise.

Still, the famous Morgan yacht made a gallant picture as she steamed slowly in out of the gray sea mists past the Southwest Ledge lighthouse and came to anchor in the centre of the big fleet. Her anchor rattled down just as the bells on the yacht were striking 6 o'clock schedule to the minute, her gun boomed out and the cruise of 1925 was officially on.

Some of the thirty-footers and small schooners were dwarfed by the big Corsair as she swung through the fleet and the flagship's skipper showed some neat seamanship in working the big steamer through the great flotilla, which formed, so to speak, a forest of masts off the Hotel Griswold and which stretched for more than a mile up the harbor.

The weather during the day, as the yachts of various types streamed into the harbor from east and west, was not at all promising. Intermittent rain and mist showers made the day rather disagreeable, but as the Corsair came in the sky to the southward lighted and it looked as if it might be working around to clear up. Tonight Commodore Nichols received the captains and the race committee members on board the flagship and the coming runs of the cruise were discussed. Many dinners were given at the Griswold and the wide porches of the hotel were gay with color during the evening.

Craft of All Types in Armada.

It was a variegated armanda that the Corsair sailed into, ranging from the little but historic thirty-footers to big schooners like the Vagrant, Wildfire and Advance. There were Marconi schooners and Marconi sloops, forty-footers, fisherman type cruising schooners and various yawls used mostly for cruising. On the oily swells to the southward of the fleet lay a squadron of submarines and through the fleet at times passed gray rum chasers from the New London base bound for the "fishing grounds" off Block Island.

Among the yachts lay the gray Nourmahal, owned by Vice Commodore Vincent Astor, on board which the Race Committee will make its headquarters during the cruise. The committee is made up of Gherardi Davis, Chairman; Clinton MacKenzie and Edmund Lang. Tomorrow the first run of the cruise will be made, the great squadron leaving the harbor at 9 o'clock in the morning for the racing starts, which will be made off Sarah's Ledge bell buoy outside the harbor. The prizes for this run will be the Navy Challenge Cups, one cup for schooners and one for sloops, on time allowance, and the club also will give trophies to the winners in each class.

It was truly a notable gathering of schooners that anchored off the Griswold for the annual rendezvous. This type of vessel has been growing rapidly in popular favor and there were over thirty two-masters moored in the lower harbor when the Corsair arrived, and more will join the fleet before tomorrow morning.

Among the racing schooners in the fleet were former Commodore Harold Vanderbilt's Vagrant, winner of both the Astor and King's Cups in former years; Charles L. Harding's Wildfire; Queen Mab, flagship of Commodore Nathaniel Ayer of the Eastern Yacht Club; Vice Commodore J. S. Lawrence's new schooner Advance; E. Walter Clark's Irolita; Dr. Seth Milliken's Shawna; Carl Tucker's Open Kara; Flying Cloud, owned by Rear Commodore Winthrop W. Aldrich; Vice Commodore C. D. Mallory's Mystic and John G. Alden's Malabar VI.

Seawanhaka Schooners Present.

Also in the fleet were several of the new Seawanhaka schooners, including Commodore W. A. W. Stewart's Nokomis; Fei See, owned by Irving Cox; Seven Seas, the property of V. S. Merle Smith; Saghaya, owned by Howard Smith; Venturer, owned by Harold Wesson; W. F. Carey's Flying Fish, Newcomb Carleton's Charmian and Frank L. Crocker's Shearwater. Other schooners were William Greenough's Venture, H. G. S. Noble's Princess, Cleveland H. Dodge's Corona, Rowe B. Metcalf's Sachem, Edward W. Brown's Puritan and many others used principally for cruising.

The fleet of racing sloops was a large one, among them the 50-footer Spartan, owned by H. Wilmer Hanan, out for her first racing of the season, and Iroquois II, owned by F. Earle Kimball. A good class of the scrappy 40-footers was moored in the fleet, including Harry L. Maxwell's Banshee, Hoffman's Shawara, W. B. Bell's Mistral, Hollan Duell's Rowdy, Spencer Borden's Sally Ann, Amory Coolidge's Cockatoo and F. Spencer Goodwin's Pamer.

The thirty-footers came out strong, including in their list former Commodore J. P. Morgan's Phryne, Frank H. Page's Narcissus, Ogden Reid's Lena, S. C. Pirie's Oriole, Edmund Lang's Banzai, H. F. Whitney's Alera, Flint and Halsey's Phantom, H. C. Hall's Alida, Gherardi Davis's Alice, W. C. Atwater Jr.'s Minx, J. H. Ottley Jr.'s Nautilus and Ernest Draper's Blue Moon.

Besides Corsair, there were an unusual number of large steam and power yachts with the fleet, including the Narrada, owned by Henry Walters; Viking, the property of former Commodore George F. Baker Jr.; William H. Todd's Saelmo, T. L. Chadbourne's Ripple, Percy Bartram's Agamma, former Commodore Morgan's Navette, George M. Pynchon's Vasanta, Black Watch, owned by Robert Graves; S. M. Nicholson's Sayonara II, and Rear Commodore J. F. Baudouines Miramar. The power yacht fleet also included Harry L. Maxwell's Ballymena, Ogden Reid's Porpoise, and Daniel Tatum's Frances III.

The second squadron run of the cruise will be from Block Island to Vineyard Haven, a distance of 49½ nautical miles, where the fleet will spend Sunday at anchor.

Yesterday's race from Oyster Bay to New London for prizes offered by the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club had to be called off because of lack of wind. An informal race staged by the Seawanhaka schooners from Stratford Shoals to New London was won by the schooner Fei See, which reached the harbor at 12:30 this morning.

European Tour Is Planned For N. Y. A. C. Track Team.

Preliminary arrangements already are well under way to send a strong track and field team representing the New York Athletic Club on an extensive tour of Europe next year, it was learned yesterday. Arthur W. Teele, President of the Winged Foot club, and Robert W. Rodman, member of the Board of Governors, who now are on their way abroad, are expected to visit athletic authorities in all the leading European countries with the view of drawing up final details for the proposed tour. According to present plans, the New York A. C. athletes will compete in England, Ireland, Sweden, Finland, Germany, France and Italy. The date of the team's departure and other matters pertaining to the trip will be left open until the return of Mr. Teele and Mr. Rodman.

HANDICAPS DEFEAT STARS IN MET. MEET

Osgood Second in 5-Mile Run, but McGrath Is Unplaced in Daylight Saving Games.

Franklin T. Osgood, former Dartmouth cross-country runner, finally managed to place in the five-mile handicap run, the feature event on the program of the Metropolitan A. A. U.'s daylight saving track and field meet held yesterday evening at Macomb's Dam Park. Osgood has competed in all of the A. A. U. evening meets, but due to the generosity of handicappers never could finish among the first three. Last night he finished second in the event, which was won by Charles Solomon of the Glencoe A. C. with a 350-yard handicap. E. Muller of the Mohawk A. C. finished third. He had a 400-yard allowance.

The same liberality in granting handicaps crowded Matt McGrath, veteran weight thrower of the New York Police Department, out of the first three in the 35-pound weight throwing event. McGrath tossed the weight 52 feet 8½ inches, but Theodore Matsukes with a 22-foot handicap won. His mark including the handicap was 63 feet 1½ inches. Pat O'Connor of the Pastime A. C. was second with a throw of 62 feet which included his handicap of 18 feet. R. W. Hanley of the Holy Name Club finished third with 61 feet, including a 25-foot handicap.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap—Won by H. Sims, Salem-Chescent A. C. (6½ yards); Angelo F. Rubano, Boncoeur Club (7 yards), second; John Levy, Greenwood Track Club (7½ yards), third. Time—0:10 1-5.

One-Mile Run, Novice—Won by M. Whalen, Millrose A. A.; Gunter Klincke, Mohawk A. C., second; Anthony Buchodolski, Pastime A. C., third. Time—4:57.

600-Yard Run, Handicap—Won by Pincus Sober, unattached (12 yards); Al Walmsley, St. Joseph's Catholic Club (22 yards), second; J. Hopkins, Police Department (20 yards), third. Time—1:14 1-5.

Five-Mile Run, Handicap—Won by Charles Solomon, Glencoe A. C. (350 yards); Franklin T. Osgood, unattached (scratch), second; E. Muller, Mohawk A. C. (400 yards), third. Time—27:18 2-5.

35-Pound Weight Throw, Handicap—Won by Theodore Matsukes, Greek-American A. C. (25 feet), 63 feet 1¼ inches; Patrick O'Connor, Pastime A. C. (18 feet), 62 feet, second; R. W. Hanley, Holy Name Club (25 feet), 61 feet, third.

N. Y. A. C. SQUAD STRONG.

Powerful Team to Seek Junior A. A. U. Title in Games Tomorrow.

The New York Athletic Club will be represented by a powerful group of track stars in the Metropolitan A. A. U. junior track and field championships at Travers Island, tomorrow afternoon. The points the Mercury Footers expect to roll up in the 100, 220, 440 and 880 yard races, and the one-mile and hurdles will enable them to keep ahead of the youngsters who will sport the silks of the Newark Athletic Club, their rival for the team championship honors.

Jimmy Todd, who ran in "evens" for 100 yards in the national championships at San Francisco last month, is the outstanding favorite in the 100 and 220 yards races.

In the half-mile George Nolan of the New York A. C. heads the list of five mercury foot mid-distancers who will toe the mark, but they will have trouble to lead home such sterling half-milers as Frank Masterson, Olaf Strand, unattached, and Gerald Brown, St. George Club. The mile will find J. J. Theobald, the former Columbia miler, now representing the New York Athletic Club; Gus Moore, St. Christopher's Club; Mel Schaeffer, Knights of St. Antony, and E. E. Sanborn, New York Athletic Club.

The entries in the majority of field events are very evenly matched, the pole vault and shot put being the exceptions. In the former, Reid Boutecou of the Newark Athletic Club and Cornell, should show in front, and Frank Labes, the New Utrecht High School star, representing the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., is the outstanding competitor in the shot put event. There will be no admission charge to the games and the meet will start at 2 P. M.

BRISK BOUT SALE ON.

Advance Orders Reach $24,000 for Berlenbach-Delaney Fight.

With the arrival of the tickets at the Madison Square office for the big boxing show at the Yankee Stadium on the night of Aug. 28, interest yesterday centred in filling the early orders, which were reported unusually heavy. The leading light heavyweight fighters are on the program and the interest is keen in the show. The advance orders totaled $24,000, and, according to Tex Rickard, who is promoting the show, he expects the advance sale to pass the $60,000 mark before the end of next week.

Paul Berlenbach, the light heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Jack Delaney in the main battle of fifteen rounds. Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo will meet Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia over the eight-round distance, this marking the first appearance of Slattery here in any bout scheduled for more than six rounds. Slattery will be 21 years of age on Aug. 25, and therefore will be eligible to engage in bouts of more than six rounds. Luis Vicentini of Chile is slated to oppose Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in a twelve-round bout.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Golden City Arena—Charley Goodman vs. Joe Ryder, twelve rounds; George Balduc vs. Augie Pisano, twelve rounds; Henry Goldberg vs. Alex Moore, six rounds; Abe Rozofsky vs. Phil Cirrin, four rounds.

Rockaway Beach Club—Joe Souza vs. Izzy Cooper, Johnny Breslin vs. Sammy Bienfield and Willie O'Connell vs. Willie Suess, all ten rounds.

Ocean View A. A., Long Branch, N. J.—Johnny Kochansky vs. Willie Davis, ten rounds. Three other six-round bouts.

MULLINS CABLES WILLS TO RETURN

'Things Never Looked Brighter' Says Manager of Dempsey Fight Prospects.

RICKARD ALSO CONFIDENT

Still Expects to Promote Match Despite Fitzsimmons's Claim He Will Handle Battle.

Unscrambling the heavyweight championship situation is the big job before the boxing promoters. Across-the-continent telephone conversations, a cable message to Europe, conferences and statements from the various fighting fronts made yesterday an interesting, although far from a conclusive, day in heavyweight circles.

A tabulation of the developments follows:

1. Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, cabled the heavyweight challenger at Karlsbad, Czechoslovakia, to come home at once as "things never looked brighter for a Dempsey match." Mullins held conferences with both Tex Rickard and Floyd Fitzsimmons.

2. Tex Rickard reiterated his confidence that he would be the promoter of the Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills title fray, explaining he had "every reason to believe that Dempsey would not go back on his agreement."

3. Jack Kearns, who insists he is still the manager of Dempsey, asserted he had the power to act for the champion, and that if Jack could get the kind of money offered by Floyd Fitzsimmons it would be satisfactory to him. Kearns, however, said that he would reserve most of his conversation for the Boxing Commission, which meets today.

4. Floyd Fitzsimmons, Middle Western boxing promoter, repeated his declaration that Dempsey and Wills would meet under his direction "somewhere in the Middle West" next July. To prove that he had Dempsey's signature he called him on the long distance telephone at his home in California and had the champion repeat for Mullins's benefit that the signature was genuine.

5—Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, from his elaborate offices at Fifth and Madison Avenues, again stated that he did not believe Dempsey would defend his title and repeated his title claims. He charged that both Dempsey and Wills were evading his protége and therefore insisted that Tunney was entitled to the championship.

Mullins Has A Busy Day.

Mullins was the most active of the interested parties. First he held a long conference with Fitzsimmons, then moved over to Rickard's headquarters at Fiftieth Street and Eighth Avenue. No official announcement was made but it was learned that Mullins had given Fitzsimmons until Monday to post a "substantial forfeit," which, it was said, was in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The Rickard conference was said to have been about a Wills-Tunney bout. Under the terms of the agreement which Fitzsimmons submitted to Mullins, neither Dempsey nor Wills can engage in a fight after once signing articles to meet each other. This would end all chances of Tunney meeting Dempsey or Wills this season. But it was said that if Rickard clinched the Wills-Dempsey battle he would agree to Wills meeting Tunney first.

While Rickard was discussing his hopes of putting on the championship match he took occasion to discredit the report from California that he had held a long distance conversation with Dempsey and that the champion had rejected all his offers.

"Just tell the world that I never called up Jack, and that, therefore, he never turned me down. I can state this much positively, that I have in my possession a telegram from Dempsey under date of Aug. 12, in which he said that he would fight for me if I got Wills's signature. I guess that should show that I am not yet ready to take the count."

Rickard Refuses to Talk.

Rickard was reluctant to say anything about his conference with Kearns. It was said that all announcements would be withheld until after the State boxing body passes on Kearns's case. At present Kearns is on the black list in New York State and if the ban is lifted he probably will have an important part to play in several prospective bouts here. The first one, it was learned, would be the Mickey Walker-Dave Shade battle for the world's welterweight title, to be staged at the Yankee Stadium under Rickard's direction on Sept. 29.

The usually silent Paddy Mullins, whose interviews are limited to two words, "Yes" and "No," broke his rule and added a few words. He said that things were brewing but nothing had been settled. He repeated that Fitzsimmons had made a great offer, if he could live up to it. However, he would make no comment on his meeting with Rickard.

Mullins started his busy day shortly after midnight yesterday, beginning with his talk with Dempsey. After he got Dempsey's word that all was well with Fitzsimmons, he lingered for a few hours with Fitzsimmons at the Astor. Paddy said he was much impressed with the way Jack had talked and that he was satisfied that Dempsey was sincere when he said he was ready to give Wills a chance to meet him. He said that regardless of who promoted the fight he was prepared to go ahead and prepare Wills for the battle.

"Things never looked brighter for Harry," he remarked.

Fitzsimmons Marks Time.

Fitzsimmons kept open house in his suite on the ninth floor at the Astor. There was a constant flow of newspaper men all the afternoon.

"You can't make it too strong for me," he said, "when you state that I'll be the promoter of the Dempsey-Wills fight. Dempsey is with me to the finish and I have every reason to believe hat Mullins and Wills will accept what I have to offer. As for this talk of Wills not wishing to fight Dempsey out of New York for fear of getting in bad with the State Boxing Commission, I wish to say that Wills has nothing to say about where the fight will be put on. Dempsey, as champion, reserves that right, and he has announced that he would not fight in New York. That's plain enough. I am going right ahead with my plans for putting on this battle. Nothing has developed since my visit here to discourage me or to cause me to change those plans. The fight will be twelve rounds, no decision."

Kearns spent most of his time traveling between the Alamac Hotel and Madison Square Garden. He said that most of his efforts were in behalf of Walker, for whom he arranged three fights, the first against either Sailor Freedman or Panama Joe Gans in Chicago on Aug. 21, the second between Walker and Jock Malone, either in Cleveland or St. Paul on Sept. 1 or 2, and the third between Walker and Pinkey Mitchell in Milwaukee on Sept. 12.

He was far from downhearted over the recent Dempsey developments and seemed certain that all would be well between him and the champion before long.

But the final decision is confidently expected by boxing men to take place at the commission meeting today.

Dempsey Verifies Signature.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13 (AP).—A transcontinental conversation concerning a piece of paper took place last night between Paddy Mullins, manager of the negro heavyweight, Harry Wills, and Jack Dempsey, whose championship Wills hopes to inherit some time next year.

Mullins talked from New York and what he wanted from the titleholder here was an answer to this question:

"Is this signature on this contract Floyd Fitzsimmons has been waving at me your signature?"

"It certainly is my signature in person, not a film," Dempsey was quoted as answering, "and it means that I am satisfied with Fitzsimmons's terms if he can satisfy you."

"Well, that satisfies me," was Mullins's reply. "It looks as though we may be able to do business."

That was all of the Mullins-Dempsey conversation, but the champion's press agent revealed that Dempsey also was called to the telephone to talk to Tex Rickard, who once was mentioned in connection with the proposed encounter between Wills and Dempsey.

The burden of Rickard's plea was said to be: "Won't you hold off a little longer on this Fitzsimmons thing, Jack?" and the keynote of Dempsey's response was reported as "No."

Hoff Vaults 13 Ft. 10½ In.; Beats Own World's Record

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Norwegian athlete Charles Hoff today pole-vaulted 4.23 meters (13 feet 10½ inches), which is claimed to be a world's record.

Hoff already holds the official world's record for the pole vault, his leap of 4.21 meters, or 13 feet 9¾ inches, made at Copenhagen, Denmark, on July 22, 1923, having been accepted by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

SLATTERY TRAINING HARD.

Buffalo Boxer in Adirondacks Preparing for Rosenbloom Bout.

Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo light-heavyweight, is taking his fight with Maxey Rosenbloom seriously, for yesterday his manager informed the promoters of the Coney Island Stadium that Slattery had left for the Adirondacks to finish his training for the match, which will be staged at the Coney Island arena on the night of Aug. 21.

Benny Ross, a Buffalo middleweight, also will have a place on the same program, being matched with Eddie Notarbartolo over the six-round distance. The rest of the card will be announced shortly, according to the promoters.

WELSH TO DIRECT GOODRICH

Fugazy Relinquishes Reins — Buffalonian Boxes Tonight.

Jimmy Goodrich, recently crowned lightweight champion by the New York Athletic Commission, now is under the management of Freddie Welsh, former holder of the world's lightweight title, according to an announcement made yesterday by Welsh. Humbert J. Fugazy, the promoter, handled Goodrich while on his climb to the title, but decided to turn over his protégé to the former champion.

Welsh also announced that Goodrich, who now makes Buffalo his home, will return to Scranton, where he was born, to meet Pep O'Brien of that town, at the Scranton Armory tonight. He plans to have Goodrich take on Rocky Kansas in his next appearance, which will be in Buffalo.

VICENTINI BOUT MONDAY.

Will Meet Joe Dundee at the Queensboro Stadium.

Luis Vicentini, the Chilean lightweight, will go into action against Joe Dundee of Baltimore in the feature twelve-round battle at the Queensboro Athletic Club in Long Island City on Monday night. The semi-final eight-round bout will bring together Carl Duane of the Bronx and Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa.

This will be the third meeting between Duane and Leonard. Both bouts are expected to result in plenty of action. Vicentini and Dundee are known for their willingness to exchange punches, while Duane and Leonard already have proved that they are not afraid to exchange blows.

A PLAIN STATEMENT NEEDED.

Democrats in this city will scarcely know whether to laugh or to be indignant at the political manoeuvres of Mayor HYLAN and his improvised manager. The Mayor gravely declares that the Tammany county and borough ticket is not "regular." Therefore he must nominate one that is. By hypothesis, any organization or candidate that does not swear by him is irregular, irreverent and altogether intolerable. Judge COHALAN goes even the Mayor one better. The Tammany leaders, he asserts, are "revolters"; and, of course, rebels must be put down with a firm hand. The firm hand is at present engaged in writing the "slate" of nominees eager to wear the Hearst-Hylan label.

All this elaborate fooling, together with the fumbling and uncertainties in Richmond, Brooklyn and Queens, can be put an end to only in one way. A straight and explicit statement by Governor SMITH is what the confused and humiliating situation as respects the Mayoralty imperatively demands. The Governor can be under no illusion about the chief object of the Hearst-Hylan attack. It is directed at him. To add to the already abundant evidence that this is so, note the fact that two Democratic members of Congress, one in Staten Island and one in Brooklyn, have openly renounced allegiance to their party organizations on the definite ground that they will not go with any movement to break down the power of Governor SMITH in New York, and to destroy the possibility of his becoming a national leader.

Nor can the Governor be blind to his responsibility to the people of this city. It is no secret that but for the sturdy and unyielding stand which he has taken, Mayor HYLAN would have been renominated without much opposition. Governor SMITH, as head of his party in this State, would not consent to further degradation of the office of Mayor of New York. He must have had good reasons for this determination. The people of this city would like to know, they have a right to know, what those reasons are. By stating them frankly and without hedging, the Governor could at once clear up the confusion which prevails in too many minds about the municipal campaign, while characterizing and arraigning his enemies in a fashion to leave the public in no doubt who they are and where they stand.

LEAGUE AND DISCUSSION.

Ambassador VON MALTZAN paid a graceful compliment to his hosts of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown when he remarked: "We have "here a real League of Nations which "may prove much more effective than "the League of Nations has some-"times been." There is much virtue in a "may" and a "sometimes." The Geneva organization has not always functioned with 100 per cent. effectiveness. But certainly it does not detract from its usefulness that societies and groups like the one at Williamstown should be busied with the discussion of the very problems that knock at the door of the League. What Baron VON MALTZAN should ask himself is whether the Institute of Politics would ever have been if the League of Nations had not come first. The League is more than a machine. It is a stimulus and a summons to men everywhere to think on the problems of war and peace.

Beyond that, there is the serious distinction that bodies like the Williamstown Institute can only discuss, whereas the League is called upon to act after discussion. No less than twenty-two problems await consideration and decision at the meeting of the League next month. It is good that men should meet in the Berkshires to debate the implications of race competition, economic rivalries, frontiers. It is better that at Geneva the League will take action on the complaints of the Turks in Thrace, the Greeks in Constantinople, the Hungarians in Rumania, the Poles in Lithuania, the Germans and Poles in Dantzic. If Williamstown had the authority and power to pronounce a verdict in the dispute between Turkey and Great Britain in Mosul, it would be doing Geneva's work.

More slowly than the best interests of Germany demanded, has she been approaching the League. Ambassador VON MALTZAN believes that Germany may be in the League before the end of the present year. At home Foreign Minister STRESEMANN has his own demurrers. This time it is the question of German equality with the other Powers in the matter of mandates over colonies. But the answer remains what it has been. Legitimate German claims stand a much better chance of securing a fair hearing when Germany sits, an equal among equals, on the Council of the League, than at present when she chooses to linger aloof. At Williamstown the German Ambassador was gratified to find himself sitting in conference between an Italian and an Englishman and opposite a Frenchman and a Japanese. But that is very much like the company the German representative on the League Council will find himself in when Berlin's last hesitations and stipulations are overcome.

THERE SHE IS, BUT WHERE IS SHE AT?

The motto of the State of Massachusetts, derived from ALGERNON SIDNEY, says, in Latin whose purity has been questioned, that "she seeks by the sword repose under liberty." Of late we have begun to suspect that "liberty" should be translated "license"; and there is no doubt that a certain number of her citizens are active in seeking to bestow the quiet life upon other citizens by means of stones, clubs, "guns" and other instruments of persuasion. Man is a persecuting as well as a fighting animal; yet it seems a little curious to find that the instinct of intolerance keeps so keen in seventeenth century towns. One would think that long use would have dulled it. Has the unfeeling comic impression made upon the crowd by the procession of Ku Klux heroes in Washington the other day stirred to a deeper seriousness their Bay State brethren?

We said nothing about their little diversion in Framingham, formerly Danforth's Plantation. The State militia used to muster and train in Framingham. The tradition of the sword may survive there. We passed over the embattled Ku Klux farmers of Sudbury, some of them now cooling their wrath and heels in the House of Correction. These sons of the peace-bringing sword may still be inflamed with memories of Concord and Lexington. But when Ku Klux and anti-Ku Klux, 1,000 strong, meet each with other with force and arms at Reading, not all our veneration for Massachusetts can check the utterance of our special wonder. Reading is dedicated to harmony. She makes organs. She is dedicated to quiet. She manufactures rubber products. Yet Reading on Wednesday night and Thursday morning was a battlefield. The State police and the police of neighboring towns had to be summoned. Klan and anti-Klan "rocked" and clubbed one another. Shots, motorcycles, automobiles "hurtled." Some witnesses of the fray, perhaps not too expert, insist that "tear gas bombs were hurled." At any rate, it was a grand old shindy.

Nothing is queerer about it than that a man with a distinctly Eastern European name, "an alleged Klans-"man, was arrested for assaulting an "officer with a piece of steel cable." Forgetting the State motto, the head of the Law and Order League has asked Governor FULLER to prohibit meetings of the Klan because they incite to disorder and riot. The Governor will refer the request to the Commissioner of Public Safety. It is gratifying to know that the Commonwealth has an official so entitled. Public safety seems to be endangered in spots by the endeavors of the Klan and the volunteers against the Klan to live up to the high principle of "Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem," and the Commonwealth is getting a bad name. And what is this we hear off the North Shore? No squeak, no gibber, but the shrill laughter of the ghosts of battleships departed.

TOO MUCH COAL.

Things have not been breaking well for the combined hard and soft coal strike by means of which President LEWIS hoped to terrorize the public and keep his grip on the United Mine Workers. From the outset labor journals warned him that in the bituminous fields of Pennsylvania a strike call would complete the break-up of local unions, redoubling the present drift of miners to non-union fields and non-union wages. A recent repetition of the threat brings word from the West that, rather than risk the loss of their natural markets, the ironclad unions of Illinois and Indiana would dissolve and accept competitive wages.

Not even politicians have been impressed. President COOLIDGE and Secretary HOOVER have steadfastly turned the cold shoulder. Time was when the candidates for the Pennsylvania Senatorship were looked upon as rivals for the honor of backing the miners in the ultimate settlement, as Governor PINCHOT backed them two years ago. Senator PEPPER early saw the mural handwriting and passed the buck to his rival. Last Monday Governor PINCHOT gave Mr. LEWIS a reverse backing. "I am doing nothing at this time," he said. There are crises in which even public interest overtops the appeal of organized labor.

Now comes a momentous ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission. To the demand of the Mine Workers that the proposed 10 per cent. wage increase in the anthracite field be offset by a decrease in freight rates, so that the consumer should not suffer, the commission answers an emphatic "No!" The present freight rates are just, and the ability of the carriers to serve the public adequately and expeditiously must not be impaired. One freight rate it did reduce, and sharply—that on "low-volatile" or "smokeless" soft coal from West Virginia, which, in the event of a strike, will be used in Northern households as a substitute for anthracite.

Mr. LEWIS has gained his present eminence as a hard-hitting fighter against rival leaders; but he is now fighting the forces of Mother Nature. Throughout the world there is too much coal. In England, coal is basic, but the market has been ruined by uneconomic wages, and the Government has been forced to the equally uneconomic expedient of a subsidy. As a result Spain is threatened with a loss of exports. When Poland succeeded in certain German coal fields, it was thought she had obtained a treasure; but Germany finds that she has still enough, so the mines of Upper Silesia are idle. In this country the vastness of the soft-coal fields has been a persistent barrier to complete unionization. By intimidating the public and the politicians, Mr. LEWIS has in the past won considerable wage increases; but the net result has been the gigantic waste of "broken time" in normal periods and now a threatened dissolution of his hard-won organization.

The crisis is one that calls, not for hard hitting, but for hard thinking. Undoubtedly there is room for improvement in the condition of the miners, and the overabundance of coal provides the wherewithal. The solution is obvious to all—fewer and richer mines, fewer miners continuously employed. But the means are far from obvious. Who is to close the surplus mines, divert to other employment the surplus miners? When those questions are answered, our national law will have developed a far closer contact with modern industrial life.

COLLEGE MEN AND INDUSTRY.

A well-known and experienced English engineer, who recently traveled widely in the United States and Canada, was much struck by the numbers of university students whom he found getting a practical knowledge of industry. It was not a question of a college workshop, but of the real thing in large manufacturing or engineering companies. This English observer found employers very keen to obtain the services of such young men. Often an experiment is made with them in their holiday time, and after graduation they return for permanent engagement. Referring to this American practice which is undoubted and growing, Dr. ARTHUR SHADWELL was moved to make an unfavorable comparison with English university men, whom he accused, in general, of indifference and lack of either purpose or enterprise sufficient to lead them to imitate the example of American students.

Apparently this contrast was unfairly made. The head of the Engineering Department of Cambridge University, C. E. INGLIS, at once challenged Dr. SHADWELL's conclusions. He declared that there has been year after year a steady increase in the number of engineering firms which recruit their staff from young Cambridge graduates. At the present time, in spite of depressed trade in England, the demand for them is greater than the supply. It appears that in England, too, students are eager to get temporary engineering work as well as useful practical experience in their vacations. It is not stated whether there, as is often the case here, such employment is reckoned as a "credit" in the university courses.

Whatever the exact facts might prove to be on careful inquiry, these increasing contacts of college men with various forms of industry have great significance. They show, for one thing, the increasing lure of industrial pursuits. To many they promise more rapid advancement and larger rewards than do the professions. But with this new attitude of university men there must have gone a change in the position of the managers of large enterprises. They must have come to a new idea of the value of a college education even in the most practical kind of business. This change is said to be particularly noticeable in Pittsburgh, where the great manufacturing companies are turning more and more to the colleges for recruits.

In addition to the personal aspects of all this, it carries with it important social and public results. Young men thrown into direct touch not only with the processes of industry but with the workmen who carry it on, cannot well fail to get a juster view of the whole problem of labor and its relations to capital under modern conditions. It is not too much to hope, therefore, that out of the multitude of educated young men now going into shops and factories there will arise in the future not only captains of industry but leaders of opinion. Having first worked out for themselves the problems of adjusting the aspirations and demands of laboring men to the principles necessary for the conduct of big concerns, they may be able to show others how to attain similar success, and so become the reconcilers and pathfinders needed by the new industrial day.

"RIGHT AWAY."

To the question which ARTHUR N. PACK, an American authority on forestry, puts to himself in the current number of The Farm Journal, "Can Europe Teach Us Forestry?" his specific answer is that what America can learn from Europe right away is "patience." This sounds at first like a paradoxical counsel to learn at once something that in the nature of things requires long years of waiting. But as President FAIRFAX HARRISON in his translation of the Latin writings on Roman farm management points out, the secret of the success of Roman agriculture was due to patient thoroughness. "Romanus sedendo vincit," the Roman farmer conquered by patience. He was willing to use the fallow. In fact, that was a basic factor in his agriculture. So it is in growing forest crops. We must learn to be as patient as nature herself. In France nature's cycle of reproduction takes often a century, sometimes even two centuries. By her lumbermen, who are her foresters, the seedlings are treated with the care of children. With advancing years they are given more room, through selective cutting, until the cycle ends with the coming down of the "last mother trees." Then the younger forest begins the new cycle with its seedlings.

While, as Mr. PACK makes clear, the system of fixed cycles cannot be applied to our own forests, which contain trees of all ages, it is possible to reach the same result by an adaptation of this patient plan for promoting natural regeneration. In the Black Forest in Germany, where the trees are of varying age as in the American forests, this process is aided with such scientific skill that in one area there is as much timber growing as there was 700 years ago. In Saxony, on the other hand, where nature's cycle has been shortened and whole areas cleared and thickly replanted, though the immediate yield was increased, the soil has become impoverished, with the consequence that the growth has been diminished and the quality of the wood has fallen off seriously.

We must not, however, be patient in beginning this patient policy. If we don't begin at once or soon, all the patience in the world will not give us continuing forests. Protection against fire is, of course, of the first importance. If forest fire could be eliminated, it is said on the highest authority that "two-thirds of our forest "problems would be automatically "solved." But after that only patient assistance of natural regeneration will insure perpetual forests. They must be permitted to renew themselves. We must be quick about it, else the "baldness" visited upon a certain ancient city, now a ruin upon a treeless plain, will come upon our land. Prompt action in adopting a forest policy and then patience!

THE LIBRARY SHORT OF BOOKS.

The Public Library reports that it has nearly 200,000 volumes which should be immediately discarded because they are too soiled or too worn to be circulated. The entire stock has been decreasing since 1918. In that year it numbered 1,107,907 volumes. At the end of last year the figures were 1,041,314. The reasons for the decline are twofold—the great demand for books, resulting in wear and tear that renders thousands of volumes unusable each year, and the lack of sufficient appropriations for buying replacements as well as new works. In order to make up the present deficit the library is asking the city authorities for $253,300. Last year they allowed only $61,000, of which little more than $50,000 went into the purchase of books. There are expensive items of rebinding and repair, by which the library endeavors to obtain a few more months or years of service out of over-thumbed volumes.

These figures and estimates tell their own story. The functions of a library are twofold—to furnish a storehouse of information for reference and to make available books to be read. The second is the one in which the general public is most interested, and at the same time is that which suffers most when the necessary funds are wanting. It is, of course, impossible to meet all the demands for books. This is particularly true of new and expensive publications. But it should be possible to keep on the shelves a large enough supply of the standard works to make it unnecessary to turn away scores of applicants daily from every branch.

The increase in the appropriation for books which has been requested this year will probably be less warmly received by the City Fathers on account of the accompanying increase asked in wages for the library's staff. Both items are essential. They are in the nature of money-saving expenditures. The library without enough books and with 200,000 volumes on its shelves that ought to be discarded fails to perform properly its most important function. A library staff underpaid loses in efficiency through lowered morale and through a constant turnover of personnel. The time has come for New York to look after its Public Library as well as do the other cities of the Union, instead of standing near the bottom from the point of view of per capita appropriations. New York, to be sure, has more branch libraries than have most other cities. But this only measures the demand for books. It is one of the best reasons why larger sums must be voted if the library is to do its duty to the city's population.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Remain Strong Prohibitionists.

Three years ago the Manufacturers Record Publishing Company of Baltimore sent to the leading manufacturers, business men, educators, doctors, engineers and the like all over the country a letter asking them to express their opinion of prohibition as a national policy and of the Volstead act as a measure or means of stopping the traffic in intoxicants. It printed about 500 answers, and they attracted much attention, as, with the exception of 1.5 per cent., they all were in various degrees commendatory of the great experiment and discontented only with its obstructions.

Recently The Record received from a young business man in this city a letter in which, while asserting that he himself observed the law, he said it was his impression that a large number of the people who at the time of the former inquiry had favored prohibition now had come to the belief that it had done more harm than good. So he asked The Record to send new inquiries to those whom it had questioned before and to print their replies. This it now has done and presents the result in a really impressive pamphlet.

There has been not the slightest change of sentiment among these leaders of American industry and commerce except in the way of a deepening of their conviction that prohibition has been of enormous benefit to the nation and to the men who do its real work, while only an almost microscopic fraction advocate a slight raising of the ban on alcohol. They deny that prohibition is a failure, assert that it can be enforced if only the police, the municipal authorities and the courts will do their duty, and declare that a return to the conditions that existed before prohibition is unthinkable by any real lover of the country.

As to the increased efficiency of labor under prohibition and the increased happiness and comfort in the homes of the workers, there is complete agreement. The great employers in every domain of activity tell the same story, and it is confirmed by union leaders and health authorities. Those facts can be taken as proved—about them there can be no more argument.

Those Who Ignore Prohibition.

There is another and less pleasing side to the picture in The Record's Pamphlet. With almost as close an approach to unanimity as the writers of the letters show when discussing the bearing of prohibition on labor they declare that it has increased drinking among those in what are often called the higher classes—the people with money, leisure and an exaggerated idea of their right to do whatever they choose in the way of personal habits.

Correspondent after correspondent fiercely denounces these persons as sharing the responsibility for all the crimes of the bootlegger, and of course for the very existence of bootlegging as a business. There are no admissions that anywhere near as much alcohol now is consumed in beverages as in pre-prohibition times; indeed, this is explicitly denied, and there are frequent references, as answer to those who charge prohibition with inspiring disrespect for law, to the lawlessness of the saloon and liquor interests, even before there was any serious interference with their activities.

Possibly there is exaggeration as to the amount of drinking by the "white collar" folk.

There are persons childish enough to do what is forbidden, merely because it is forbidden, but one can at least hope that they are not numerous enough to justify stories heard about them.

Whoever has an opinion in regard to prohibition should get and read this pamphlet.

Here Is a Chance to Quarrel.

He who finds himself in a group of which several members have read in the August Harper's KATHERINE FULLERTON GEROULD's story, "An Army With Banners," can find himself the centre of an eager and exciting discussion by merely asking his companions what they think of the characters in the tale, and especially of the wife, Netta. None of them will deny that the story is a notably good one, or that it shows the cold, keen wisdom and insight which mark all of Mrs. GEROULD's work. They will all admit that the mother and the son are live, plausible people, with comprehensible combinations of strength and weakness, virtue and vice, but as regards Netta disputes instantly arise.

Some will insist that Netta is as possible as any of the rest, but others vehemently will assert that, far from being plausible, she is not even possible—that no woman of her kind could have acted as she did.

What Mrs. GEROULD herself thinks is shown, of course, by her writing the story as it is, and she is a high authority on human nature and its potentialities; but there are those who say that Netta never lived and couldn't—that a deep abyss yawns between her nature as defined and what she did in hunting down and taking possession of her hopelessly crippled husband after he had manifested every disposition to get rid of her. It is a problem for women to settle; to men, Netta is no more mysterious than are women in general.

Right Man for the Place.

There is every reason to believe that the new National Crimes Commission made a wise choice when it selected F. TRUBEE DAVISON for its Chairman and conferred on him large authority in the matter of selecting the other officials to work with and under him in the highly important task which the commission has set for itself. As an Assemblyman from Nassau County, he can hold this position only until the Legislature meets again, but that will give him time to do the work of organization, for which such men as Judge GARY think him especially competent.

Mr. DAVISON has youth, energy and the right training for the post assigned to him, and his impulse toward public service is strong. What the commission under him will accomplish remains to be seen, but it at least commands the interest and aid of important and efficient persons in all parts of the country, and there is no doubt, at this time, of the almost desperate necessity to find some way to make life and property more nearly safe than they have come to be.

But there is one mistake which Mr. DAVISON and his associates must avoid—they must not let the machinery of the new organization be put wholly in the hands of rich men. Such men have no more need for the enforcement of law and order than have the great mass of good citizens, and the latter should have a voice in the affairs of the commission.

COMMUTATION FARES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The attempt of the New Haven Railroad, and the rumored possible attempt of the Erie, to raise materially the commutation-ticket rates should not be let pass without some exposition of the real facts in the matter.

The railroads tell us that they are not able to furnish the service for what is now charged. Yet the New Haven, carrying an increasing load of commuters, has recovered from the financial straits in which it was ten years ago; the Erie, having more than doubled its commuter traffic in twenty-five years, has passed from almost insolvency to financial firmness; the Lackawanna, with increasingly heavy commuter traffic, has more than held its own financially. All this has happened in spite of war-time and post-war increases in costs of operation.

The railroads, or some of their spokesmen, allege that commuter traffic does not bring its fair share of additional freight business; that motor trucks now haul all except the heaviest loads to the commuting districts. That is the railroad's own fault. When they take, as does one road, twelve days to carry a suite of furniture from New York to a place twenty miles out in New Jersey they cannot blame shippers for using motor trucks. When, as did one road, they damage a shipment, not once, but three successive times—damage it after it has been sent back and repaired at their expense—who can blame either shipper or consignee for having it sent out by truck? If the railroads gave decent freight service within the commuting zone they would get the business even now.

Moreover, the railroads are putting themselves to excessive expense, without need, in their commuters' services as they are now managed. The British railroads, for example, sell three-month tickets; why not ours? It is no more work to make out one of these than a monthly ticket. The British railroads, moreover, have their commutation tickets in the form of a "bought pass" that is merely shown the conductor, and not punched. From far-off South Africa I cite a form of car which seats as many persons for the same area as do our cars, that provides an open corridor through the train, as do our cars, but that, by an ingenious system of door-placing, uses for seating the space which our platforms at the ends of the cars occupy.

Meaning of "Sinn Fein."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to your editorial of today on "A Solipsist," there appears to be a misconception of what the words "Sinn Fein" mean. The literal translation, "ourselves alone," implies no narrow-mindedness, as you infer. The words were intended as a simple slogan to inspire Irish people, struggling to right the wrongs of their native land, to rely on "themselves alone" rather than depend on British political parties to alleviate or emancipate them.

There was no selfish desire to pose as the "solus ipse," "the great I am," the "know-it-all," nor was there any intention to encourage isolation, supremacy, conceit or any kindred characteristics.

In other words, "Sinn Fein" personifies a spirit of self-dependence, self-assertiveness and self-respect, a careful avoidance of dependence on others to fight your battles.

Defects in Water Mains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Aug. 10 is a letter on Why Water Mains Burst. The bursting may happen after the inspector has found the mains to be of the required strength. In laying the pipe sometimes an odd length is required. The writer has seen a 36-inch pipe nicked all around with cold chisel and heavy sledge hammers, and then broken off. This may cause a crack somewhere in the pipe, when there is no more inspection to test its strength. The men on the job do not see the crack, as it may be invisible. The piece is then applied in the usual way, packed, loaded, calked and covered with dirt. Nobody will know of it until some day when the water main bursts.

LUSTRATION.

Like to sweet waters falling from a
 Most strange, most lovely, on my dreaming sight
A radiance fell; to walls of Heaven's high garden
 Had Beauty taken a vase of the Moon's pure light
 To pour out magic streams, her children laving on Midsummer's night.

Soft tides broke luminous. The leaves transfigured all
 In glory trembled. Yonder the horn-winged bat
Flew in and out the Dark Night's portal, hallowed.
 Down her lone winding stair the little cat
 Stole forth to bathe in splendors—Truce to all prey, this hour inviolate!

But none were fearful, perceiving their dear Lady
 Whose ways are ever gentlest. Manners sweet
Hath she for them that lowliest seek her; Dian,
 Cold, gleaming frost-like, came not there to greet
 The humble; nor Oberon feasting where lords and dames of Faërie meet.

And tenderest silence wrapt that scene of wonder—
 Save for those strains discerned of heart full well—
In quietness doth Beauty consummate
 Her blissful work. They in her shrine that dwell
 Do make them prayers of stillness, silence their silver song, their golden bell!

IMMIGRATION QUOTAS.

An Explanation of Their Method and of Their Practical Effects.

New York, Aug. 11, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me, as the author of the argument and compiler of the statistics published by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, in its Bulletin No. 202, issued September, 1924, to correct inaccuracies of statement and misleading impressions in a letter signed Edward F. McSweeney, printed in the Aug. 7 issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Mr. McSweeney says: "When I applied to both Chairmen I was informed that the facts on which the law was based came to them from the Carnegie Endowment in New York. This body in turn referred me to the agents who had worked up the facts. I then went to the man whose argument for the law had been printed as a public document by the Carnegie Endowment, 'International Conciliation' 202, Sept. 24, and the official report of the hearings before the Committee on Immigration, Serial 5, March 8, 1924. When I asked the Carnegie agent for the authority on which he based his facts, I was told that it was all contained in the documents above cited, and this was all that he would say about it."

The facts are as follows: The argument and data to which Mr. McSweeney refers were prepared and submitted by me to the Committee on Immigration of the House and Senate months before I received a request from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to write a brief analysis of the Immigration act of 1924. I may add that at the time that organization entered into communication with me, the law had been on the statute books for some time. These circumstances make it clear that neither the "Carnegie Endowment in New York" nor its "agents" had any connection whatsoever with the preparation of the data to which Mr. McSweeney takes exception.

When Mr. McSweeney sought and obtained an interview with me it was obvious that the information which he possessed up to that time respecting my work was based solely on the summary of my data and comments thereon published in the November issue of Current Opinion. He inquired by what right I had dared to assign the immigrants originating in North Ireland to the British quota and make a separate quota for the south of Ireland. Surely a naïve confession of ignorance of the elementary fact that in the preparation of statistics as a basis for the establishment of a quota plan cognizance must be taken of the circumstance that Great Britain has divided Ireland for administrative purposes into two parts—one British, the other Irish. This is, of course, a matter of common knowledge; but proof of the assertion can be found in the tables supplied to the Immigration Committees of Congress prior to the passage of the Immigration act of 1924, illustrating the effect on entries through the application of a percentage to foreign elements in the United States on the basis of our census enumerations of 1890, 1900, 1910 and 1920. A typical example is printed on page 17, of House Report No. 350, Sixty-eighth Congress First Session.

I enclose a reprint from the Congressional Record of Saturday, June 7, 1924, embodying in an extension of remarks by the Hon. Albert Johnson, Chairman of the Committee of the House, my revised table and explanatory argument. Any intelligent person will find it possible with the references therein given to reconstruct my table from the original documents. The distinguished Chairman of the Immigration Committee of the House, his able colleagues, the late Senator Lodge and Senator Reed, to whom I presented my argument and data, had no illusions whatsoever respecting the basic material upon which a quota system, constructed on the theory of national origins, would have to be built. They had all the resources of the Census Bureau and its experts to rely upon and assist with their advice.

The last clause of subsection (c) of Section 11 is conclusive evidence of the precise situation, and with the conference committee reports and draft of the law before their eyes, the act was passed by an overwhelming majority of the members of both houses of Congress; nor does the Director of the Census in his letter to Mr. McSweeney so much as suggest that it is impossible with the data extant to compute national contributions to the population of the United States with a reasonable approximation of the facts. Therefore, to imply that the members of the Immigration Committees of Congress, and many others not on the Immigration Committees as well, who have devoted years of conscientious and painstaking labor to the study of our immigration problem, were incapable of protecting themselves and the nation from imposition, "fraud" or sinister designs is too preposterous to be worthy of serious discussion. All the facts were before the public. My argument and data first appeared as a Senate committee print on March 8, 1924. It was published as the first appendix to House Committee Report No. 350, Sixty-eighth Congress, First Session. Furthermore, the table was embodied in speeches made on the floor of Congress, printed in its record and other public documents prior to the passage of the law. Again on June 7, 1924, the revised data was printed in the Congressional Record, and finally, many months later, it appeared in an unofficial publication which Mr. McSweeney characterizes as "a public document," on pages 54 to 59, Appendix "B," to Bulletin 202, of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Let me take up another statement of Mr. McSweeney to the effect that "the Administration attitude regarding the 1924 Immigration law is to defend the 'national origin' idea with special solicitude for Japan and the 350 aliens of this racial stock who will be affected by the law in any one year." This is wholly incomprehensible since, as it is well known, our controversy with Japan centred upon the provisions of Section 13-c, which prohibit the entry of Japanese under the quota.

It is nonsense to assert that the Immigration act of 1924 was aimed specifically at the Italians or the Jews, who, by the way, enter under every quota from every land, although partisans of both races shout from the housetops that restriction on immigration is tantamount to prejudice against nations and their religious beliefs. On the contrary, the law is based upon broad general principles with justice to all. It was conceived for the protection of our institutions and the development of American solidarity.

CRIME AND HIGH RENTS.

Suggestions to Make Life Livable for the Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your comment in the Topics of the Times on Aug. 1 regarding the unfortunate criminal tendencies of so many youngsters is comprehensive and timely. You conclude with an old proverb advising prevention rather than cure, and prevention is what we need in coping with such a grave situation.

On the same editorial page one of your correspondents deplored the excessive rents here. He was referring to rentals of retail stores, but the same is true for apartment houses and tenements. If these youngsters that infest the streets, already congested with traffic, had a better opportunity to play under the direct supervision of their parents, there is no question that their potential criminality would be lessened in proportion to the wholesomeness of their pastimes.

The number of proposed philanthropic foundations in the past few weeks encourages me to suggest that instead of building apartments with a central court, or open spaces, along Park Avenue, such type of housing should be made available in the more congested quarters, just as they do in Italy under the name of "popular apartments" for the workingmen.

This sort of an improvement, which incidentally would also provide fresh air in all rooms and thus curb tuberculosis where it thrives, naturally would be opposed by landlords and real estate operators; but my belief is that it should be made compulsory by legislation. The law should provide that not only a certain percentage of the land should remain vacant, but also specify that the vacant part should be in the rear of the building, so that when a square block would be completed on this new plan a very large playground space would be available for all the children of the surrounding houses, where they could be watched from the windows by their families.

If the landowners and landlords would stop to consider the reduction in taxes that would eventually accrue in carrying out such a plan on an extensive scale, perhaps their opposition could ultimately be overcome. The very large sums spent on public playgrounds, with all the attendants attached to them, would be eliminated; the appropriations for truant officers, juvenile institutions and all other machinery connected with child correction greatly reduced.

The result of such an improved environment no doubt would also be reflected in the courts and in the prisons, resulting in a reduction of the crushing expenses now prevailing.

Another advantage of these "inside playgrounds" would be the sparing of so many innocent little ones that are at present maimed and killed in the streets.

Committees on criminality are formed from time to time, but the most they have accomplished is to issue voluminous reports with more or less complicated statistics and theories that fail to yield a working basis for something really constructive. In many cases these reports expound further glory of the pardon system, so that it is no wonder the punishment meted by a court is absolutely no deterrent at all.

Of course, I admit that this proposal will make many smile. However, this is not offered as a panacea, but rather with a view to the future, for which we must plan not remedies but preventives.

RENATO CRISI.

New York, Aug. 12, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot quite follow Governor Silzer, if he is correctly quoted as claiming that severe punishments have stamped out a large part of New Jersey's crimes. If he were to say "for the moment," I might concede it possible, but every one knows, who has studied the question, that from the Stone Age down punishment has never stamped out crime! It is in some instances a deterrent, with certain types of criminality is efficacious, but not with all. When the actual spirit to kill is in a man, he usually kills, and only fears consequences after the act. So it is with many other crimes, though to a lesser degree where passion plays no part.

Severe punishments in one State serve to drive criminals to another for the moment, but in that there is no cure. The question is far deeper than punishment, which at the very best is superficial in effect.

Potentiality for evil is promulgated in close quarters, in bad air, in empty stomachs, in ignorance. If Mr. Gary and the gentlemen associated on the National Crime Commission realize this, and commence with the great task of prevention of criminal instinct, they will find a cure.

Prevention lies in better living conditions for the children of the great cities and industrial centres. That does not mean luxuries nor wishywashy sentimentalities of any kind, but it does mean food for stomachs, pure food, air for lungs, grass to play on, and sun to shine upon them.

Misses Paintings of Ships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why are there no paintings of ships in the Metropolitan or Brooklyn Museums? Is it because a "Flying Cloud" or a "Sovereign of the Seas" is not as "arty" a subject as a steamer basket of fruit labeled "Still Life" or Sir Somebody's painting of a fat duenna captioned "Portrait of a Lady"?

Is it because there are no Conrads, Masefields or McFees of the brush and easel?

Is it because the directors of these museums desire nothing but "rare" pictures (knocked down at Christie's for £100,000) in the manner of stamp collectors?

New York City is one of the world's greatest seaports. To many sailor men who visit the city it seems lamentable that there is nothing in the galleries to remind the generations to come of the golden age of sail—the clippers, the whalers, the China trade, the Horn.

"Hanba" a Polish Word.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to Mr. L. Zelvin's letter in this morning's TIMES, may I say that the word "Hamba," or rather "Hanba," as it is correctly spelled, is really not Russian but Polish. As it is reported to have been used, it seems to be authentic. At Polish meetings the word is employed to heckle a speaker, and its literal translation is "shame."

RAISES 17TH WARSHIP SUNK AT SCAPA FLOW

German Firm, With a Dock Bought in England, Salvages Destroyers for Junk.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The seventeenth German destroyer of the famous German fleet that surrendered to the Allies and was later scuttled at Scapa Flow in June, 1919, was brought to the surface today.

An ingenious and, for the Germans, an ironical method has been used in the salvaging. A wonderful German floating dock, originally designed for the purpose of testing submarines, has proved most successful in bringing the former German ships to the surface of the wild spot off the Orkney Islands where they lay.

The firm which is carrying out the work purchased the dock from the British Admiralty with the idea of breaking it up for scrap. However, the head of the firm, realizing the tremendous lifting capacity of the dock, conceived the notion of salvaging the German ships with the German floating dock.

It was towed 700 miles over the North Sea to Scapa Flow, broken up in two parts and put to work. The same method was used to raise each destroyer. After carefully locating the sunken destroyer by sweeping the bottom of the sea the docks were moored to each side of the wreck. Divers fixed powerful 9-inch steel wire cables and the ship was lifted by manhandled winches sufficiently to enable other cables to be passed underneath.

As soon as the ship was raised a few feet from the bottom it was towed by tugs to Mull Bay, on the Isle of Hoy and beached. Oxyacetylene flames cut the steel in five-foot lengths and the steamer took them to English ports, where they were sold for junk.

Another German dock capable of lifting 40,000 tons has been acquired by the firm. It is composed of six sections and is half as long as the famous Regent Street in London.

Thus the great German fleet, scuttled by German crews, is slowly but surely being brought up from what seemed would be its last resting place.

NO BERLIN WEDDING FOR MISS FLETCHER

She Was to Have Married Ernst von Schmettow, According to Report.

LEAVES FOR HER HOME

Announcement of American Girl's Bethrothal Is Called "Unauthorized."

BERLIN, Aug. 13 (AP).—Apparently the announcement of the engagement of Miss Louisa Fletcher of Indianapolis to Count Ernst Gottfried von Schmettow, a member of a famous Prussian family, was wholly unauthorized by the Fletcher and von Schmettow families. The Count's family is said to have been amazed at an announcement that the wedding would take place today. The reports even mentioned distinguished persons who would attend.

Miss Fletcher, accompanied by her brother, S. G. Fletcher, left Berlin today for London on her way to the United States. The young Count at present is in Sweden. He met Miss Fletcher at a house party in Germany last Spring. They apparently were fond of each other, but beyond that little is known of the affair.

Early in July a dispatch from Indianapolis said that Miss Fletcher's father had consented to the marriage. Mrs. Owen Justice, who said she was Miss Fletcher's aunt, and who was acting as her chaperon in Berlin, gave considerable information concerning the forthcoming wedding to the newspapers.

A dispatch from Indianapolis on July 7 said that Stoughton A. Fletcher, prominent in banking and financial circles there, had given his consent to the marriage of his daughter, who is 22 years old, to Count von Schmettow. The dispatch added that Mr. Fletcher on the previous day, replying to a request from his daughter for his consent, sent her a cablegram saying: "Yes and congratulations."

In September, 1920, Miss Fletcher disappeared from Laurel Hill Farm, an estate owned by her father at East Gloucester, Mass. She was later found working as a farm hand at Ipswich, Mass. She had donned overalls and sailed away in a dory and afterward had applied at the farmhouse for work. Later that year she came to New York to study art.

BETHLEHEM STEEL REPORTED BUYING LAND

Corporation Is Said to Have Acquired 2,000 Acres in Indiana for Mills.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 13 (AP).—A conference here today between Walter J. Riley, banker, of East Chicago, Ind., and officials of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, was followed by reports that Riley had sold to the latter 2,000 acres of land west of the Indiana State Prison. Mr. Riley informally confirmed rumors of the sale of the property, but refused to indicate whether the steel company was the purchaser. The report said that steel mills were to be erected on the site by the Bethlehem Corporation.

GARY, Ind., Aug. 13 (AP).—If reports are true of the sale of the Bethlehem Steel Company of 2,000 acres of land west of the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, as a site for new steel mills, an important industrial development in the Calumet district of Northern Indiana is indicated.

All the steel mills in the district now are in and immediately adjacent to Gary. The State of Indiana has options or is commencing condemnation proceedings on a substantial area in the dunes region between Gary and Michigan City, including three miles of Lake Michigan frontage for a State park.

Creditor Sets Low Value on Property Once Put at $18,000,000.

The issuance of an order calling on the heirs of the late Edward N. Breitung, head of the banking firm of E. N. Breitung & Co., to show cause on Sept. 15, why Harry Lamson of Washington, D. C., should not be appointed administrator of the estate brought forth a statement from Mr. Lamson yesterday that he believed the total value of the estate would not exceed $12,000. Before his death Mr. Breitung was believed to be worth about $18,000,000.

In disposing of his $30,000 estate, the will of Henry J. McGuckin, who died on June 12, explained that "I purposely exclude my adopted son from any interest in my estate for the reason, among others, of his disobedience and disrespectful conduct toward me." The son, William H. McGuckin of 205 East Forty-first Street, was adopted in 1922, according to the petition filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday. KING AND QUEEN SEE 'SUN-UP' IN LONDON

Take Several Guests to Watch Play of the Carolina Mountains.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—The all-American cast of "Sun-Up," Lula Vollmer's moving three-act play of the Carolina mountains had the most agreeable surprise of their career tonight when shortly before the curtain went up for the first act, King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by several distinguished guests, quietly entered the theatre and occupied three left-hand boxes. Friends of the King and Queen who previously had seen the stirring war drama, urged their Majesties to attend and Grenville Collins, the producer was asked hurriedly to arrange for the royal party.

Although no announcement was made a large crowd gathered on the Strand to see the King and Queen arrive. It happened that the audience was made up mostly of Americans, many of whom had their first opportunity for an intimate view of the royal couple. The royal party remained for the entire performance and, with the same absence of ceremony that marked their entrance, quietly left the theatre and entered waiting motor cars as the audience was held at attention by the playing of the national anthem.

The King and Queen, it was said, were especially keen to see the play, as it had been explained to them that the natives of the Carolina mountains with whom the play deals were generally accepted as descendants of the early English settlers.

Lucille Laverne, who plays the leading rôle, received an ovation at the end of the performance. All of the royal party joined in the applause.

Powder Subsidiary Building in West Virginia for Synthetic Product.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 13.—Work has been commenced by the Lazote Company, a subsidiary of the du Pont powder company, on a plant at Charleston, W. Va., for the manufacture of synthetic ammonia. The plant will not be so large as had been reported, however, and at the beginning will have a capacity of 25 tons a day.

It will be a high class ammonia used in the arts, and the production by this process will release that much of ordinary ammonia for the manufacture of phosphates and other domestic purposes. The Claude process, a French method, which the du Pont company thinks is most effective for its purpose, will be used.

It is explained by the company that this is not a war plant, though ammonia can be used in war in getting nitric acid. The idea is to get the nitrogen from the air and the ammonia from coke plants and other places.

The company denies that it is going into the ammonia business on any extended scale at this time. The new plant will not be in operation for nearly a year and the capacity will be small compared with the great volume of ammonia used.

When the accident happened Dr. David C. Bull flew from Mineola to Grande Anse in response to a call from Mrs. Stillman. He returned to the city on Wednesday by train.

THEODORE SPIERING, COMPOSER, IS DEAD

A VIOLINIST AND TEACHER

Had Successful and Varied Career in This Country and Europe, Where He Lived Many Years.

Theodore Spiering, orchestral conductor, violinist, composer and teacher of music and leader of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra during the latter part of the season of 1910-11, died in Munich, Germany, on Tuesday, following an operation, according to word received here yesterday. On his return some months ago from an extended concert tour of the Western States, Mr. Spiering found that he had drawn too heavily on his vitality and went to Europe to recuperate. His wife joined him in July in Munich where surgeons advised him to submit to an operation.

Mr. Spiering was born in St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5, 1871, the son of Ernst and Theresa Bernays Spiering. He received his early education in the public schools and then studied the violin under Henry Schradick at the College of Music, in Cincinnati, and under Joseph Joachim, from 1882 to 1892, at the Royal High School for Music in Berlin.

On his return to the United States in 1893, he organized the Spiering Quartet and played first violin in the Thomas Orchestra in Chicago. He remained there until 1896 and continued his quartet until 1905. For the remainder of his life, his activities in the world of music were many and varied, including violin teaching at the Chicago Conservatory, the direction of the Spiering Violin School and the leadership of the Spiering Orchestra in 1902 at six May Festivals.

He lived abroad for several years, touring Germany, Holland, England and Switzerland as a violinist, serving as chief violin instructor at the Stern Conservatory in Berlin, as musical adviser to the Neue Freie Volksbuehne in Berlin and conducting its philharmonic concerts. From 1909 to 1911 he was in this country, first as concert master of the New York Philharmonic Society, later conducting in the place of Gustav Mahler, the final seventeen concerts for the season of 1910-11.

He later went to Europe but conditions arising from the World War caused him to come back here and for several years he gave violin concerts in this city and taught at the New York College of Music.

During the season of 1918-19 Mr. Spiering conducted ninety-seven performances of Maeterlinck's "Betrothal," set to music by Delamater and staged by Winthrop Ames. In 1923 he was a guest conductor in Berlin and Vienna. He was a conductor of several of the revivals of German opera just after the war, at a time when public hostility interfered with the success of such enterprises. Most of his compositions were violin pieces and songs. His special interest was to make music accessible to children, and for his contemplated season in Oregon he had planned special matinees with programs appealing to children.

Mr. Spiering is survived by a wife, two daughters and his mother.

SILENT IN AIR CONTROVERSY

Robinson Won't Talk About Roulstone's Letter to Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13 (AP).—Acting Secretary Robinson of the Navy declined today to comment upon a letter which had been written to President Coolidge by William Bradford Roulstone, President of the Parks Conservation Association of New York, charging that the secretary was attempting to intimidate the city in the matter of affording the Navy Department space for an aircraft station at Rockaway, Long Island. It would be improper, Secretary Robinson said, for him to comment on a letter to the President.

Secretary Robinson recently wrote Mayor Hylan and the Sinking Fund Commissioners of New York, urging that the city cede to the Navy Department some of the park space which since the war has been used as a temporary naval air station. He pointed out that site was vital to national defense because of its strategic location and indicated that he would not be responsible for national defense of New York by air in case of refusal. Previously, the department had attempted unsuccessfully to obtain the site for a permanent base.

This announcement was made last night at a bon voyage dinner given to Dr. Henry Moscowitz, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the fund, at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Dr. Moskowitz will sail tomorrow morning for Europe. He will spend several months in applying the fund to the needy and making a survey of the economic rehabilitation activities.

Among the speakers at the dinner were Dr. Moskowitz, Congressman Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn, Judge Bernard L. Shientag, Edward F. Van Namee, former President of the Borough of Richmond; Joseph Barondess and Samuel C. Lamport.

INDIA REJECTS PROTOCOL.

Government Informs the League It Has Changed Its Position.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 13.—The Indian Government has informed the Secretary General of the League of Nations that whereas India was at first favorably disposed toward the Geneva protocol, on careful study it is forced to reject it.

The principal reason is the fact that most of the burden in taking military sanctions in Asia would logically fall on the Indian State. It would place too heavy a burden on military and financial resources and perhaps subject religious sentiments of the population to improper strain, the communication explains.

FIRE AT BAR HARBOR BURNS MT. DESERT INN

Shop on Hotel Grounds Also Is Destroyed—Guests Lose Property.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 13 (AP).—The Mount Desert Inn, the oldest hotel standing in Bar Harbor, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. All the guests escaped, although many of their valuables were lost.

The fire fortunately started in the afternoon, when most of the guests were out. It originated in the cellar from unexplained causes and spread rapidly through the structure. Mrs. J. M. Kindazian of Boston, who was spending the Summer here with her family, was rescued from a fourth-story window.

The Black Bear, a shop for articles made by Russian refugees, which was conducted by Miss Susan Amory of Boston, on the grounds of the hotel, was also destroyed, although much of the contents were saved.

The inn stood between the St. Sauveur Hotel, crowded with Summer guests, and the Karefree cottage of Mrs. Samuel Ashurst of Philadelphia. Both buildings were saved, although several times endangered.

The Mount Desert recently had been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Franck of Philadelphia and was remodeled to resemble the old English inns. It was formerly the Lynam House. Its history began back in the '80s and many brilliant functions had been held in it by the socially prominent who were its guests.

Among those who escaped with loss of property were William Ryder, New York baritone; Peter Adams, New York playwright; Dr. Ethel Walters of Boston and R. J. McCaffery of Philadelphia.

KRUGER—Albert. Resolutions of condolence adopted at a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob of the Bronx, Aug. 13, 1925.

Shocked and horrified by the suddenness of the blow received by the Home in the death of their beloved Superintendent, Albert Kruger, its officers and directors in special meeting assembled give expression to their indescribable grief at the great catastrophe which fell so heavily upon their beloved institution, of which the departed was executive and financial head for 25 years and in whose services he finally gave his precious and noble life.

Entering upon his duties as Superintendent when the Home was small and insignificant, he leaves it the largest Jewish Orthodox Home in the world, giving a peaceful and permanent shelter to 500 old people.

How much his genius, his ceaseless labors, his fine and lovable personality, his almost superhuman devotion to its welfare have contributed to the gigantic strides made by this institution within this brief period those who have known of his life's work are well aware.

He was a man of rare and sterling qualities, honest and conscientious to the extreme, a great Jew, a loyal friend, and, above all, a Superintendent par excellence.

His death leaves a void never to be filled, both in this institution as well as in the Jewish Community which he served so loyally with the whole fervor of his noble being. Resolved that the Board of Directors of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob, joined by its members and friends, extend to Mrs. Kruger and to the grieving son, Mr. Lewis Kruger, their hearty expressions of sympathy and condolence in this hour of their great bereavement, together with their prayers that the Almighty may give them strength and fortitude to bear their heavy sorrow.

Be it also resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the institution, and that a copy thereof be presented to the family of the late Albert Kruger.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS,

Dr. WM. G. WOLFERT, Hon. Sec.

Now, therefore, be it resolved, That we extend to the officers and directors of the Home, as well as to the family of our departed friend, our sincere expressions of sympathy and condolence in this hour of their great bereavement. The name of the late Albert Kruger will remain indelibly imprinted in the annals of the Home, to whose growth he gave his precious life and in whose cause he so nobly died.

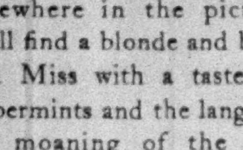
When a boy begins surreptitiously to polish his shoes on the stair carpet, and becomes painfully conscious of the length of his legs, you may be sure that Manhood is dawning within him. And usually, somewhere in the picture, you'll find a blonde and blue-eyed Miss with a taste for peppermints and the languorous moaning of the saxophone . . . . .



Up to this point, the youth has considered clothing merely as a necessary covering—but now, it has become the courting-plumage of the male. This instinct will never wholly leave him; and until he has reached the age of discretion, it is likely to be a costly one to satisfy.

Many of our patrons encourage their sons to come to Brokaw's particularly during the Summer Sale. Good-dressing is a commendable habit, but so is thrift; and the Brokaw Sale presents a really admirable opportunity for combining the two.

Lot No. 16788 is a staple. A handsome gray mixture suit which has always sold all year round, year after year. Like briar pipes or O. Henry, So when sale time came around, we'd always decide to let No. 16788 remain at its regular price.

This year—perhaps because the head of our clothing department was feeling in a mellow mood, perhaps because some clerk slipped up in copying a lot number—No. 16788 has been included in the sale. Its reduced price is $55.

SALZBURG OPENS FESTIVAL PROGRAM

Thousands of Foreigners Cheer Reinhardt at Performance of Allegorical Play.

OPERAS ALSO TO BE GIVEN

Miss Pinchot and Lady Diana Manners Rehearsing for the "Miracle."

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SALZBURG, Aug. 13.—The Salzburg festival began today. The little mountain town is filled to overflowing with visiting celebrities, including several former royal princes, American beauties, international film stars, actresses, singers and world-famous orchestral conductors. The musical program includes concerts and operas, conducted by Bruno Walter, Karl Muck, Franz Scalk, and theatrical performances under the supervision of Max Reinhardt.

With a thousand inhabitants lining the streets and enthusiastically welcoming the foreign guests, the theatre festival opened here tonight with Hugo Hoffmannsthals's Welt Theatre Allegorical Pageant Play. The performance proved one of Max Reinhardt's greatest triumphs, the audience including thousands of Americans and British who applauded for half an hour and refused to leave the hall. The city is so crowded that Mr. Reinhardt has opened his Chateau Leopoldskron to the shelterless foreigners.

Hopes For Annual Festival.

Mr. Reinhardt, who was found early this morning by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent on the grounds of his beautiful old castle, Leopoldskron, has been rehearsing day and night. His idea is to make Salzburg the permanent headquarters of an annual festival of music and drama. He said:

"My conception is to revive something of the spirit of the Middle Ages in the manner of former days when the performers were drawn from the ranks of peasants who lived in the neighborhood and who took the greatest interest in carrying out the spirit of the plays and later in reproducing them themselves in their villages. As an example of this kind of thing the 'Miracle' has already been produced in six villages and towns in this vicinity. Old peasant plays of former times are also being revived. In these plays religion has a prominent part."

Mr. Reinhardt explained that theatrical production in the big cities was necessarily hurried and that this was bad for the genuine development of art. Moreover, the audiences of the cities came to the theatre tired and hurried and in no mood for artistic inspiration.

Regarding the invitation of the Equity Players to go to the United States, Mr. Reinhardt said that he had conferred with Mr. Emerson at Venice and with Morris Gest at Salzburg. The difficulty lay, he said, in the arrangement of dates. He is busily occupied at the Berlin and Vienna theatres in the early Fall. He still hopes to go, however, but said that he could not commit himself regarding any new proposed productions in the United States.

Lady Diana Arrives.

Mr. Reinhardt has shown characteristic genius in converting the famous old riding school here into a new theatre. The workmen are still putting the finishing touches to the hall, which is built like a church inside with organ and choir loft. The performances of the "Miracle" on Saturday are expected to surpass any yet given by Mr. Reinhardt.

Undoubtedly the two great attractions this year are Rosamond Pinchot and Lady Diana Manners. Miss Pinchot, who was discovered on an ocean liner by Mr. Reinhardt as the one person to play the rôle of Nun in the "Miracle" is now playing in Salzburg. Lady Diana plays the rôle of Madonna.

Miss Pinchot was seen today dashing off for a rehearsal on a bicycle. She was hatless, bobbed and wore a plain white twill dress with a red belt. Later she was seen at the rehearsal, chatting gaily with Arnold Bennett, who expressed the greatest enthusiasm over the festival. Miss Pinchot told how she had worked at the rehearsal all day.

"I played in the "Miracle" 277 times in New York but now Mr. Reinhardt has changed the music in the middle acts," she said. "I must restudy the pantomime for the new music by Bernhard Paumgartner, although Humperdinck's original music in the first and last acts remains."

She said that she was greatly enjoying the work and that Dr. Reinhardt, who gave her all the training she ever had, was "very patient and considerate."

While I talked with Mr. Reinhardt, Lady Diana drove up in a large limousine piled with endless trunks. She had started from Munich at 5 in the morning, driving herself, and accompanied by Iris Tree. Half an hour later Lady Diana was busily rehearsing.

Among the many celebrities attending the festival are Prince Leopold and Prince Joachim of Prussia, Prince Henry of Reuss, Prince of Schaumburg-Lippe, Count and Countess Bismarck, Lady Diana's sister, Lady Anglesey, Duchess of Northumberland, Mrs. E. A. Ingram, James Speyer, Orme Wilson, Mary Garden, Sari Fedak, Morris Gest, Albert H. Washburn, American Minister to Austria, and Mrs. Washburn.

TO MAKE NIGHT AIR TESTS.

Bombing Planes Start Tonight on Series of Camp Dix Manoeuvres.

Nightly air flights will be made over Camp Dix by four Martin bombers beginning tonight and continuing until mid-September, it was announced yesterday by Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Second Army Corps Area.

During experiments to perfect coordination between the sound detecting devices and searchlights of the Sixty-second Anti-aircraft Artillery, the airplanes will take off from Camp Vail every night and fly over an especially marked out area in Camp Dix.

Other tests in connection with night flying and landing will be conducted at Camp Vail by the air service each night upon the return of the planes from Camp Dix. To lessen the danger in landing an improved system of lighting has been installed.

REWARDS FOR FIRST AID.

Edison Company Will Give Prize to Any Employe Saving a Life.

An award, either of a medal or a gold watch suitably engraved, will be given in the future to any employe of the Brooklyn Edison Company who, by first-aid work, saves the life of a fellow-employe or other person on company property. This was announced yesterday by M. S. Sloan, President.

Nearly 3,000 employes of the company have received training in first aid. Classes of twenty are being instructed by experts at the rate of three classes a day.

Philharmonic in Strauss Program.

The Philharmonic Orchestra, under Fritz Reiner, gave an all-Strauss program before a large audience at the Stadium last night. "Salome's Dance," in the first part, was played with a rhythmic verve that won the conductor several recalls. "Danse des Sylphes" was played as an encore. Hans Kindler played the cello solo in the fantastic variations comprising "Don Quixote." The tone-poem "Death and Transfiguration" opened the program, which concluded with "Till Eulenspiegel."

THE PLAY

A Suburban Holiday.

SOMETHING TO BRAG ABOUT, a comedy in three acts, by Edgar Selwyn and William Le Baron. At the Booth Theatre.

Mal	Karl Van Vechten
Frieda	Beatrice Moreland
Dorothy Carroll	Marjorie Wood
Millicent Harrington	Sylvia Field
George Carroll	Mark Smith
Ronald Hobart	Charles Bickford
Albert Holmes	Booth Howard
Edith Holmes	Cecil Kern
Willie Harrington	Richard Sterling
Amy Ralston	Enid Markey
Henry T. Warren	Edward Robins
Sam Clough	Robert Cummings
State Trooper	Jay Murray

Simple humors strung fairly evenly on a simple thread provide the substance of "Something to Brag About," a farce in three acts by Edgar Selwyn and William Le Baron, put on last evening at the Booth. This slender piece about strange doings in Gardenhurst, L. I., is no smart, sophisticated, cynical farce, striking to the vitals of a decadent society, with the withering irony of Voltaire or the malevolence of Bernard Shaw. No, indeed. "Something to Brag About" concerns itself with familiar objects—with player pianos and radios, with pantry shelves, with Buicks and Chevrolets, with neighborhood dinner parties, recalcitrant cooks and what-not; and, in sum, seems designed chiefly for suburban playgoers.

According to a familiar custom of the journeyman theatre, this farce traces the fortunes of a weakling husband, distressingly regular in his habits, who thereby bores his wife and unwittingly drives her toward a fascinating unctuous villain. Before this suave and oily "home-wrecker" succeeds in his blackguard purpose, however, a succession of unforeseen circumstances and accidents makes the insipid husband a local hero. He is daring. He is bold. He is reckless. One of the best-known metropolitan newspapers praises him in an editorial for cherishing the sanctity of the American home. Everywhere he is applauded. He thanks his friends publicly for their kind consideration. What wife could resist him now?

The rather obvious humors of the piece come by way of contrast, by ready-made jokes; and too often by careful artifices of routine playwrighting that time the arrivals and departures of the neighbors and constabulary. And this Gardenhurst suburb (where, as the program vulgarly points out, all the action "transpires") is no cherubic town of chaste inhabitants. Even there they relieve the boredom of life by intrigue and sly philandering. Nevertheless, as every one knows, two wrongs make a right; and if Mrs. Harrington proposes to run off with Ronald Hobart, Amy Ralston can set that right by making love to Mr. Harrington. From Bacon to Belloc it has been observed that the proper way to make people believe the truth is to garnish the whole thing with lies. "Something to Brag About" sweetens the poisons of suburban life in that Machiavellian fashion.

It may be fairly pointed out that the authors of this farce had very little plot or character to work upon, and their invention has not been prodigious. Humor and story are both spread thin. Cast in parts which all run true to type, the actors play in that fashion. Little has been required of them; that little they supply to order. As the sappy Willie Harrington, Mr. Sterling is serious and awkward. Only once does the play permit him to be ridiculous, which is the stock humor of that type of part. Miss Field played Millicent Harrington with as much vivacity as she could summon. As Amy Ralston, Miss Markey was amusingly coquettish.

Beneath all her sweetness there was an undercurrent of plotting and design. As Dr. Johnson observed of a savage American woman: "Sir, she was a speaking cat!" Mr. Smith played up adequately to the "hand-me-down" part of George Carroll. The play began late and was over at about 10:30.

4-DAY CAR-PARKER FINED.

Pays $10 and Hears That Streets Can't Be Used as a Garage.

Edward Missel of 196 Park Street, Hartford, Conn., who parked his automobile continuously for four days in front of his hotel at 349 West Fifty-eighth Street, was fined $10 by Magistrate Smith yesterday. Missel was on his honeymoon.

"You ought to know that you can't use the public streets as a garage," said Magistrate Smith in passing sentence. He said that he had imposed a light fine because Missel was a stranger.

The Missels were married on June 30 and have been on a honeymoon in their automobile since then. Missel said that the traffic in New York was so dense and intricate that he did not dare drive in it, so he simply left the automobile at the curb in West Fifty-eighth Street until he and his bride had seen the sights of the city and were about ready to start back for Hartford.

CHALLENGES DR. STRATON.

W. A. Brady Would Debate With Him on "The Theatre of Today."

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 13 (AP).—William A. Brady, the producer, today challenged the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton to a debate on "The Theatre of Today: Should It Be Abused or Saved?"

Mr. Brady made a sweeping denial of Dr. Straton's charges made two weeks ago in an address at Ocean Grove that the American stage was reeking with moral infamy and was the only place where a spot on a woman's character was an asset.

The producer said that it would be better for Dr. Straton to preach the Gospel to actors and actresses than to abuse them.

VICTOR CO. PRODUCES A NEW RECORD ALSO

Officials Say Invention for Phonograph Will Revolutionize the Industry.

WITHHOLD DETAILS OF DISK

Announcement Follows That of the Brunswick Co., Which Has Developed a 40-Minute Record.

The Victor Talking Machine Company announced yesterday that it was soon to place on the market an improved music-producing instrument which "will revolutionize the entire industry."

This statement came less than twenty-four hours after the announcement by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company of the Panatrome, a substitute for the phonograph which has been developed by the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, the Westinghouse Electric Company and the Brunswick Company.

Both the Victor and Brunswick Companies say that there is no reason for scrapping the existing instruments. The new records which they are issuing can be played on the existing phonographs and victrolas. They are said to be an improvement over the old records when played on the ordinary machines, but it is asserted that the new reproducing instruments are needed to bring out their full values.

E. K. McEwan, Secretary of the Victor Talking Machine Company, described the new Victor invention as "a knockout." He said it would be placed on the market very soon.

Calls It Ultimate Invention.

E. R. Fenimore Johnson, President of the Victor Company, said that he was not ready to describe the invention in detail, but he called it "the ultimate in sound reproduction." He said that it gave complete mechanical reproduction of the entire range of audible sound.

The new Brunswick machine, called the Panatrome, is equipped with vacuum tube amplifiers and disk resonators and is run either by batteries or by connection with an electrical system. The new Victor machine, it was said, is non-electrical.

While both inventions are intended as an answer to the competition of radio, which has cut heavily into the music reproduction business, both are indebted to radio. The Brunswick instrument is almost a by-product of radio. Many of its features are adapted from inventions and developments resulting from radio research. It is asserted that the Brunswick instrument makes it possible to put eight or nine times as much music on a 12-inch record as at present, or, in other words, to make a 12-inch record that will play forty or forty-five minutes. This development, however, is so far only in the laboratory stage. Practical difficulties, it was said, would make it a year or two before forty-five-minute records can be marketed.

Refuse to Discuss Details.

Victor officials declined to say whether their new product would make possible records which would play a great length of time without change.

Discussing the statement that the new Brunswick music-reproducer was based partly on principles used in the talking film, Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of the Phonofilm, said yesterday that his patents were not in any way infringed.

"I welcome this invention. I believe it will save the phonograph. I am very fond of the phonograph, but I haven't played mine for months, simply because I am tired of changing the records every few minutes. If they are successful in getting out a record which will play for half an hour without interruption, it will certainly be a remarkable achievement and one which the public will greatly appreciate."

The Brunswick Company will give a private demonstration of its new device, the "Panatrome," at the Brunswick-Balke-Collender offices at 799 Seventh Avenue at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

STOWAWAY STORY A MYTH.

Arabic's Officers Say Spiteful Woman Caused Fruitless Search.

A woman's jealousy was blamed by officers of the White Star liner Arabic for the unnecessary trouble they took in trying to find two mythical stowaways when the vessel arrived here yesterday from Hamburg. The woman wrote a letter to the steamship company's Hamburg offices and accused two stewards of conspiring to smuggle two stowaways into the United States.

"The sweetheart of one steward no doubt sent in the report to spite him," said Captain John B. Bulman, who declared no trace of the stowaways was found in searches before the Arabic sailed, several times while she was in mid-ocean and just before she docked.

Among the 314 cabin passengers were Henry James Carvill, Edward H. Crosby, music critic of The Boston Post, and Mrs. Crosby; also Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Johnson and family and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smith and family of Orange, N. J.

Paroled Woman Bites Daughter.

Shortly after Magistrate Dale in the Fifth Avenue Court, Brooklyn, had paroled Mrs. Carmella Spinnello, 50 years old, of 667 Union Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, on the charge of disorderly conduct made by her daughter, Neddie, 19 years old, of 294 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, the girl ran back into the court room and told the Magistrate her mother had just bitten her on the arm and scratched her. Magistrate Dale admonished Mrs. Spinnello not to touch the girl and permitted her to leave in custody of her lawyer for arraignment on the disorderly conduct charge Aug. 21.

Boys' Bands to Compete Tonight.

The second annual contest for boys' bands to be given under auspices of the Goldman Band concerts, the prizes being awarded by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim, will be held this evening on the campus of New York University. The band winning first prize will get a gold medal, and silver cups and cornets are among the other prizes. The judges will be Mayhew Lester Lake, N. Clifford Page, H. O. Osgood, Gustave Saenger, Henry Heidelberg and Carl Dies. Five boys' bands, whose members are all under 17 years of age, are scheduled to compete.

LIE ADDS 5 MONTHS TO 30-DAY SENTENCE

Man Found Guilty of Annoying a Woman Tells Judge He Never Was Convicted Before.

After serving four days of a thirty-day sentence for annoying a woman, Thomas Lynch of 33 Baldwin Avenue, Jersey City, was taken from the Hudson County Jail yesterday and his sentence increased to six months by Judge Leo Sullivan because he had lied to the Judge at the time of his conviction.

Lynch was arrested on Aug. 9 and brought before Judge Sullivan the next day. After finding him guilty, Judge Sullivan scrutinized the prisoner, whose face seemed familiar, and asked him if he had ever been convicted before. Lynch said he had not.

Judge Sullivan sentenced him and then decided to investigate. On consulting the records he discovered that a year and a half ago he, himself, had found Lynch guilty on a similar charge and had let him off with a fine. He called Lynch for resentencing, and when the prisoner was brought before him the Judge again asked if he had ever been convicted before.

"No, sir," said Lynch.

"You are deliberately lying to the Court," said the Judge, "and because of your persistence in falsehood, I shall increase your sentence to six months."

ASKS PHILIPPINE HOME RULE

Native Lawyer Advises Against Annexation or Independence.

Vicente Villamin, a Filipino lawyer and writer, speaking at a luncheon at the Rotary Club at the Hotel McAlpin, advocated yesterday, on the twenty-seventh anniversary of American occupation of the Philippines, the granting of home rule for the Philippines, but advised against annexation or independence.

He said the withdrawal of the United States from the islands would bring about disintegration of Anglo-American unity in the Pacific, while independence would mean, among other things, loss of tariff protection to the islands and exhaustion of credit.

"Annexation would be dangerous, impracticable and destructive of the constitutional traditions of America," he continued. "The most logical solution of the Philippine problem at this time is to establish home rule, but retaining the sovereignity of America, which shall remain intact and effective to curb excesses and to prevent involving the Philippines or America in international complications."

Charlie Chaplin Better.

Despite the sensational reports that have been circulated regarding Charlie Chaplin's condition, it was said yesterday by one of his representatives that Mr. Chaplin was much better and that he was no longer confined to his bed. Joseph Plunkett, managing director of the Mark Strand, is sangiune that Mr. Chaplin will appear at the gala opening of "The Gold Rush" at midnight tomorrow.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION WANTS CARTER OUSTED

Passes Resolution to Make Public Printer's Removal an Issue in Congressional Elections.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 13 (AP).—A resolution demanding that George H. Carter be ousted as Public Printer of the United States was adopted without a roll-call by the International Typographical Union here this morning.

With it was coupled an appeal to trade union workers throughout the country to make Carter's removal an issue during the Congressional elections in 1926.

The resolution was introduced by Jacob Wagner, a delegate from Washington, D. C., who declared Carter was holding office in violation of the law which says the Public Printer "must be a practical printer, versed in the art of bookbinding." It referred to Mr. Carter as a "menace to an efficient, economical, fair public service," and an "ineligible, incompetent and intolerant public servant, who has become a tyrant in office."

William Higgins of Philadelphia asked every member of the union to return home and "pin down" his Representative or Senator on the question of ousting Mr. Carter.

"Every union man and woman in the United States should make a concerted effort to see that this man is discharged," declared Mr. Higgins. "To do this we must adopt a policy of supporting our friends and defeating our enemies at the next Congressional election."

When the question came to a vote President James M. Lynch requested all Canadian delegates to refrain from answering the roll-call. The roll-call was found unnecessary, however.

A resolution intended to discourage married women from retaining their positions in printing shops while their husbands also are employed was voted down after President Lynch spoke against the proposal.

Receipts from assessments of members for 1924-25 totaled $2,626,458.91; expenditures for the same period amounted to $2,696,655.26, but there still is a balance in the treasury of $5,088,787.86, the supplemental report of the Committee on Finance showed.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 13 (AP).—George H. Carter, Public Printer of the United States, said today he was not concerned with a resolution adopted by the International Typographical Union at Kalamazoo, Mich., attacking his administration and asking his discharge. Mr. Carter was here attending the convention of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen.

"It is a closed incident," he said. "They tried to remove me before, when I cut the working force from 4,186 to 4,000, acting under the terms of the appropriation bill passed by Congress. The union asked then that I be investigated on charges of violating the civil service regulations. President Coolidge and Attorney General Sargent considered my action and approved it."

Philadelphia today was awarded the 1926 convention by the craftsmen. Harvey Weber of Buffalo was named Treasurer and L. M. Augustine of Baltimore was re-elected Secretary.

SEEK GOVERNMENT CHANGE.

Ocean City (N. J.) Property Owner Favors City Manager Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Aug. 13.—The influx of capital into Ocean City makes the present form of government inadequate, according to E. G. C. Bleakley, a Camden lawyer and a large local property owner, who advocated today a change to the city manager plan.

A committee calling themselves the Committee of 100 has been active circulating a petition calling for a special election that will place the proposed change of government before the voters. The same committee has opened an office at 654 Asbury Avenue, with a manager and a corps of assistants.

It is expected that the Chamber of Commerce will endorse the city manager plan at their Aug. 19 meeting. A general invitation has been sent out and a speaker well versed in the city manager plan will be present.

Walter J. Millard, said to be the foremost man in the country in city manager work, has been obtained by the Committee of 100 for the campaign from Sept. 1 to 15.

"We are not finding fault with the present City Commissioners," said one of the committee today. "It is the form of government we want to change. The city manager plan will speed up many of the things that we want."

BUSINESS NOTES.

According to a letter received yesterday by THE TIMES from the Liberty Clothing Company, Buffalo, N. Y., a swindler posing as a buyer for the company is now operating in this city. The letter said that information to this effect had been received by the company from a local clothing concern.

Nat J. Marks is now associated with the Franco Fabrics Corporation, 102 Madison Avenue, makers of plain and novelty wide silks. He will cover the dress and costume trade.

CUTS SHIPPING BOARD FUNDS

Budget Bureau Announces $15,300,000 Where $22,540,000 Is Asked.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Shipping Board today asked for $22,540,000 for the coming fiscal year and was told by the Budget Bureau it need not expect more than $15,300,000. For the present year the appropriation is $24,000,000, and last year it was $30,000,000.

Of the total requested, $22,000,000 would go to the Fleet Corporation and $540,000 to the board itself. President Palmer had asked for only $18,000,000 for the corporation, but no member of the board supported his estimate. Commissioner Lisner was the only one of the six members present who refused to vote for $22,000,000, and he favored $20,000,000.

President Palmer said today that regardless what appropriation was finally given to the Fleet Corporation, it would operate all of the 279 vessels now in active service and a reduction in personnel at home and abroad and the establishment of more efficient methods would be effected.

Contrary to reports on the Pacific Coast, he asserted, he planned no change of the terminus at Portland, Ore., of the Oregon-Oriental Line of ten ships which run to the Far East. An offer for the purchase of the line from the Columbia-Pacific Steamship Company, which operates that service for the Fleet Corporation, is expected in some quarters.

FOR SCHLEIFER RETRIAL.

Connecticut Labor Chief Will Face Jury Again in Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Aug. 13.—Ernest Schleifer of New Haven, formerly organizer for the Machinists' Union of New England, is to be tried again in the Fall on the charge of making "inciting speeches and soliciting to commit crime," according to information given out today.

Schleifer, whose dramatic addresses before legislative committees are well remembered, was convicted two years ago of making inflammatory speeches in connection with the New Haven Railroad shopmen's strike and was sentenced to State Prison for three and one-half to five years by Judge Newell S. Jennings, who last Spring sentenced Gerald Chapman to be hanged.

The Connecticut Supreme Court recently granted Schleifer a new trial on the ground that certain prejudicial letters were admitted and read before the jury which should have been withheld from the record.

Schleifer has been at liberty under $10,000 bonds.

Awarded Contract.

The Longacre Engineering and Construction Company were awarded the contract for the sixteen-story housekeeping apartment building at the northwest corner of Central Park West and 101st Street and 414-415 Central Park West. Deutsch & Schneider are the architects.

DUCHESS TO FIGHT SUIT.

Will Defend Divorce Action Brought by Manchester in Paris.

LONDON, Aug. 13 (AP).—Solicitors for the Duchess of Manchester said today that she would defend the action to annul his marriage filed recently by the Duke of Manchester in France. The Duchess, before her marriage in 1900 was Miss Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Her solicitors announced that she had requested them to correct the report which had appeared in certain newspapers that the Duke already had obtained a divorce from her in France, but admitted that he had filed proceedings to nullify the marriage.

The solicitors pointed out in this connection that no divorce by a French court would in any way affect the validity of the marriage of the Duke and Duchess according to English law.

The Duke of Manchester's divorce action, alleging desertion and incompatibility, was filed last month at Nice, France, and papers were served upon the Duchess in Paris about a month ago. The Duchess, in 1915 inherited the $10,000,000 estate of her father, Eugene Zimmerman.

Shipping Board Sells Freight Line.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Shipping Board today sold the American-Palmetto Line of freighters to the Carolina Company of Charleston, S. C. The sale price was $5.75 a ton, or $270,000 for six ships, with service guaranteed for five years. The Charleston Company has been operating the line.

REMARKABLE RESULTS

Aug. 10, 1925.

The New York Times:

Our page advertisement in The New York Times of Sunday, July 26, placed for us by the H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency of this city, overwhelmed us with telephone calls, continuing day and night all during the week.

They were not curiosity calls, but requests for appointments to discuss investments in Florida.

Letters are still coming in, and they come from New York State, the New England States, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland.

Several telegrams and telephone calls were received from out of town.

Our rooms at the Commodore Hotel have been visited every day from 8:30 A. M. until 9:30 P. M. We have interviewed an average of thirty persons a day.

One man telephoned from Lancaster, Pa., on Monday, making an appointment for Tuesday. He bought 890 acres.

A gentleman from Rhode Island commissioned us to secure for him an estate of from 50 to 100 acres, where he might have an unbroken waterfront view.

In addition to these two illustrations, we have had callers, representing groups of friends, who are forming syndicates to invest in Florida.

In all of my long experience in the advertising business I am frank to say that never before have I had such splendid results from any one advertisement in any one medium.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS 3 NEW CHIEFS

Commissioner Drennan Announces Promotions and Assignments—10 Made Captains.

REPORTER TURNS FIREMAN

Covered Police Headquarters 12 Years and Became Fascinated With Smoke-Eaters' Work.

Shortly before he left last night for Detroit to witness the baseball game between the Fire Department of that city and his own men, Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Among the firemen appointed was Cosmos Petersen, who covered Police Headquarters for twelve years as a reporter for The New York City News Association. Petersen, in the course of his duties, reported many fires and was fascinated by the smoke-eaters' work. Police officials gave him an impromptu reception yesterday when word of his appointment reached Police Headquarters.

Commissioner Drennan led a delegation of thirty, including the members of the New York team, to Detroit. The contingent left the Grand Central Terminal at 7 o'clock in two special cars. The games will be played tomorrow and on Sunday. Commissioner Drennan was accompanied by County Clerk William E. Kelly of Brooklyn, his brother, Fireman Frank Kelly, who is detailed to Mr. Drennan's office; License Commissioner John F. Bracken of Brooklyn; Hubert J. Treacy, Chief of the Division of Repairs and Supplies at Fire Headquarters; various members of the New York Firemen's Emergency Fund, including Honorary Deputy Chief W. W. Cohen. The members of the New York Fire Department will be the guests of the Detroit Fire Fund's Committee on Arrangements. The Detroit firemen played here on July 8. The proceeds of the games go to the emergency funds of Detroit and New York.

1,000 COMMUTERS BACK FIGHT ON FARE BOOST

New Rochelle Mayor Says City Will 'Go the Limit' Against New Haven's Increase.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Twelve hundred commuters of this city, meeting tonight in City Hall, cheered Mayor Scott, Corporation Counsel Van Auken and William M. Harding, President of the Chamber of Commerce, during announcements that the city "would fight to the end" the 40 per cent. increase in fares put into effect by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Nearly 1,000 of those present left their names with Mr. Harding as applicants for membership in a commuters' league to support Mr. Van Auken in the city's fight on the fares.

Each of the speakers asserted the New Haven's increase in fares was unwarranted. Mayor Scott said he had instructed Corporation Counsel Van Auken to "go the limit" in opposing them, and Mr. Van Auken said he would, among other things, learn how the Public Service Commission came to grant the increase.

Mr. Van Auken declared that the property values presented by the railroad in its petition were unwarranted, citing as one instance the Harlem River Bridge. He said that while the railroad valued the bridge at $400,000 and paid taxes on an assessment of $700,000, its petition for increased fares placed the value of the bridge at $1,300,000.

One of the other speakers at the meeting was Mayor Hugh M. Hewson of Mount Vernon, who said the citizens of the latter city would also fight the New Haven's increase in fares.

Commuters of Westchester, Connecticut, Long Island and New Jersey, who are organizing against an anticipated general rise in commutation fares as a result of the 40 peer cent. increase granted to the New Haven Railroad by the Public Service Commission of New York, will hold a conference this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Bar Association to formulate plans for united opposition.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Van Auken of New Rochelle, and Hugh M. Hewson of Mount Vernon, will be there. Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson of New York, will be represented by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Devery.

WILL SOLICIT FUNDS FOR BRYAN MEMORIAL

Committee to Be Formed—Miss Evans Says She Will Take Minor Role in Project.

Miss Dionessa Bryan Evans, who came to New York to organize a committee to raise funds for a memorial at Clewiston, Fla., to William Jennings Bryan, who, she declared, was her godfather, said yesterday at the Hotel Roosevelt that a committee to canvass for funds would be incorporated in a few days. Who the members of the committee would be, or who would head it, she did not care to say, but she did say that when the committee was completed she would consider her work finished and merely take part in some subordinate capacity.

Miss Evans, who had been out of town over night at the home of friends on Long Island, was indisposed and her statement was given out through a friend. She gave out a copy of a telegram which she said she had sent to Mrs. Bryan on Sunday from Chicago, and said that when Mrs. Bryan had declared she had never heard of Miss Evans this telegram must have been before her.

"Therefore I must conclude," said Miss Evans's statement, "that the great Commoner's widow is unfavorably disposed toward me and the proposed memorial to Mr. Bryan that I have conceived.

"It is obvious that my identification with the project has led to misunderstandings, and since I am concerned with nothing except the ultimate success of the movement I shall attempt to exclude from the work my own personality.

"I am turning over to friends of Mr. Bryan in New York all the plans I evolved and I shall, as soon as possible, return to Minneapolis and resume my work in home economics there.

"Those who believe with me that there should be a memorial to William Jennings Bryan in Florida do not intend to oppose the memorial project at Arlington, or Mrs. Bryan's preference for this location or elsewhere. It is my own opinion that many cities will honor him, and that Clewiston and Washington are but the first of these.

"I feel, however, that since our purposes are for a non-sectarian, non-partisan memorial, we are correct in seeking a site free from possible controversy over possible or potential political approval, national, State or municipal. I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the many who have indicated a similar belief that coincides with my own with regard to the already contributed Clewiston (Fla.) site.

Miss Evans said that she felt extremely sorry that what had occurred might have added to the burden of unhappiness of Mrs. Bryan.

FOOD-TASTER HUNGRY, BUT LACKS APPETITE

After 7 Hours as Contest Judge at Groaning Board He Emerges Groaning and Bored.

One of the judges in the contest conducted by the United Restaurant Owners Association to find the best home-cooking recipes for five dishes selected by New York restaurant patrons as their favorites in a recent canvass admitted yesterday that he had still been hungry when he had finished sampling scores of dishes submitted by New York housewives and others. The hungry food-taster was Samuel Dobkin, Vice President of the St. Regis Restaurants.

For seven hours and fifteen minutes, broken at intervals by rest periods in which he sucked lemons to restore his palate, Mr. Dobkin was sampling dishes of corned beef and cabbage, chicken fricassee, fillet of sole, vegetable dinner and hash. He tasted repeatedly, but never swallowed a bite. In describing how he felt the sensation of starvation amid plenty, Mr. Dobkin said:

"The worst of it was that I was hungry when I got through—but didn't have any appetite. I started to test at 10 o'clock and kept at it until after 5—without any lunch period. I couldn't eat anything for fear of spoiling my 'taste.' I took three rest periods of twenty minutes each and sucked a lemon to restore my lagging palate, but didn't swallow anything else."

An electric fan was used to carry away the odors of the dishes under inspection. Each dish was under test for five minutes. The food tasters had to isolate carefully the flavor of each dish from the one preceding and the one to follow.

SCULPTORS STILL ON STRIKE

Work on 2 Churches Halted by Fight on Pneumatic Hammers.

The Architectural Sculptors and Carvers Association continued its fight against the use of pneumatic hammers by its members, and all work in which members of the union were engaged was still suspended, including work on two uptown churches.

John Donnelly Jr. of the John Donnelly Company, Inc., which is engaged in sculptural decoration and design, said yesterday that the strike not only delayed the work in the churches, but affected every building under construction in New York where ornamental stone work was involved. According to Mr. Donnelly, the artisans were locked out by their employers after they had voted against the use of the pneumatic hammer, which the employers consider more efficient than hand labor in some instances. In view of the lockout, he said, any steps toward a solution of the strike must come from the union.

Mr. Donnelly said that the members of the union were not agreed on a definite plan of action, since some do not object to the use of the pneumatic hammer, others will use it if they are paid $13 a day instead of the present wage, $12 a day, and the remainder refuse to use it under any conditions. There can be no settlement of the strike until the union decides what it wants or accepts the employers' conditions, he added.

KEEPER OF BOOK SHOP HELD

Accused of Selling Indecent Literature—Sumner Presses Action.

C. Gerhardt, 58 years old, of 3,440 Broadway, who conducts a book shop at 25 West Forty-second Street, was arrested yesterday charged with the sale of indecent literature, and Detective William Ford and Charles S. Sumner, Superintendent of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, seized 100 copies of a book entitled "My Life," by Frank Harris, and 1,000 photographs.

Gerhardt's attorney, Morris B. Moskowitz, offered in the West Side Court to waive arraignment and go to trial for selling the book if Mr. Sumner would agree to a dismissal of the charge of selling the pictures, but Mr. Sumner refused. At the request of Mr. Moskowitz a hearing was set for next Thursday.

Stung 300 Times by Swam of Bees.

DECLARES GERMANS BACK DAWES PLAN

Ambassador von Maltzan Says Sincere Efforts Will Be Made to Pay the Allies.

TRADE UPSETS ARE FEARED

D. L. Shillinglaw Believes Transfer of Reparations Will Disturb World Commerce.

PLEAS ARE MADE FOR CHINA

Speakers at the Politics Institute Describe Natives' Efforts to End Foreign Interference.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 13.—The German people are fully determined to do their best to carry out their reparations payments under the Dawes plan sincerely and in good faith, according to Baron von Maltzan, German Ambassador at Washington, who is visiting the Institute of Politics. At Professor Edwin F. Gay's Round Table on the Economic Recovery of Europe today. Baron von Maltzan joined in the discussion to take issue with an intimation that the German people, regarding reparations as tribute, might not be willing to exert themselves to pay. He emphatically denied this suggestion.

The German Ambassador pointed out that the Reichstag had accepted the Dawes plan and that public sentiment in favor of the plan had not changed. He said that the election of von Hindenburg as President did not constitute a repudiation of the plan, because von Hindenburg endorsed it soon after his election. Ambassador von Maltzan argued that it was to the advantage of the Germans to complete the payments in order to relieve the German railways from foreign administration.

Furthermore, he said, the experts' scheme takes care of the payments until 1928, and if any difficulties should arise then they can be adjusted by "round table conferences."

Banker Disagrees With D. H. Miller.

David L. Shillinglaw, Vice President of Forgan, Gray & Co., Chicago investment bankers, challenged a statement made here recently by David Hunter Miller, New York lawyer, to the effect that the German reparation payments could be transferred to the allied countries and then turned over to the United States in payment of the war debts without any adverse affect on world trade.

"The payment of reparations will be accompanied by disturbances in the trade between nations," said Mr. Shillinglaw. "David Hunter Miller seemed to refer to the payment of 625,000,000 gold marks per year by Germany as a mere bookkeeping arrangement between Germany and her allies, yet during her most prosperous year before the war her surplus was less than 600,000,000 marks.

"Enmity by Germany and her neighbors before the war grew up as a result of her economic progress. Will the throwing open of markets to give her an economic export surplus be allowed with no obstruction on the part of her chief competitors, those who are really sponsoring the Dawes plan?

"Although progress is shown in Germany's budget report of the past year, yet the Transfer Committee reports an excess of imports over exports of 2,603,000,000 gold marks. Where is the surplus to come from? In making a balance of payments they conclude that a deficit of 2,850,000,000 gold marks must have been covered by the repatriation of German capital transferred abroad during the inflation or by fresh foreign investments in Germany. There is a limit to German capital held abroad and also a limit to new foreign investments to be made in Germany.

Points to War's Effect on Germany.

"We must deal in realities. Germany cannot create an export surplus out of nothing. It is impossible to ignore the effect of the war upon German wealth and assume that she can start being as great a force as ever in foreign trade. She is not in her pre-war condition. It would seem that the prospects of creating a two and half billion annual surplus are very remote. Foreign important trade connections have been lost, basic resources and physical equipment have been given to other countries. The peace treaty reduced her population 10 per cent., her area 12 per cent. She has lost 26 per cent. of her coal, 74 per cent. of her iron ore, 40 per cent. of her blast furnaces, 70 per cent. of her zinc. Her wheat and rye area has been reduced 15 per cent.

"Even after a full year of recovery the total deposits of banks of Germany is said to be less than one-half of what it was in 1913, the total savings deposits less than one-quarter. The estimated national total income of Germany is said to be only slightly more than half of that of 1913, and the deductions for taxes are larger.

"It is true that her production equipment, such as factories, canals, railroads, &c., is in very good condition. The question remains whether allied manufacturers and the allied unemployed are going to permit cooperation in promoting the building up of German trade. Those who claim that there will be no difficulties in the way of large reparation payments must do so on theoretical grounds. Actual past experience between nations would seem to warrant extreme cautiousness of economic trends not only by Germany but by the creditor nations as well.

"The progress in Germany during the past year is encouraging, and the Dawes plan will not be a failure if the whole sum is not transferred and machinery provided for as much to be taken as the economic conditions allow."

Blakeslee Tells of China's Aims.

The problem of China was the subject of today's general conference on the foreign policy of the United States. Professor George H. Blakeslee of Clark University said that the nationalist movement in China seeks to free China from foreign restrictions on customs, preventing the Chinese Government from laying more than 5 per cent. ad valorem import duties; from the principle of extra-territoriality, which exempts the citizens of the United States, Japan, Great Britain and other countries from the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts, and from the privileges to build up foreign settlements and concessions, such as in Shanghai, in which hundreds of thousands of Chinese are removed from Chinese jurisdiction and control. He also pointed out the existence of powerful Bolshevist propaganda directed from Moscow with the purpose of turning China away from the democratic nations of the world. Young China, he said, demands the abolition of all foreign control and threatens to turn to Russia if something is not done to meet its demands.

The Rev. Dr. Logan H. Roots, Episcopal Bishop of Hankow, China, said that the development of nationalism in China was comparable with the same movement in Germany after the Napoleonic wars. The causes of the movement in China, he went on, were of world-wide origin, and they had suddenly drawn China into world currents after centuries of isolation. The influence of American commerce, diplomacy and religious missions, he said, had had a great effect on the movement.

"We want China to be like America," he said, was a familiar statement among Chinese students. The student classes, he went on, were tremendously influential, and had now abandoned their old aloofness toward ordinary Chinese life for a demand for "the untrammeled adoption" of new learning. He said the students were antagonistic to the different authorities, including the Japanese Government and foreigners in general.

The merchants, he continued, had become supporters of the students' demands, and the farmers, the great bulk of the people, although largely unaffected by the popular movement, were counted on in China to follow the lead of the students. He said that the military group, many of whom had been trained in Japan, was subdued by a sense of responsibility, but was very sensitive to the patriotic appeals of the students.

Bishop Roots said that Bolshevist Russia is conducting propaganda in Chinese in three ways—paying Chinese writers and speakers, taking Chinese students into special schools at Moscow, and financing students in Christian schools in order to break up the schools if possible.

The Shanghai incident, he added, marked the drawing together of the students and industrial workers and was very significant in showing the importance of the industrial revolution in China, which is small yet, but, he said, bound to be large in the future.

Suggests an American Policy.

Regarding the policy of the United States toward China, Bishop Roots said: said:

"There should be constant recognition of the fact that dependence upon our army and navy to protect the rights of our nationals in China is seldom useful and often detrimental. That does not mean that we should not continue to have our forces there, but we should not put dependence upon them. In the first place, they cannot reach very far. Our policy, what I believe now is our policy, should be a general study of the conditions throughout the Far East and the clear recognition of our opportunity and responsibility as Americans to take the lead in carrying out a thorough readjustment between China and the foreign powers.

"The rights granted the missionaries by treaty with foreign powers concern three things—traveling, preaching and residence throughout China, the freedom of Chinese converts to profess Christianity and not to be proscribed for their faith, and the ownership of property for military purposes anywhere in China. Without expressing any judgment as to the wisdom of the treaty provisions above referred to, I venture to say that I believe the time has come when missionaries individually and missionary societies as well should advocate the omission from future treaties with China any such provisions as these."

Chinese Urges Non-Interference.

Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, Managing Director of the Chinese Trade and Labor Bureau, Boston, urged that China be left without outside interference, and receive a little more of "a Chinaman's chance." He continued:

"China, once given the right to become master of its own house, will, as its people are the most industrious in the world, develop its neglected resources and create an efficient government free from foreign oppression. Pure business acumen, if nothing else, at such a time as this should prompt the powers not to kill the Chinese goose that lays the golden egg."

Replying to the criticism of American policy in the Far East, made here yesterday by Matosada Zumoto, editor of the Herald of Asia, Tokio, and former member of the Japanese Diet, Dr. Tehyi said:

"I am not sure it is politic for a 'sinner' like Japan, whose foreign policy towards China has been so notorious, to throw 'mud' at Uncle Sam, whose foreign policy is defensive, not offensive or even aggressive. Japan's attitude towards China is as insincere as England's imperialistic policy."

The Chinese questioned Japan's and Mr. Zumoto's expressions of sympathy for China, asking whether Japan means what she says.

Mr. Zumoto in reply said that when he expressed his sympathy for the Chinese in their struggle to get back their own from foreign aggressors, he spoke from the heart.

"I do not think any Chinese need be afraid of Japanese sympathy," he declared, "because our sympathy will not be forced upon them. It will only be put in action when they desire it."

Zumoto Tells of Japan's Ore.

Commenting on the statement recently made by Professor Charles K. Leith, geologist, that Japan was not a menace to the United States because Japan lacked the mineral resources to build up such a great steel industry as would be needed to carry out a successful war with this country, Mr. Zumoto said:

"I quite agree with Professor Leith as to the utter poverty of the Far East in the matter of minerals and raw materials necessary for the growth of any really great steel industry. There exists in China, also in Japan, vast quantities of low-grade ore, which at present do not yield themselves to economic processes.

"A number of scientific experts are working upon a process which they hope will shortly enable us to extract steel from this low-grade deposit. But even if those processes were successful it would take a long time for the East to develop a steel industry to the same degree of perfection as exists in this country or Europe. Really that would be of no help to us if we wanted to fight the United States, as we do not."

At the round table on agriculture and the population Warren S. Thompson, Director of the Scripps Foundation for the Study of Population Problems, said that emigration could not give permanent relief to over-populated countries, and that birth control was the only logical method to solve this problem. He said he hoped that our knowledge of the causes of feeblemindedness would increase so that all socially unfit persons could be prevented from marrying.

Lost Car Back Mysteriously; Men Were Paid to Return It

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Aug. 13.—Three negroes drove up to the office of the Sheriff of Suffolk County here today in an expensive automobile. The spokesman said to a deputy:

"Well, boss, here she is. A man in Delaware told us to drive her up here."

"Wait a minute. What's this?" said the Deputy Sheriff. Consulting the records, he found that the automobile belonged to R. H. E. Herbold, insurance broker of 80 Maiden Lane, Manhattan, from whom it had been stolen on July 26, while he was spending a week end at West Hampton.

"We don't know anything about the car being stolen, boss," said the spokesman in response to quiries. "This man in Delaware just told us to bring it here and paid us."

The three men were allowed to go and the insurance broker was informed that his car had returned as mysteriously as it had vanished.

AUTO LICENSE GRAFT BRINGS 5TH ARREST

Head of Lincoln Auto School Accused of Getting Permit for 16-Year-Old Boy.

HARNETT PRESSES INQUIRY

But Thinks There Has Been No Wholesale Bribery—$1,000 Bail for 4 Held as Extortioners.

State Commissioner Charles A. Harnett's investigation into the charge of graft and fraud among his employes in the New York State Motor Vehicle Bureau resulted yesterday in a fifth arrest. The prisoner was Morris Kreindell, head of the Lincoln Auto School, who was accused of procuring a license for a sixteen-year-old boy by representing him to be 21 years of age.

Kreindell is a State Commissioner of Deeds and was arrested under Section 1625 of the Penal Law, which forbids State officials to accept money for assisting persons to get licenses.

The sixteen-year-old boy was William Levine of 76 Monroe Street, an experienced driver and auto mechanic. The State law permits licenses to competent drivers of 18 years old and over, but required proof of age if the applicant is between 18 and 21. To avoid the necessity of furnishing proof, Kreindell is accused of drawing up application papers and marking up the boy's age five years. Levine then took his road test and passed it easily. It is not alleged, in connection with this case, that any employe of the Motor Vehicle Bureau acted corruptly.

District Attorney Banton took over the investigation of the charges that incompetents obtained State licenses without passing road tests, but by paying bribes. Mr. Banton took a hand at the request of State License Commissioner Gilchrist and Commissioner Harnett, both of whom said that the indications were that sufficient graft existed to make a thorough inquiry necessary.

Four Accused Men Held in $1,000.

The four men—Joseph Canavan, Daniel J. Hughes, Robert J. Naddio and Harry Eisman—who were accused of acting in concert to extort fees of $50 for giving applicants licenses without road tests, were held in bail of $1,000 each in Jefferson Market Court.

Commissioner Harnett was in doubt yesterday how far bribery had been practised for getting licenses without tests.

"From rumors and from the general impression that prevails," he said, "I would be inclined to think there had been quite a few cases. On the other hand, the confessions that have so far been made give us information of a total of twenty cases in all. There may be others. A thorough investigation is necessary to bring the facts to light.

"But I do not believe there has been any wholesale grafting in this field. Last June, for the purpose of checking up on the work of this bureau, I sent out letters to 300 applicants for licenses. About 180 of these had passed the tests. About 120 had been rejected. I sent them questionnaires asking them to inform me confidentially about their experiences with this bureau, whether they had been courteously and properly treated. I also asked for suggestions for the improvement of the services. There were ninety replies to this letter. Not one hinted at graft. Only one man had a suggestion to make. From this I gather that there has not been any grafting on a large scale.

"From the confessions that have been made so far, the idea of taking bribes in return for good marks on the road tests began to be circulated some time about last March. At that time the probationary inspectors knew who had passed their examinations for civil service and who had not. Some of those who had not passed them and had a short time to serve appear to have hit on this idea of selling good marks.

"My suspicions were first aroused in July when a man told me he had heard of cases in which candidates for licenses had obtained them by paying bribes instead of taking road tests. This informant could furnish me with no specific evidence.

"I will require re-examinations for all those who have obtained licenses under circumstances which appear to be suspicious. So far, there are only the twenty cases within our knowledge, and we have not the names of the men who obtained the licenses by paying the fees extorted from them.

Cases of Two Kinds Uncovered.

"There appear to have been cases of two kinds—those in which fees were asked to give good marks to an incompetent and those in which low marks were given to competent men in order to force them to pay bribes to get their licenses. I have heard rumors of the latter class of cases, but we have no specific information concerning them at present.

"The investigation has barely started and it will take a great deal of tedious work to discover those who have obtained licenses without passing tests.

"If our further inquiry reveals apparent and corroborated guilt on the part of any more members of the force of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, no quarter will be shown them so far as vigorous prosecution is concerned. I am determined that no dishonest employe will remain in the service of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles so far as it is in my power to terminate such service. If the dismissal of all present employes is necessary to the execution of this determination, I will take the responsibility for a general housecleaning."

INCENDIARY WORKS DESPITE POLICE GUARD

Sixth Fire Is Started in Harlem Tenement Despite Special Watch —Igniter Escapes.

Patrolman Edward J. Fitzsimmons, stationed at 501 West 127th Street because five suspicious fires had been discovered there last Saturday and Sunday, got proof last night of an incendiary's work in the building but was unable to find the person.

Twelve families, two of them negroes, live in the building, which is a five-story brick tenement. The first fire was found Saturday and the four others on Sunday, each on a different floor and each in rubbish and paper. Tenants and the janitor extinguished the first four, but an alarm wa sturned in for the fifth and Fire Marshal Brophy asked that a policeman be placed on guard there.

Fitzsimmons was returning from an inspection trip to the top floor at 9 o'clock last night when he smelled smoke and found a pile of blazing paper on the first floor where a few minutes previously there had been no paper. He stamped out the blaze, but saw no trace of the person who made the fire. The tenants said they heard no one.

D. A. Boody, Wall St. Trader, at 88, Advises 'Keeping Interested' as Recipe for Long Life

David A. Boody, former Mayor of Brooklyn, former Congressman and a Wall Street trader of sixty years' standing, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday yesterday by working as usual at his desk in the offices of the Stock Exchange house of Boody & McLellan, 111 Broadway. Associates in the firm presented Mr. Boody with a large bouquet of flowers, and numerous friends called at his office during the day to congratulate him, but these marked the only variation from his customary activities in the direction of his business.

"Keeping interested in things," is the rule given by Mr. Boody for a long and active life. Associates in his office said that Mr. Boody lived just about the same kind of life now that he had forty years ago. In addition to his activities as head of Boody & McLellan he is a director of the People's Trust Company and other business organizations; he holds an important office in the Library Association, which has helped to administer the Carnegie gifts, and devotes much time to civic and educational enterprises in Brooklyn.

On the walls of Mr. Boody's office are interesting records of his career in Wall Street. One is a check for $45,000, signed by Russell Sage, representing a stock transaction made fifty-seven years ago. The check is dated May 1, 1868, and is drawn on Howes & Macy, bankers. Another was drawn to the order of Schaffer Brothers on Oct. 27, 1868, representing the transfer of 100 shares of Erie Railroad stock.

Each morning Mr. Boody arrives at his office about 10 o'clock and remains until about 3 in the afternoon. He is fond of quoting Theodore Roosevelt's maxim, "It is better to wear out than to rust out." He also said yesterday that he had been "very fortunate in the selection of a father and mother." Mr. Boody's father, who founded a pioneer home in Maine, died at the age of 72 and his mother lived to be 95.

Mr. Boody and his wife recently celebrated their sixty-second wedding anniversary in their home in Berkeley Place, Brooklyn. Mrs. Boody was 84 years old last month.

DENIES A NEW TRIAL TO DOOMED PANTANO

KILLER 'ABSOLVED' PANTANO

Executed Man's Word Not Weighty Enough to Go Before a Jury, Justice Dike Holds.

The motion for a new trial for Anthony J. Pantano, the fourth man convicted of complicity in the murder of two messengers for the West End Bank in Brooklyn in November, 1923, on the ground that a statement made by John Farina just before his execution was newly discovered evidence, was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Norman S. Dike. Pantano is now in the Sing Sing death house. He has appealed his conviction.

Farina's statement was made to the priest who attended him in the death house. It was that "so far as I know, Anthony Pantano was forced and threatened into giving his information." The information was used by the actual robbers.

Justice Dike held that the Farina statement was hearsay evidence at best, and at the worst was "the frivolous gesture of a convicted felon" and of no value in law.

"It would be interesting to know the genesis of this document; the statement of this man Farina, made on the brink of eternity; interesting to discover the sources of the inspiration of the condemned in uttering the final words, as far as we know, in relation to this terrible tragedy. If it were an eleventh-hour effort to save an innocent man, Farina, it seems to me, could have been more generous in his utterances, more convincing in his detail. Under the circumstances its brevity condemns it.

"The fact is that Pantano had been employed by this very bank at various intervals, and very shortly, indeed, before the homicide. He was obviously familiar with the business routine of the bank, and, according to his own confession, Pantano furnished to his accomplices all the necessary details as to the custom and routine of the bank in transporting the money. After the tragedy Pantano was seeking some of the money, the spoils, as the result of the murders.

"If one reads and re-reads and studies this document offered, one is more and more impressed with the fact that it is simply a vague expression of opinion. If a new trial were granted and this evidence was offered, it would have to be excluded as the merest hearsay.

"In its present condition it lacks all of the elements of solemnity that surrounds customary evidence in a trial—the opportunity of the jury to study the witness; the oath in court administered in the presence of the Judge presiding, and, lastly and most important of all, the test of cross-examination, when all interest and bias and prejudice, all exact sources of knowledge, may be shown to the jury. This document omits all of these safeguards of legitimate evidence.

"As evidence at best it would have merely the weight of a guess or a surmise, and such evidence juries are not permitted to consider; at its worst it is a trivial thing that should not for one moment check the judgment of the Court.

"This cold-blooded felon who signed this document lit a cigar, and, entering the death chamber, spat upon the electric chair, cannot now have his words read by a jury, because the law forbids it as hearsay."

FIRE KILLS DOCTOR IN BED.

Physician Believed to Have Fallen Asleep While Smoking.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, N. J., Aug. 13.—Dr. Harvey J. McClaughan, a physician here, was burned to death this morning in bed at his home at 75 Main Street. The presence of a smoking stand by his bedside led the police to believe that he fell asleep while smoking and set fire to the bedding.

Mrs. McClaughan, who sleeps in an adjoining room, was awakened by the smell of smoke. She found the doctor lying across his bed enveloped in flames. Firemen confined the fire to the bedroom, but Dr. McClaughan was beyond aid.

SEEKS FRAUD ORDER FOR COMPANY HERE

CITES MANY COMPLAINTS

Company's Attorney Will Appeal—Says Postoffice Department's Hearing Was Irregular.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Recommendation has been made to Postmaster General New by Solicitor Blessing, of the Post Office Department, that a fraud order be issued against the Knickerbocker Merchandising Company of 122 East Twenty-fifth Street, New York.

In a report to Mr. New, Solicitor Blessing says the Knickerbocker Company informed prospective members it could get staple groceries from 8 to 12 per cent. per $100 cheaper and dry goods and notions from 10 per cent. to 20 per cent. cheaper for them than from local jobbers, putting the members in position to compete with chain store groceries. But, says Mr. Blessing, Maurice Innerfield, President of the company, told postal inspectors that his company could not sell groceries at prices enabling this competition, although he said he hoped to get members to buy dry goods and notions on which he claimed he could save the percentage indicated.

Knowingly Fraudulent, He Says.

"I find from all of the evidence that the material representation upon which this scheme is based, to the effect that members will be sold groceries at such prices as to enable them to compete 'with any grocery combination, syndicate or chain store in the land,' is knowingly false and fraudulent," says Mr. Blessing. He further says:

"This is a scheme for selling 'memberships' of little or no value to grocers and small merchants throughout the country upon numerous false and fraudulent pretenses, representations and promises; that after the memberships are sold members are discouraged by irregularity in the issuance of price lists; by delay in shipment of goods ordered by them; by failure to supply goods ordered; by forcing members to pay freight charges which the company had agreed in its literature to pay, and by charging much higher prices than those quoted in its price lists. In a number of instances members complain that merchandise received was of an inferior grade from that ordered."

Went Ahead With Hearing.

The Blessing report asserts that after delays dating from May 25, 1925, when the company was first cited, the President of the company on July 13 agreed to have delivery of mail withheld. On July 30 Harry Kopp, attorney for the company, asked for a further postponement, indicating that he wanted the fraud order hearing deferred until after the Federal attorney at New York had disposed of the question of presenting the matter to the Grand Jury.

The Postoffice Department took the ground that the fraud order was in no way connected with a criminal case and held a hearing Aug. 5, but, says Mr. Blessing, no one appeared to represent the Knickerbocker Merchandising Company.

It was said at the department that the Postmaster General had not yet signed the order.

Harry Kopp, attorney for the Knickerbocker Merchandising Company, said last night at his home at 2,595 Sedgwick Avenue, the Bronx, that if a fraud order were issued by the Postmaster General, he would take steps to appeal it at once, on the ground that an adjournment of the hearing was improperly refused.

He said that the company was organized four years ago. The intention of the initiators, he said, was to form an organization of grocers which would keep them posted on prices in the trade and enable them to buy goods at special rates. Certificates were issued to those grocers who joined, he said, and a year ago several of them complained that they were not receiving the service they had bargained for and lodged complaints when the company refused to refund the money they paid for their certificates of membership.

Mr. Kopp contended that the hearing by the Postoffice authorities should have been adjourned until complaints to the District Attorney here had been disposed of.

SEIZED AS LEADER OF GARAGE HOLD-UP

'Alias Jimmy Boston' Called Notorious Criminal—Real Name Is Joseph Lundy.

Policeman's Shots Halt His Flight—Liquor Found in Taxis He Is Said to Have Helped Steal.

In the capture early yesterday of a man who said he was James Collins the police declared they had run to earth not only the leader of a hold-up gang, who had been at liberty under bail, but a notorious criminal whose real name was Joseph Lundy, alias "Jimmy Boston." Collins was held without bail by Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in Jefferson Market Court on a charge of suspicion of robbery.

Arrested by Patrolman Thomas Gashon of the West Thirtieth Street Station at Thirty-eighth Street and Park Avenue, after a chase in which shots were fired, Collins was identified as the leader of four men who, earlier in the day, had held up three employes of the Adriatic Garage at 249 West Eighteenth Street. The thugs robbed them of about $400 in money and jewelry and escaped in two taxicabs belonging to drivers who had put them in the garage for the night. In the taxicabs, recovered later, the police said they found nineteen cases of whisky and two of champagne.

Gives Chase in a Taxi.

Patrolman Gashon said he first sighted Collins on the running board of a taxicab that was going very rapidly through Eighteenth Street. Gashon commandeered another taxicab and gave chase. As he gained on the pursued taxicab he called out to its driver to stop. Then he gave his chauffeur orders to crowd the other taxicab to the curb.

As the first taxi halted, Gashon said, two men jumped out and ran. The policeman fired several shots and Collins stopped and surrendered. The other man escaped. Collins had a pistol, Gashon told Magistrate Oberwager.

The other taxicab stolen from the garage was found by Patrolman Krause of the Clinton Street Station in front of 24 Cherry Street an hour after the arrest of Collins. Krause said two men had alighted from it and had entered the house at No. 24. The patrolman followed them into the house, he reported, but they escaped by climbing the back fence into the next street. In the taxicab, Krause said, he found twelve cases of whisky and two of champagne. The seven other cases of whisky were found in the cab chased by Patrolman Gashon.

High Ball in Truck Theft.

Four men arrested Wednesday night aboard a stolen truck in front of 37 West Twentieth Street were held in $25,000 bail each yesterday by Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman in Tombs Court for examination Tuesday on a charge of having held up a truck and stolen merchandise valued at about $25,000. The prisoners said they were Morris Dolowich, a merchant, of 301 South Third Street; Sol Elfman, a jobber, of 184 Belmont Avenue; Louis Bloom, a cigar manufacturer of 728 Marcy Avenue, all of Brooklyn, and Dominick Cusumano, a truck driver, of 501 East Sixty-ninth Street.

The police said the merchandise on the truck, five cases of toys and twenty-five cases of clothing, had been stolen from Dirkin & Peterday of 82 University Place. The truck was trailed by detectives from a warehouse at 443 East Sixty-eighth Street.

Three men were held in $1,500 bail each yesterday by Magistrate Goodman on a charge of having broken into the basement of a restaurant owned by Louis Bukenstein at 42 Beach Street. The prisoners are Edward Patten of 256 Hudson Street, Patrick Maloney of 442 Greenwich Street and Thomas Barrett of 641 Hudson Street.

THIEVES CUT 5TH AV. WINDOW

Mysterious Men Tell Dunhill's Porter of $2,500 Robbery.

Oliver Hall, colored porter, who at 8:30 A. M. opens the shop of Alfred Dunhill of London, tobacconist at Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, on his way to work yesterday was accosted by two men in front of Stern Brothers store in Forty-second Street. One man carried a cane. He said:

"You work at Dunhill's, don't you? Well, one of the windows has been rifled."

Hall had never seen the men before, he said. He thought they were joking.

When he reached the store he found that the second window from Fifth Avenue on Forty-third Street had been cracked in the lower right hand corner, making a hole just large enough for insertion of a hooking device, such, for instance, as a cane. The window was in disarray.

He telephoned S. J. Ballinger, store manager. An inventory showed that three gold and platinum cigarette cases valued at $500 each, one gold cigarette case worth $275, two cases worth $250, one worth $100, a 14-karat solid gold patent cigar lighter worth $160 and several gold-plated cases valued at $30 each were missing. Total loss was put at $2,500.

The police were notified. The two men and the cane were not found.

SAYS CALLER ROBBED HER.

Woman Is Badly Beaten—Man She Accused Is Arrested.

Terribly beaten by a man who she said struck her with a bludgeon and then tore two diamond rings from her fingers, Mrs. Rose Rosengart, 22 years old, was taken from her apartment at 669 East Fifth Street, Brooklyn, late yesterday afternoon to the United Israel hospital where she is in serious condition.

Later in the evening detectives of the Parkville Station went to the home of a young woman on East Sixteenth Street, near Kings Highway, Brooklyn, and arrested Arnold Knecht, 23 years old, a silk salesman of 37 Clara Street, Brooklyn. He was locked in the Parkville Station on a charge of felonious assault.

Mrs. Rosengart's husband is in business in Yonkers. According to the story she told Detectives Smith and Ferioli, Knecht called at her home yesterday afternoon. Residents of the apartment house saw Knecht leaving the place, the police say, and a few minutes later Mrs. Rosengart staggered out and collapsed. She was attended by Dr. Greenfield and later at the hospital told the detectives they would probably find Knecht at the East Sixteenth Street address.

DINE, STEAL CASH REGISTER

Two Patrons Arrested After Walking Out With Money.

Insult added to injury was the way David Kreiger, a restaurant keeper, of 25 Kearny Avenue, Jersey City, described the action of two unwelcome patrons last night. The two men ate heartily, walked to the cashier's desk, pushed the cashier aside and walked off with the cash register.

Kreiger ran to the street and blew a police whistle. Patrolman Beftman answered and arrested the two diners. They were carrying the cash register. They said they were Thomas Price, 22 years old, 512 Jackson Avenue, and Michael Devaney, 23 years old, of 778 Ocean Avenue, both of Jersey City.

12-Year-Old Boy Tells How To Be a Good American Citizen

Arthur Etkin, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Etkin of 85 Seaman Avenue, who won the American Legion's essay contest on "My Duties as an American Citizen," will leave for Philadelphia this afternoon on a two-day sight-seeing trip as the guest of the American Legion.

Part of the essay which won for him the first prize reads:

"If a person plays fair in a game, does not cheat, is a good loser and generous winner and treats his opponents with courtesy; if he is slow to harbor suspicions, avoids hasty opinions and stands by the truth and nothing but the truth, then he is a good American citizen.

"If a person proves his loyalty to his country by being ready to die for it in the time of need, then he proves himself a good American citizen."

BOOTLEG MARKET FLOODED WITH BEER

Six Thousand Barrels Seized Here in Past Month, Merrick Reports.

Narcotic Squad Joins in Liquor Drive by Raid on Alleged Alcohol Plant.

Divisional Prohibition Chief R. Q. Merrick cited figures yesterday which he said proved the tendency in the bootleg market now was toward acceleration of the manufacture and sale of beer. He said that in the last thirty days more beer of illegal alcoholic content had been seized through the local headquarters than in six months before. Three carloads of beer seized yesterday bring the total number of barrels taken in the last thirty days to 6,000. He estimates the value of this beer at about $100,000 at the source and approximately twice that in the bootleg market.

Mr. Merrick had at first estimated the numebr of carloads seized today at six but changed that figure when he was informed by the police that three carloads lying in the New York Central yards at West Sixty-eighth Street had proved to be a shipment made by prohibition headquarters to the army base in Brooklyn as the result of a seizure made last Sunday night in Hudson, N. Y.

Agents of the Federal Narcotic Squad under Division Chief Ralph Oyler made their appearance yesterday as prohibition enforcers with several raids. It is said that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln Andrews, learning that many of the regular rum sleuths were on vacation and being anxious there should be no let up, had thrown the narcotics men into the breach.

Their most sensational exploit yesterday was uncovering what was alleged to have been one of the largest plants for the distribution of alcohol for illegal sale in the city. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning, disguised as automobile mechanics and tinkering with their car, which they had halted in front of 82 Mulberry Street, they waited until a truck that drove up began to unload its contents. Then they swooped down on the truck crew, who made no resistance.

There are two houses at the address. In the rear building they say they found 500 five-gallon cans of alcohol and 400 similar cans in the hallway of the front building. They arrested the driver of the truck and his six companions, charging them with transporting and possessing liquor. When taken before United States Commissioner Cotter, the driver was held in $1,000 bail and the six helpers in $500.

A Coast Guard patrol boat sighted the two-masted schooner Annie Louise off Sandy Hook Wednesday night and followed her until she tied up at the foot of Fulton Street and East River, when her captain and crew went below for a midnight supper. The Coast Guard men telephoned to the Barge Office for a searching squad, and when the latter arrived they found the schooner deserted.

When the crew had not appeared at noon yesterday the ship's hold was searched. The surveyor's men say they found approximately 500 cases of liquor buried under 500 pounds of codfish. The liquor was valued at $30,000 and the boat at $15,000. The names of the owners have not been discovered, and there is no clue to the identity of the crew. The vessel is believed to have come from Halifax.

Four members of the crew of the two-masted schooner Frank and Lloyd, captured fifty miles off Long Island yesterday by the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding, were landed at the Barge office, the Battery, shortly after last midnight. The schooner, which carried 500 cases of assorted liquor, was towed into Gravesend Bay by the Paulding and the crew were transferred to Coast Guard cutter 209.

No details of the capture were forthcoming from the boatswain in command of the cutter but it was learned that the captain of the schooner, Jack Harris, was not on board when the destroyer's crew went aboard. The four men under arrest are Edward Johnson, Harold Smith, James Rogers and George Evans. They would not say where the schooner came from. They will be arraigned before a United States Commissioner this morning.

BRICKLAYERS QUIT PARLEY.

Object to Chairman Because He Is in Firm Strike Is Aimed At.

The Joint Arbitration Committee of the Mason Builders' Association, consisting of representatives of the Bricklayers Union and members of the Mason Builders' Association, had been in session only a few minutes last night at the Building Trades Employers' Association, 34 West Thirty-third Street, when John Gill, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Bricklayers Union, objected to R. C. Whiting as Chairman of the Arbitration Committee, on the ground that he was a member of the contracting firm of George A. Fuller Company, one of the firms against which the bricklayers have struck.

Mr. Whiting said he was willing to hear any complaints against the bricklayers other than those made by his company, but the bricklayers refused to discuss any complaints with him in the chair. The meeting was immediately adjourned. The representatives of the union left while the members of the Mason Builders' Association remained to discuss further steps in settle the disagreement. They issued a statement charging the bricklayers' union with a violation of the joint agreement in calling a strike before submitting their complaints to the Arbitration Committee, and with further violations in striking on school and hospital work. The representatives of the Mason Builders' Association will request a special meeting some time next week to take action on these violations.

Chester Wright of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union, said after the meeting, in regard to the alleged violation of the joint agreement, that no strikes were to be called on hospital or school work and that a statement would be issued today which would explain that phase of the situation.

START SUIT TO TEST THEATRE TICKET LAW

Tyson Agency Asks Injunction Against Enforcing 50-Cent Limit Above Face Value.

DECLARES ACT IS INVALID

Will Cause 'Great and Irreparable Loss,' Federal Court Is Told.

Suit to test the constitutionality of the section of the New York State general business law which forbids theatre ticket agencies from charging more than 50 cents above the face value of any ticket they sell was brought in the Federal court yesterday by Tyson and Brother, the United Theatre Ticket Offices, Inc. The action is in the form of an application for an injunction restraining District Attorney Joab H. Banton and State Controller Vincent B. Murphy from enforcing the provisions of the law.

The plaintiff declares that the enforcement "deprives plaintiff of its liberty and property without due process of law and of the equal protection of the laws," and that it will cause "great and irreparable loss," all of which, the complaint says, infringes upon the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution. The court is asked to declare the law unconstitutional and perpetually restrain all officials from enforcing it.

Details of the business of maintaining a theatrical ticket agency are given in that portion of the complaint devoted to setting forth that the plaintiffs are engaged in a "lawful" business and one that "cannot be prohibited directly or indirectly."

The business done annually by the concern, according to the complaint, exceeds $1,500,000. It is said that less than half of this amount represents cash sales, there being approximately 5,000 monthly charge accounts. It is frequently necessary to borrow money for temporary financing of current expenses owing to these deferred payments, the complaint says, the amounts borrowed sometimes running up to $75,000, upon which interest must be paid.

Approximately half the tickets handled by the agency are subscribed for with theatrical managers before the play opens its run, sometimes even before the cast is made up, and these tickets must be paid for two weeks in advance, the complaint says.

Figures submitted show that in 1923 the concern paid in advance for 140,500 tickets, which cost $540,750.50; that in 1924 there were 127,752 tickets similarly purchased at a cost of $491,604.15; and that from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1924, the number of tickets paid for in advance of theatre openings was 81,924, at a total cost of $315,510.

Totaling and averaging these figures, which is not done in the complaint, shows an aggregate of 350,176 tickets purchased during the two and a half years, at a cost of $1,347,864.65, or an average cost of a fraction over $3.80 per ticket purchased.

The complaint further recites that of other tickets purchased and not sold it is necessary to return them to the theatre at 1:30 for matinees and 7:30 for evening performances, and that if they are not returned at that time they represent a total loss. It also is set forth that the theatres allow returns on subscribed tickets of from 10 to 25 per cent. of their cost. The loss from tickets purchased and not sold to customers has during the last three years averaged 18,230 per year, at a cost of $70,210, the complaint says.

Details of the cost of running the business are shown in the complaint. The annual rental of the office is put at $24,000, with a lease expiring on May 1, 1940. It is said there are thirty-one telephones for customers and fifty-five private wires maintained to box offices of various theatres. The telephone cost of doing business has averaged $5,400 a year for the last three years.

The company employs fifteen salesmen at an average salary of $6,350 per year. These salesmen, the complaint says, do not solicit business outside, but sell tickets over the counter and by means of telephoned orders. Other yearly expenses given are ten messengers at $5,200 for delivery of tickets; a cashier at $2,280; a porter at $1,200; five bookkeepers at $10,300, and car fares for the delivery of tickets $1,500.

The figure of more than $1,500,000 as the annual volume of business is derived, according to the complaint, from the sale of approximately 300,000 tickets, which is mentioned as the average number sold a year during the last five year. Although the complaint does not analyze these figures, 300,000 tickets sold at $1,500,000 would represent an average price of the agency of $5 a ticket, as compared with the average cost of $3.80 a ticket at which those bought in advance of openings were acquired. Some tickets, the complaint says, are bought from box offices and from other brokers and distributers, in many instances at a cost in excess of the face value.

"The plaintiff performs a useful service to its customers," the complaint says. "It saves them the time and cost of going to box offices, which are usually at great distance from their homes, and standing in line at box offices."

The defendants named, the complaint continues, have frequently expressed their intention of enforcing the 50-cent premium provision of the law and have caused the arrest of persons charged with violating it. The penalties provided by the law are so extreme, the complaint says, that the plaintiffs are unwilling to sell tickets for more than the price specified in the law, even for the purpose of testing its constitutionality, and they are therefore obliged to submit, even though they consider the law invalid. For this reason, they say, they have no other remedy than recourse to injunction proceedings. They set forth that they paid the $100 license fee required by the law under protest.

"The action is one in equity under the Constitution and laws of the United States," the complaint recites, "brought to repress and prevent the deprivation, under color of a statute of the State of New York, of certain rights and immunities secured to the plaintiff by the Constitution of the United States; that is, the right to have and enjoy its property without being deprived thereof without due process of law and without being denied the equal protection of the law."

It is set forth that the suit "involves the question whether or not the plaintiff may resell or engage in the business of reselling any tickets of admission or other evidences of right of entry to a theatre, place of amusement or entertainment, or other place where public exhibitions, games, contests or performances are held, and exact and receive a price for any such tickets or evidences of the right of entry in excess of 50 cents in advance of that printed on the face thereof."

The papers in the proceedings were served yesterday afternoon on Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora. He said the case would be fought vigorously by the District Attorney's office and that every effort would be made to uphold the law, which he said he considered constitutional. The plaintiffs are represented by Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stock Exchange Prices Irregular Again, but Generally Firmer—Money Unchanged.

Such news as had a bearing on the financial position yesterday was favorable. It comprised a strong Federal reserve statement, with the reserve ratio higher both at New York and in the system as a whole, a trade statement for July which indicated larger activity in our foreign commerce, and a report of weekly loadings of railway freight which was in all respects remarkable. Whether the Stock Exchange did or did not consciously "reflect" these announcements, prices went up again in the majority of shares, notably in the railway group, though still with the familiar irregularity and counter-movements. It is hardly a market which moves up or down according to the news; it may be more accurately described as indicating a speculative mood.

There was no suggestion in the Reserve Bank statements of an altered money situation. Rediscounts were slightly reduced and so were holdings of Government securities, and the ratio of reserve, although lower than that of a year ago, was nevertheless high for the season, with actual cash holdings still 100 per cent. above the minimum requirements. The twelve banks hold $193,000,000 more bills purchased from the open market than they held a year ago, and $37,000,000 more than at the present date in 1923, and this is the focus of recent controversy over the system's money market policy. Holdings of open-market bills have been reduced $129,000,000 from the year's high point, but rediscounts have simultaneously risen $336,000,000; so that the system is still an essential influence in the present ease of money.

On the other markets of the day, a fall in spot cotton to the lowest price in nine weeks, less than a cent a pound above the year's low figure, emphasized again the trade's real interpretation of Saturday's cotton estimate. There are several interesting aspects to the foreign trade statement for July, which was published yesterday. It shows an export surplus of $12,000,000, as against an import surplus of $2,000,000 in the revised figures for June. Except for last year, this is the smallest July excess of exports since 1914; but that is not because of a decreased outward trade. On the contrary, last month's exports reached a larger value than in July of any year since 1920. They exceed those of 1924 by $51,000,000, or 28 per cent., although average prices have risen during the twelvemonth only 5 per cent.

But imports have risen proportionately and are pressing closely on the monthly exports, as they had not done for many years until 1923. If the grain market's prediction of a vanishing export trade in wheat during the coming season is fulfilled, the effect on the balance of exports and imports should presently be felt. In the twelve months ending with June our total export trade increased $553,000,000 over the year preceding, but $218,000,000 of that increase occurred in wheat and most of the balance in other grains and cotton, none of which will figure in the country's export trade as they did last year. The July trade statement also reports the first monthly excess of gold imports over exports since last November, but it is only small. It follows $180,700,000 net gold exports in the seven preceding months.

Statements of traffic moved by the railways have for months past been exceptionally large, even when the mercantile reviews were complaining of "dull trade," that the weekly "car-loading figures" have lost something of their appeal to financial imagination. The report published yesterday, however, has some particularly interesting aspects. Not only were more cars loaded in the last week of July than in any corresponding week on record, but the total exceeds the highest achievement in the first seven months of any year. Comparing with the same week in the active season of 1923, the point of significance is that loadings of merchandise and miscellaneous freight were greater this year by 52,700 cars, indicating roughly a 9 per cent. larger distribution of goods that constitute what we call general trade. The increase of nearly half a million cars over 1924, in the five weeks last reported on, has occurred in the face of decrease of nearly 15,000 cars of grain. The contrast illustrates one of the numerous anomalies of this interesting season.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, AUG. 13, 1925.

Continued heavy offerings of both call and time funds again made for a distinctly easy tone in the money market, Stock Exchange demand loans being quoted all day at 4 per cent., a fraction under Wednesday's maximum, business in the outside market going at 3½. Feature in time money was the supply of four months' funds at 4½, a fair part of which was taken in replacements. Six months' was offered at 4¾, but there was very little doing at that figure as brokers are holding out for further concession in view of the lower tendency in shorter dates.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Renewed Advance on the Stock Exchange; Railway Shares Higher.

While price fluctuations were irregular at times during yesterday's stock market operations, the tendency of the market as a whole was upward. A few decided advances occurred in both railway and industrial groups, but the activity and strength in the railway shares were the outtanding features of the day. In the industrial group American Can and Mack Trucks were again the leaders, both establishing new high records for the year. Other industrial issues which closde substantially higher included White Motors, du Pont, Westinghouse Air Brake and Fisher Body. Motors as a group were irregular in connection with the price-cutting now going on. The declaration of an extra dividend by General Motors was not announced until after the close.

Commission House Sentiment Again Mixed.

As a result of the upward movement in stock market prices commission house brokers, after the close of business yesterday, sent another word of warning to their clients, advising greater discrimination in making new commitments. Numerous firms had expressed the opinion that the advance in prices was not ended, but after yesterday's further demonstration in the high-priced speculative specialties the belief prevailed that a reactionary tendency might soon develop, even if based upon nothing more than technical conditions within the market itself. There seem to be a few groups of stocks in which bearishness now prevails. Some firms that were bullish on the oil shares up to a few months ago have reversed their position and now boldly advise their customers to "sell oil stocks at the market." The wisdom of this policy was questioned in some conservative quarters yesterday because of the recent drastic decline in those shares, but it was generally admitted that the professionals had been having things very much their own way on the short side of the petroleum stocks.

Cotton Figures Due Today.

The Census Bureau will today issue its monthly report covering the consumption and export of cotton during July. So far as consumption by American mills is concerned, it is expected that the figure will be smaller than that reported for June, but favorable when compared with the same months last year. According to trade estimates yesterday, July consumption by American mills aggregated 445,000 bales, against 493,765 bales in June and 346,671 bales in July last year. This would indicate that a total of 6,140,000 bales of cotton were consumed during the past cotton year, against a total of 5,680,000 in the previous cotton year.

The Daily Whirl.

It was almost noon yesterday before American Can and Mack Trucks got into their stride for their daily gyrations. By the time the market had closed, however, Mack Trucks had gained 12¼ points and American Can 6. The system used in advancing both stocks seems to be to allow the short interest no quarter.

The Railway Shares and Traffic.

Activity in the railway shares yesterday, while representing in part a continuance of the recent demand for stocks expecting either favorable merger or dividend action, was more directly attributed to the car-loadings report for the week ended Aug. 1. The figures there presented suggested to Wall Street that the carriers were in line for much the same succession of million-car weeks as they experienced year before last. The series started just a week later this year than in 1923, but the fact that a substantially better showing was made than in the same week of 1923 led yesterday to predictions that the current year would set another record for total loadings. Frisco common shares sold yesterday at 95, the best price in their history, while new high prices on the movement were reached by Rock Island at 48⅝ and Erie at 32½, during the day.

The "Ticker Symbols."

So many new stocks have been added to the "big board" during the last year or so that frequently the Stock Exchange Committee on Securities encounters difficulty in selecting ticker symbols which will be at once economical from the printing standpoint and representative of the corporation. The list has grown so large that it now requires a keen memory to keep in mind all the symbols. Nevertheless, there are many persons in Wall Street, ranging from "board boys" to the heads of Stock Exchange firms, who can read the tape from 10 o'clock to 3 without a single error. The symbols for the six new stocks added yesterday are as follows: Reid Ice Cream, RS; Coty, Inc., COT; Belding Brothers, BEG; Gabriel Snubber, GRR; General Outdoor Advertising, GOV; Warner Brothers Pictures, WBD.

The Ontario & Western.

In refuting reports that the New Haven Railroad was disposing of its holdings in the New York, Ontario & Western, officials of the first-named company yesterday obviously set at rest many rumors growing out of the recent apparent accumulation of the shares. The New Haven owns 51 per cent. of Ontario & Western stock. There were denials of any deal with the New York Central also by officials of the Ontario & Western. There appeared to be extensive buying of the shares nevertheless, and the Street did not expect to see confirmed stories that primarily concerned purchases of stock in the open market. Just for whom the stock is being "acquired" remained an unanswered question to all save the brokers handling the transactions.

Rumor and Denial.

A public utility executive prominent in the merger field was asked yesterday if he or his associates had any interest in acquiring the stock of another company reported at various times to be in the process of a transfer. His reply, which is typical of the comments which recent public utility "rumors" have called forth, was as follows: "We are not acquiring or planning to acquire, do not intend to acquire, or desire to acquire, the property at this moment." But denials of yesterday's rumors count for little in the market's present frame of mind as compared with new rumors about tomorrow.

Demands on Credit in the Autumn.

Predictions made simultaneously that business expansion will call for large amounts of funds in the next few months and that money rates will not be marked up to any large extent, have caused students of finance to ask where the needed capital is to come from. Various explanations were given yesterday in a round of the big Wall Street banks. The one most frequently heard dealt with the change in credit conditions that has come about recently through a general speeding up of business operations and the functions of the Federal Reserve system. Faster transportation has been a large factor, as goods are being moved so expeditiously and deliveries are so prompt that long tie-ups of capital are not necessary in some of the big industries. A case in point was the recent message of a national lumber organization, which informed the railroads that swifter transportation had permitted the lumber industry to utilize a total of $800,000,000 of capital that otherwise would have been tied up for considerable periods. Federal Reserve operations have resulted in an even distribution of funds, preventing strain in any particular section.

GASOLINE PRICE CUT DUE TO COMPETITION

SALES POLICY UNCHANGED

Eastern Companies Now Face Rivalry of Western Groups in This Territory.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey issued yesterday a brief statement explaining the position of the gasoline market as a result of recent reductions in gasoline prices in the East. In explaining these reductions the company's statement says:

"The recent reductions in our gasoline prices were made to meet competition. Our gasoline markets are highly competitive, with the basic value determined from time to time by the delivered price of tank car shipments from various points of supply. Just now, despite the considerable increase in gasoline consumption over last year, supplies are ample and refineries in the various centres have reduced their tank car prices in order to move their product. Our own price adjustment is responsive to this condition."

On Wednesday when it learned in oil trade circles that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey would issue a statement regarding its gasoline price policy, it was rumored in the trade that this announcement would cover a change in the company's sales policy which would be equivalent practically to elimination of the tank wagon prices and the issuance of rebates to large consumers, and also the lowering of prices in communities where the company was forced to meet competition from what is known in the trade as "bootleg gasoline." Representatives of the company emphatically denied yesterday that Standard of New Jersey had any intention of changing its sales policy, and it was added that price changes would be made only when conditions warranted such action.

Prior to the official statement by Standard Oil of New Jersey, gloom prevailed in some quarters of the oil trade, and it was believed in many circles that a bitter price war was in the making between the larger distributing companies operating in the East for supremacy in the distribution end of the industry.

Leaders in the trade admit that the larger companies operating in the Eastern territory are confronted with more competition than prevailed prior to the World War. There was a time when the Eastern Standard Oil companies were virtually supreme in the distribution of gasoline and other products in this part of the country. Since the war, however, not only the independent companies whose activities were at first confined to the West but also some of the other Standard Oil organizations have invaded the New England and other Eastern sections.

As a result of the recent acquisition of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company by Standard of Indiana, the latter organization is expected to become a formidable factor in the Eastern markets, both from the standpoint of gasoline distribution and in the distribution of fuel oil and other products. The Atlantic Refining Company, another Standard Oil organization, which previously operated principally in Pennsylvania and Delaware, some few years ago invaded the New England States, where Standard Oil of New York was the principal factor. Other companies which have taken an active part in the gasoline market of the East, competing against the Standard Oil companies, are the Texas Company, Gulf Refining Company, Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and Pure Oil Company.

REDUCTION IN FRENCH BANKNOTE CIRCULATION

Cut Down 427,406,000 Francs During Week—Treasury Repays Bank 100,000,000.

Notes in circulation	decreased	427,406,000
General deposits	decreased	219,269,000
Bills discounted	increased	82,661,000
Advances	decreased	15,674,000

The State repaid the bank 100,000,000 francs. Advances to the State now stand at 28,150,000,000 francs, against 22,900,000,000 francs a year ago, and 23,400,000,000 two years ago. Under the vote of the French Parliament on June 27 the legal limit on such advances is now 32,000,000,000 francs, against a previous 26,000,000,000 voted on April 15. The advances outstanding last week were 28,250,000,000, the largest ever reached; smallest during the last three years, 21,200,000,000, in March, 1922.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in thousands of francs:

	Gold.	Circulation.	Discounts, &c.
1925	5,546,958	44,906,406	7,202,783

Under the vote of June 27 the legal limit on note circulation is now 51,000,000,000 francs, against a former 45,000,000,000 francs limit fixed on April 15. The note circulation of last week was 45,333,812 francs, the highest ever reached by the Bank of France. The lowest point reached by the bank's circulation in the concerted reduction of 1921-22 was 35,281,790,000 francs, to which it was reduced from 39,643,596,000 on Nov. 4, 1920, the highest figure ever reached until March of 1924.

The French bank's official discount rate remains unchanged at 6 per cent., to which it was reduced from 7 per cent. on July 7. It had been at 7 per cent., to which level it had been raised from 6 per cent. on Dec. 11, 1924.

GOULD TO KEEP POST AS RAIL DIRECTOR

Will Not Relinquish Chairmanship of St. Louis Southwestern's Board Despite Stock Sale.

LINES MAY BE MERGED

Rock Island's Eventual Control Is Expected if I. C. C. Approves Preliminary Steps.

Instead of retiring from an active part in the railway world, as was suggested by reports at the time he disposed of his stock in the St. Louis Southwestern to the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Edwin Gould, who is Chairman of the Board of Directors of St. Louis Southwestern, will continue in that capacity. This was learned yesterday on good authority and in quarters where Mr. Gould's service to the "Cotton Belt" is rated very highly, and where there is no desire for a change in the management of that road.

Among officials of the Rock Island Mr. Gould is considered a railway executive of eminent ability, and as far as the St. Louis Southwestern is concerned there has been nothing to suggest that the Gould-Upthegrove management combination would be dispensed with in the event of the Rock Island acquiring complete control of the road. Incidentally, reports that the Rock Island controlled the St. Louis Southwestern as the result of the acquisition of the Gould holdings and through purchases of other stock in the open market were refuted by the information yesterday that Rock Island's holdings of St. Louis Southwestern stock amount only to 38 or 39 per cent. In addition, the Rock Island is represented on the Cotton Belt board to the extent of about a third of the entire directorate, but this also does not amount to control.

Interest in the Rock Island's purchase of Cotton Belt stock has been revived by the examiner's report to the Interstate Commerce Commission in which objections were entered against the transaction, which had been made subject to the approval of the commission. Officials of the Rock Island, including Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., Chairman of the Rock Island Board, declined yesterday to offer any explanation for the examiner's opposition. Mr. Hayden said: "Until this matter is adjudicated by the Interstate Commerce Commission we cannot discuss it."

He added that briefs or exceptions would be filed within the time allowed for doing so, which is usually twenty days, and that a hearing before the I. C. C. probably would then be held. The Rock Island will contend that the acquisition of the stock was in the interest of both railroads, as well as a beneficial step as far as these carriers' services to the public are concerned. It is expected that if the commission approves the stock acquisition the two railroads will be consolidated. They already work together under arrangements described as mutually helpful.

LIFTS BAN ON CAPITAL.

Caillaux Provides for Return of Funds Sent Out of France.

Copyright, 1925, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Under the Fiscal and Penal Amnesty bill signed by Finance Minister Caillaux today all French capital illegally exported from the country may be repatriated before Jan. 1, 1920, without subjecting the owners to the punitive measures which the law has heretofore prescribed. The bill providing for repatriation of shares and funds deposited abroad contrary to statute was passed by the Chamber on July 13, last. In attaching his signature to it today, Minister Caillaux merely took another step which he deemed necessary in order to win confidence and support for his whole program of financial stabilization.

Furthermore, to eliminate any other obstacle to the return of capital now lingering abroad, M. Caillaux by decree has suspended the law of 1918 which rigidly restricts importation of funds of any character. Importation of capital now becomes absolutely free and unrestricted. As for exportation of capital, however, existing restrictions continue in force.

No Place For Hunches

WHAT trades are moving? Whose leases are expiring? What prices will govern the rental market?

Every year we spend thousands of dollars to get the real facts of the rental market, while individual owners must usually find their answer in opinions, guesses or hunches.

That is why our help is invaluable to owners with unrented floor space.

GENERAL MOTORS HAS EXTRA DIVIDEND

Payment of $1 on Common Stock to Be Made in Cash for the First Time.

OTHER DIVIDENDS DECLARED

Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Among Companies to Take Quarterly Action.

Directors of the General Motors Corporation at their meeting yesterday declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the common stock. This is the first extra dividend to be paid in cash by the company, previous extra payments having been made in common stock. The board's action, according to the executives, is a reflection of the favorable earnings for the first half of 1925.

Following the directors' meeting, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., President of the corporation issued the following statement:

"The board re-elected the present officers for the ensuing year—this being an organization meeting. They declared the regular dividends on the corporation's preferred and debenture stock issues, payable Nov. 2 to stockholders of record Oct. 5; also a dividend of $1.50 per share as well as an extra cash dividend of $1 a share on the common stock payable Sept. 12 to stockholders of record Aug. 24, 1925.

"The board felt that this extra disbursement was due to the stockholders on account of the very strong financial position of the corporation as well as on account of the very satisfactory earnings for the first half of the year.

"The new series of cars recently announced by the corporation, have been received by the public beyond all possible expectations. Every effort is being put forth to get production up to sales. While the corporation's new offerings have been made at somewhat lower prices, they reflect to a very large extent economies in manufacture and more intensive engineering. This is true not only of the chassis, but it is particularly true of the closed bodies, which form an important part of the cost of every closed automobile. The corporation's percentage of closed bodies stood at 43 per cent. in 1924. At present same is running above 65 per cent. All this results in materially lower costs which are reflected in corresponding lower list prices, it being the policy of the corporation to pass on to the public added value in the shape of lower lists wherever possible."

Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock, and the semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent. on the preferred stock, both dividends being payable Oct. 1, to stockholders of record Sept. 1.

Southern Pacific Company yesterday announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, payable Oct. 1, to stockholders of record Aug. 31.

The Bristol Manufacturing Company declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share, both dividends being payable Aug. 15.

The Neild Mills also declared an extra dividend of $1 a share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2, both payable Aug. 15.

The regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share was declared on the common stock of the Northern Texas Electric Company; also the regular semi-annual dividend of $3 a share on the preferred stock. Both dividends are payable Sept. 1, to stockholders of record Aug. 17.

RUBBER PRICES UP IN ACTIVE BUYING

Spot Smoked Sheets Jump 7 Cents as Trading Becomes Aggressive Again.

After a fortnight of dullness since the arrival of the three big freighters which relieved the July "squeeze," the crude rubber market roused itself yesterday into great activity again. Spot smoked sheets jumped 7 cents per pound to 82 cents, with gains running from 4 to 7½ cents interspersing the later positions.

Business swelled with the upward reaction in prices, sales of August being made at 77.78 and 80 cents, with a closing bid at 80½ cents; September was done up to 75 cents, with the final buyers' at 76 cents, and October-December up to 64½ cents, and a final bid at 65 cents. Clean thin brown, first late crêpe and other grades were also aggressively bought on a rising scale.

Factors making for the sharp reversal in tone and prices included the report that tire factories in the United Kingdom had raised prices 10 per cent. and the renewed interest on the buying side of the large Akron factories. The advance started late on Wednesday, on receipt of good size buying orders, and holders went into yesterday's market experiencing a change of front and a sudden pulling in of previous offers. This forced bids to higher levels on each trade.

The London market was also substantially higher on the day. Early cables brought spot at 41d., September at 37d. and October-December, 31½d. Final cables had all of these at good size gains over preliminary business.

July arrivals of crude rubber totaled 33,918 tons, against 30,337 tons in June and 14,969 in July, 1924. For the first seven months of the year imports totaled 215,705 tons, against 174,785 tons in the same period of last year.

STUTZ HEAD WANTS STOCK.

Holders Asked to Release Ten Per Cent. of Their Shares.

The Stutz Motor Car Company has sent a letter to stockholders requesting them to release ten per cent. of their stockholdings at $10 a share, in order that F. E. Moskovics, President of the organization, may obtain an option on ten per cent. of the capital stock, good until Feb. 15, 1927.

The letter points out that Mr. Moskovics, who was elected President earlier in the year, has agreed to remain as head of the company if he is permitted to acquire ten per cent. of the stock at the price mentioned. In preference to authorizing an increase in the capital stock in order to grant this request, the Board of Directors asks the stockholders to release part of their holdings. It is stated that due to the program already outlined, Mr. Moskovics believes he can make the stock worth more than the option price before expiration of the time limit.

THREE GREAT BANKS IN AFRICA TO MERGE

Barclays, Ltd., Which Will Control New Combination, Thinks It Will Spur Trade.

Three of the largest British banking institutions in Africa, the Colonial Bank, the Anglo-Egyptian Bank, Ltd., and the National Bank of South Africa, Ltd., will be amalgamated, it was announced yesterday in a cablegram received at the New York office of Barclays Bank, Ltd. Control of the new bank will rest with Barclays Bank, Ltd., by virtue of stock ownership.

The Colonial Bank will be reincorporated and will change its name to Barclays Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas). It will then acquire the business of the Anglo-Egyptian Bank and the National Bank of South Africa. Frederick C. Goodenough, Chairman of Barclays Bank, Ltd., will be Chairman of the reincorporated bank, and the Deputy Chairman and Vice Chairman, respectively, will be Sir Herbert Hambling, Bart., and Edmund H. Parker, LL. D. The existing boards of the three amalgamated banks will act as local boards for their respective sections and will be represented on the central board.

The amalgamation will result in an extensive consolidation of banking interests throughout the whole of the African Continent, a policy calculated, in the opinion of Barclays Bank, to promote development and trade. The new institution will have £6,975,000 of capital stock issued and subscribed, of which £4,975,500 will be paid up. Thus the paid-up capital, at the current rate of exchange, will be approximately $24,000,000.

There will be an initial reserve fund of £1,000,000. Barclays Bank Overseas, Ltd., and Barclays Bank, S. A. I., the French and Italian affiliates of Barclays of London, will remain separate institutions.

LEAD ADVANCED 15 POINTS.

Copper Prices Shaded to 14¾ Cents a Pound Delivered.

The price of lead was again advanced yesterday, but an easier tone prevailed in the local copper market. The American Smelting and Refining Company advanced lead prices 15 points ($3 a ton), to 9.15 cents a pound.

There was less active demand for copper in the local market yesterday and prices were shaded to 14¾ cents a pound delivered, compared with 14⅞ cents a pound earlier in the week. The lower prices, it was explained in the trade, were due to the offerings by smaller dealers and producers. Several of the larger producers continued to quote 14⅞ cents, but little business was done on this basis. Producers, however, continue optimistic regarding the outlook for the industry, and many are sold up for some time ahead.

Export prices of metal were also shaded yesterday. The market was quoted around 14.55 cents, New York harbor, and 14.80 cents, European ports, although some dealers continued to quote 14.60 to 14.65 cents, New York, and 14.85 to 14.90 cents, European ports.

GAIN IN RIVER SERVICE.

Mississippi Warrior Operations Net $180,967 in Five Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A substantial increase, both in tonnage transported and in total revenue, was shown by the operations of the Mississippi-Warrior River Service, of the Inland Waterways Corporation, for the five months ended May 31, 1925, over the similar period last year, according to a report of Brig. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, Chairman of the corporation, to the War Department.

The tonnage for the five months this year was 568,250, as compared with 486,259 last year, the report says, while the total revenue was $1,781,398, as compared with $1,558,230.

In addition to net profit of $180,967, after depreciation, the reduced water and rail rates offered by the corporation resulted in a saving to shippers of $658,000, the report declares.

The Company operates 19,018 subscribers' stations and 5 central stations interconnected with 16,461 miles of aerial wire and 24,084 miles of underground wire. Franchise in the city of Erie is without time limit.

The Company has contracted for the purchase, as of April 1, 1926, of all the properties of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania in Erie County, Pa., with the exception of one central station with its equipment and connections through which toll connections to and from points outside of Erie County, Pa., will be made by The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania under contract with Mutual Telephone Company. Upon acquisition of these properties, Mutual Telephone Company will do, without competition, the entire telephone business in the territory in Erie County, Pa., now served by both companies.

SECURITY: The First Mortgage Gold Bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct First Mortgage on all property of the Company including land, buildings, equipment, conduits and franchises, and by a direct lien on property hereafter acquired, subject to existing liens. The indenture imposes conservative restrictions on the issuance of additional bonds.

CAPITALIZATION: The Mutual Telephone Company, upon completion of present financing, will be capitalized as follows:

	Authorized	Outstanding
First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds	$10,000,000*	$1,200,000
Capital Stock $50 par)	2,000,000	1,993,650

* The issuance of additional bonds, under the terms of the Indenture, is subject to conservative restrictions.

EARNINGS: Following is a comparative statement of earnings of Mutual Telephone Company without giving effect to earnings of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania properties to be acquired.

Twelve Months ended December 31,	1923	1924
Operating Revenue	$497,333.03	$543,513.19
Operating Expenses, including maintenance and taxes chargeable to operations	209,728.70	225,779.35
Net Operating Income	$287,604.33	$317,733.84
Other Income	4,303.19	5,874.84
Net Earnings for Federal Income Taxes, depreciation and interest charges	$291,907.52	$323,608.68
Fixed interest charges		60,000.00

The above Net Earnings are at the rate of 5.4 times the annual interest charges on the First Mortgage Gold Bonds presently to be outstanding.

Earnings as above reported are for the properties of Mutual Telephone Company operated largely in competition with properties of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. They do not give effect to the earnings of the latter properties which are to be acquired. Operating officials of Mutual Telephone Company have estimated annual operating revenues, after acquisition of these properties and elimination of present duplications of service, at more than $950,000, and net earnings at a proportionately higher rate than those shown above.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds from the sale of this issue will be used for the acquisition of the local service properties of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania in Erie County, Pa., for the construction of a new building in Erie, Pa., and for other corporate purposes.

MANAGEMENT: The management of the Company will remain in the hands of those under whom it has been so conspicuously successful and under whom public good-will and friendly relations have been developed to an extent almost without precedent among public utility companies rendering a similar class of service.

Legal details in connection with this issue will be passed upon by Beekman, Bogue, Clark & Griscom, of New York, for the Bankers, and by Brooks, English & Quinn, of Erie, Pa., for the Company. Audits of the Company's books have been made by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst. Properties of Mutual Telephone Company have been appraised by the American Appraisal Company.

We offer these bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us subject to the approval of counsel and approval of and/or notice to regulatory bodies. It is expected that delivery of temporary bonds exchangeable for definitive bonds when ready, or interim receipts exchangeable for temporary or definitive bonds when ready, will be made on or about September 8, 1925.

ADDS TO HOLDINGS IN UTILITY STOCKS

NOT MERGER MOVEMENT

Latest Purchase of Securities Gives Company an Interest Now in 19 Concerns.

The American Superpower Corporation, organized less than two years ago as a public utility investment trust corporation empowered to purchase stocks in public utilities and to perform other functions in the public utility field, has added to its investments stock of the Middle West Utilities Company, controlled by Samuel Insull and associates.

Since it is the policy of the corporation to own no more than 15 per cent. of the outstanding common stock of any company in which it invests, the acquisition of the Middle West Utilities Company stock is not significant from the standpoint of the merger movement now sweeping the country.

The purchase is significant, however, of the expansion of the American Superpower Corporation's investments. The Middle West Utilities Company is the big Insull holding company for many important utilities serving several States, and its stock has been one of the most active in the trading here in recent months. Mr. Insull's statement several days ago that some public utility stocks were "dangerously high" was received with surprise in brokerage and investment circles. The statement was at once connected up in market quarters with rumors that some one or a group of persons were seeking to acquire control of Middle West Securities. Inquiries yesterday disclosed that a "pool" has been operating in the stock for months, and this was primarily responsible for the speculation that has been going on.

Among the public service companies in which American Superpower Corporation has acquired an interest are Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, Commonwealth Power Corporation, Electric Power and Light Corporation, United Light and Power Company, Middle West Utilities Company, Detroit Edison Company, Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc., Penn-Ohio Securities Corporation, Electric Bond and Share Securities Corporation, Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, American Power and Light Company, American Light and Traction Company and the Buffalo General Electric Company. It also has holdings in six other companies.

BUYS HOLDING IN RAILROAD

Pennsylvania Hopes to Get Control of Western Allegheny Company.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced yesterday that it had purchased a minority holding of the capital stock of the Western Allegheny Railroad Company and that it would apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to purchase the balance in capital stock of that company.

In a statement officials of the company said that the Pennsylvania might utilize the road in connecting its system at Red Bank, on the Allegheny River, with its line in the Valley of the Beaver, near Wampum or Lawrence Junction, a distance of about fifty miles, and improve its line in grades, in lieu of building a new line which had been contemplated by the Pennsylvania for many years. When physically connected with the Pennsylvania at both ends, it will provide a through line north of Pittsburgh, to relieve that gateway of traffic now passing through it, and expedite as well as increase the eastbound and westbound traffic.

When the low grade division of the Allegheny Valley Railway was built in the '70s it was then intended to extend it westward from Red Bank to a connection with the Pennsylvania's Western system, but the panic of 1873 halted all such work and it has not since been carried out. Meanwhile the Western Allegheny Railroad was built as a local coal road, covering most of the route, but on heavier grades, which, however, can be revised.

Vick Chemical and Power Issues

Completion of the sale of two stock issues was announced yesterday. Howe, Snow & Bertles, Otis & Co. and Peirce, Fair & Co. reported that the offering of 30,000 shares of the United Light and Power Company cumulative preferred stock at $94 per share had been heavily oversubscribed. Charles D. Barney & Co. and Merrill, Lynch & Co. announced that they had sold the issue of 100,000 shares of no par value common stock of the Vick Chemical Company, which they offered at $41 per share.

TO GET NEW UTILITY RIGHTS

Standard Gas and Electric Stockholders May Buy Additional Shares

Common stockholders of the Standard Gas and Electric Company are to receive the right to subscribe to additional common stock, the directors having authorized the issuance of additional common shares to the extent of one-fifth of the aggregate amount outstanding at the close of business on Aug. 24. The stock will be offered at $48 and holders may buy up to a fifth of their holdings on that date.

Warrants specifying the number of shares to which each stockholder will be entitled to subscribe under this privilege will be mailed on Sept. 3 to holders of record Aug. 24. The privilege expires on Sept. 23.

SEES CUBAN SUGAR CRISIS.

Planter Says U. S. Action Fixing Price May Ruin Some Growers.

Frank McNenny, a sugar planter of Havana, Cuba, asserted just before sailing home yesterday on the Pacific liner Essequibo that many Cuban sugar planters would be forced out of business by the action of the United States in fixing the wholesale price of sugar at 2½ cents a pound. Mr. McNenny is hurrying home because of the acuteness of the sugar situation. He said he was compelled to end his vacation here with his seven children.

At the pier to see him sail was his son-in-law, Murray Hulbert, former President of the Board of Aldermen.

RAIL ASSESSMENTS REDUCED IN JERSEY

State Board Cuts $8,354,914 From 1923 and 1924 Valuations in Hudson County.

COMPANIES HAD APPEALED

Despite the Decrease the Levy Is Much Higher Than in Previous Years, Officials Say.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 13.—The State Board of Taxes and Assessment announced today reductions aggregating $8,354,914 from the assessments of third-class railroad property in Jersey City and other Hudson County municipalities for the years 1923 and 1924.

The 1923 assessment of railroad property in Hudson County was $56,743,420. Acting on appeals by the companies, the board cut this total to $51,772,967, a decrease of $4,970,453. On a total valuation of $62,260,295 for 1924, the board fixed a value of $58,875,834, a reduction of $3,385,461.

"Although a total reduction for both years of $8,354,914 was granted," said a statement announcing the cut, "the net result is an enormous increase in the assessed valuation of railroad property in Hudson County and particularly in Jersey City."

The total assessment of the property under appeal in Jersey City for 1923 was $47,389,720. A deduction of $4,864,405 was allowed. For 1924 the assessment under appeal was $41,992,215, which was sliced to $38,537,314.

Railroad valuations in Jersey City have been fought by the companies for many years, the result being an annual flood of appeals. The increase for 1923 and 1924 over previous years is said to have been more than $5,000,000 in each instance. Within the last few years the aggregate boost in Jersey City alone, according to tax officials, has been close to $32,000,000.

Among the companies involved are the Erie, Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley, New Jersey Central, Point Breeze Ferry and Improvement Company and the Morris & Cummings Dredging Co. The property is located on the Hudson River and New York Bay and extends about five and one-half miles along the border line of Jersey City.

OFFERS $4,391,699 FOR WATER PLANTS

City of Elizabeth Makes Definite Move to Control Its Own Supply.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 13.—The City of Elizabeth, through its Mayor, John F. Kenah, offered the Elizabethtown Water Company Consolidated today $4,391,699 for the plants and properties of that concern. The purpose is to have a city-owned water plant.

Julian H. Kean, President of the company, received the offer and said the facts would be presented to the stockholders and counsel and a reply could be expected on Sept. 8. The authorization to make the offer was made on July 6, when City Council adopted resolutions to that effect. Due to the fact that taxpayers were allowed to present objections for thirty days the offer was not made until today, the time for objections having expired last Saturday.

After a two years' investigation into municipally owned plants this city decided to buy. The resolutions provide for the city to take the matter to courts for condemnation proceedings if the water company refuses to accept.

Three memberships in the Curb Exchange have been transferred as follows: C. E. Laidlaw to J. B. Richardson of Benjamin & Ferguson; Arthur E. Sauter to S. A. Saunders of J. W. TO ENLARGE PAPER PLANT.

International Will Double Capacity at Three Rivers Mill.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 12.—The Three Rivers plant of the International Paper Company, which now produces 340 tons of paper per day, is to be enlarged by the addition of four new machines, each of ninety tons capacity, according to a circular issued by the sales department.

Two of the new machines are expected to be in operation before the end of the year and the other two machines by the middle of 1926, at which time the output at Three Rivers will be 700 tons daily.

"Plans are being prepared," the circular adds, "for the speedy erection of another large newsprint mill to use the pulpwood resources of the Gatineau River, not far from Ottawa."

In the United States the company plans to divert to hydroelectric purposes or to the manufacture of other grades of paper, several of its smaller mills formerly manufacturing newsprint but now unable to compete successfully with low-cost Canadian production.

TREASURY BUYS LIBERTIES.

$6,000,000 of Third Loan Issue Acquired for Sinking Fund Account.

The United States Treasury in the first ten days of August brought $6,000,000 of Third Liberty Loan bonds for the account of the sinking fund, making $16,000,000 bought to date in the current fiscal year.

GERMAN CITY SEEKS LOAN.

Details of Financing Soon to Be Made Public—Others Pending.

A large German city which has not hitherto borrowed in this market is arranging for a loan through a New York banking firm, it was learned in Wall Street yesterday. Part of the proceeds will be used for the expansion of a number of public works projects, including electric power, tramways and a municipal lighting system. Announcement of the loan is expected to be made within a few days. Negotiations are in progress for a number of other German loans, but considerable delays are expected. The national Government in Germany is opposed to outside loans except for necessary and productive purposes and has scaled down the amounts asked by various States and municipalities. Recent German loans floated in New York included $10,000,000 bond issues each by Berlin and Cologne.

Another foreign issue in the course of negotiation is a $13,500,000 loan to one of the larger hydroelectric corporations in Italy. It is understood that this loan will be issued through Blair & Co., Inc., but details have not yet been completed.

WESTERN RAILROADS ASK SMALLER RISE

SEEK IMMEDIATE RELIEF

Carriers Will State Case to Interstate Commerce Commission at Chicago Hearings in September.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Western railroads which have been asking an 11 per cent. increase in freight rates to replenish revenues depleted by Panama Canal competition, motor trucks and anaemic business conditions in the Northwest went before the Interstate Commerce Commission today and offered to accept 5 per cent.

"We are entitled to the 11 per cent. increase we have been asking—an increase that will give us the 5¾ per cent. investment return the law says we can have—but we will take 5 per cent.," the carriers said in effect.

That, at least, is the version of the attitude of the carriers as expressed today by A. C. Johnson, Vice President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, who is Chairman of the Western Terminal Traffic Executive Committee.

The commission will conduct hearings in Chicago the first week in September, at which the Western carriers will present the story of their difficulties. Three of their number are in the hands of receivers, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system being the last to tumble, and others have passed or reduced their dividends as a direct result of a revenue situation.

Mr. Johnson explained today that the carriers would make out a complete case in behalf of an 11 per cent. increase except that they foresee that if they stand uncompromisingly for the full return, the hearings will drag along for some time. The roads need the money, they want is as quickly as possible, hence the decision to accept 5 per cent.

"If the carriers are allowed 5 per cent. now the effect will soon become apparent," Mr. Johnson said. "Perhaps there will be an increase in business and the 5 per cent. asked will be sufficient."

Rates Were Cut in 1922.

Freight rates were established in 1920 under the Transportation act, which says the carriers may earn 5¾ per cent. on investment. They were decreased in 1922, although the rates of 1920 did not produce the revenues the law said would be allowed. Since then revenues have dwindled.

The return since 1921, the carriers say in their public statement, has been:

1922, 3.45 per cent.
1923, 3.96 per cent.

An advance of 5 per cent. in freight rates, the carriers say, would result in a net return of 4.62 per cent., this based on tonnage and revenues of 1924.

"Operating expenses have been reduced to the minimum compatible with the character of service required and desired by the public," the carriers announce, "but the margin between income and outgo continues so narrow that continuance of adequate transportation, and the construction of necessary additional improvements and betterments, with a reasonable return on the investment of the properties, are in jeopardy.

"The carriers have patiently awaited an improvement in their situation, that they might not be obliged to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for relief through an advance in rates to be paid by the public, but have been disappointed, and now feel that the time has come when duty calls, in the conservation of the interests of the public as well as the carriers, that a move be made in the direction indicated.

Ask Return of Part of Decrease.

"They propose to ask at this time the restoration of only a portion of the decrease in rates imposed in 1922. They do not intend to ask an increase that might prove an item of importance in any instance to the commerce of the Western States."

The carriers say they are confident in the belief that this moderate advance (5 per cent.) will have no adverse effect upon any industry, and with the hope that this advance, together with such relief as may be granted by the commission in other individual readjustments, may avoid the necessity of a greater general increase.

In the instance of certain commodities they are proposing that the percentage of advance be converted into one applicable in equal amount to all rates.

On grain the advance asked is a uniform one amounting to about 1 cent a bushel, they state; on coal it is 15 cents a ton; on clay, gravel, sand, and stone it is 7½ cents a ton; on cement, lime and plaster it is 20 cents a ton.

CROPS 3 PER CENT. SMALLER

Drought Affects the Yield Despite 2.3 Per Cent. Larger Planted Area.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—Despite an increased area of 2.3 per cent. planted to principal crops this year total production was estimated today by the Department of Agriculture as 3 per cent. lower than last year due to decreased yields per acre. But for the increased area, officials said today, there might have been a serious crop shortage in the United States.

Yields per acre showed a reduction for all principal crops of 6.4 per cent., compared with the ten-year average, and 4.5 per cent. under last year's crop. Prospects for yields, the department said, had not been so low at this time of year in the last twelve years, with the exception of 1921. The decrease was attributed mainly to drought in the corn belt and Southwestern States.

The only crops showing increased yields per acre were announced by the department as Spring wheat, which is expected to run over the five-year average yield per acre by about one-tenth of a bushel and a few special products such as citrus fruit, olives, sugar cane, buckwheat and vegetables.

Cotton showed a reduced yield per acre of 9 per cent. compared with the ten-year average; tame hay 16.3 per cent., corn 0.9 per cent., oats 3.2 per cent., potatoes 3.5 per cent., tobacco 6.1 per cent., sugar beets 9.3 per cent., apples 11 per cent., barley 1.7 per cent. and flax 1.2 per cent.

The lowest yield per acre was reported from Texas with 68.6 per cent. of the ten-year average, and the highest from Nevada with 114 per cent.

265 COKE OVENS FIRED.

H. C. Frick Company's Order Viewed as Good Sign.

Special to The New York Times.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 13.—The first sign of return to prosperity in this part of the coke region is noted in the recent order of the H. C. Frick Company for the firing of 265 coke ovens, of which 150 are at Hecla, 50 at Phillips and 65 at Leith. They were put in blast Tuesday morning.

The putting in blast of an additional furnace at Lorain, Ohio, the first of the week brought the demand for coke.

The general increase in the demand for iron will cause, it is said, more furnaces to go into blast shortly, and in this event the firing of more coke ovens will follow. While no official information has been forthcoming, it was said yesterday that in all probability several hundred additional ovens will be fired within the next week or ten days.

AUTO SALES HOLDING UP.

Trade Journal Expects Third Quarter Greatly to Exceed 1924 Period.

According to Automotive Industries, the reductions in prices of passenger cars have stimulated sales at a time when the demand usually falls off materially. Following the best July in history, August sales and production are holding up well. In summing up the situation in the industry, the journal of the trade says:

"Earnings in the last half of the year are likely to be less than in the first half because of the price reduction, since there is no strong likelihood that production for the second half will exceed that of the first half by any very wide margin. Reasonably good profits seem assured, however, for some time ahead. The third quarter this year will be far ahead of the third quarter of 1924 unless all present signs fail.

"Parts and accessory concerns are participating equally with the vehicle manufacturers in current prosperity. Parts plants in general are working well over 75 per cent. of capacity, while some are pushing their facilities to the limit. A group of eight representative parts makers showed net profits for the first half of 1925 which were 89.5 per cent. in excess of their earnings during the same period last year.

Production capacity in the passenger car field is being increased, although at a conservative rate in most cases. Production still is being held closely in line with sales and dealer stocks are normal in practically every part of the country."

OFFERS TIDE WATER STOCK

Syndicate to Make Public Sale of $25,000,000 Issue.

A banking syndicate composed of the First National Bank and the National City Company is making a public offering of the $25,000,000 5 per cent. convertible preferred stock of the Tide Water Oil Company not taken up by stockholders under the recent subscription plan announced by the company. The stock is being offered at $100 a share. The issue was underwritten by the First Security Company. Proceeds from the sale of the stock will be used by the company to retire $12,000,000 of its outstanding 6½ per cent. bonds and to liquidate outstanding loans and provide additional working capital.

The preferred stock is convertible into the company's common stocks on the following terms: The first $5,000,000 presented will be convertible at 37½ the second $5,000,000 at 40 the third $5,000,000 at 42½ and the balance at 45.

Reid Ice Ceam Co.'s Net $751,665.

The Reid Ice Cream Company, in connection with the listing of its securities on the New York Stock Exchange, issued its statement of earnings for the first six months of 1925, showing net profits of $751,665, after all expenses and charges, but before Federal tax reserves. After allowing for estimated taxes and preferred dividend requirements the company reported a balance equal to $3.85 a share earned on the outstanding common stock.

Westinghouse in Japan.

G. H. Bucher, assistant general manager of the Westinghouse Electric International Company, left New York yesterday for Japan, via Seattle, where he will assist in the organization of the newly-formed Westinghouse Electric Company of Japan. He will sail from Seattle Aug. 19 on the President Grant for the Orient, and will also visit China and the Philippine Islands.

New Haven Denies Selling O. & W.

The management of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company issued yesterday a denial of reports that the road was disposing of any of its holdings of New York, Ontario and Western stock, of which it owns 51 per cent. J. B. Kerr, President of the latter road, said he knew nothing of New York Central's reported buying of New Haven's interest.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Sharp Decline in Spot Cotton, With Rally in Rubber, Outstanding Movements—Grains Mixed.

There were several conflicting price movements in yesterday's cash staples, the ebb and flow of which reflected the irregularity of the primary markets. Spot cotton dropped 75 points, to 23.50 cents, in keeping with a weak futures market, while rubber rebounded 7 cents, to 82 cents, on renewed strength. The grains were mixed, wheat and rye being higher, while corn sagged. Butter, lard, copper, zinc and tin were heavy. Other provisions and groceries were steady.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities, in the New York market unless otherwise noted, were:

PRICES OF WHEAT SCORE NEW ADVANCE

Net Gain of ⅝ to ⅞ of a Cent Is Made During Day, With May Option Leading.

CASH SITUATION BETTER

Canadian Harvesting Reported Progressing—First Car Is Loaded in Manitoba.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Wheat values were on the up-grade today with September touching $1.66¾ at the high, or 8 cents over the low of the previous day. The bulge brought in heavy profit taking and a strong reaction came toward the last with the finish at net gains of ⅝ to ⅞ cent, with May showing the most strength.

A rather decided change in sentiment was noted in some quarters during the day and a more conservative feeling toward the buying side of wheat was noted in commission house gossip after the close. The sharp bulge of the past two days, and the fact that American markets are far above an export basis caused some operators to express the belief that the buying side on up-turns from the present level should be avoided. While the domestic cash situation is regarded as gradually getting stronger, and well posted interests look for the September to sell at a greater premium over the December, the general run of foreign news was more bearish.

An Eastern grain handler who has returned from abroad expressed the belief that Russia may have 75,000,000 bushels of wheat for export this season, while private cables from Liverpool claimed room had been chartered so far to ship out 7,500,000 bushels. Statistics at the present time attract little attention, and to a large extent the action of the market is determined by the position of the local element, an oversold or overbought condition developing quickly, as there is no balance wheel in the way of a large stock of contract grain that could be delivered at any of the leading terminal markets in this country.

There was no evidance of export business of consequence at the seaboard in either domestic or Canadian wheat, and none is expected in Manitobas until the new crop is offered with greater freedom. The first car of new Canadian wheat was loaded at Rosenfeld, Manitoba, on Tuesday, and harvesting is making rapid progress, except where heavy rains have fallen in the past few days. Some of the strongest commission houses in the trade, in their advices to customers after the close, suggested that a reaction in the wheat market was in order and that purchases should only be made on declines.

Primary arrivals of wheat today 1,325,000; week ago, 1,479,000; last year, 2,724,000. Shipments, 805,000; week ago, 840,000; last year, 2,830,000.

Cash interests were moderate sellers of September corn, but the general trade was of a local character and with beneficial rains in Illinois and Missouri the trend was lower and the finish was at net losses of ½ to ¾ cent. Country offerings of new No. 4 grades for shipment by Dec. 15 are increasing and a few thousand bushels are being booked almost daily, with 4 cents under December paid for new No. 4 yellow and white and 4½ cents under for mixed.

Primary arrivals today, 597,000; week ago, 476,000; last year, 682,000. Shipments, 328,000; week ago, 292,000; last year, 417,000. Oats closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower and rye ⅝ to ¾ cent higher. More interest is being taken in the latter grain by outside speculators, who feel that any shortage in domestic supplies would have to be made up by increased use of rye. In addition to this the price of rye is regarded as low as compared with wheat.

NEW LOW GROUND REACHED BY COTTON

Prices Close 46 to 48 Points Down for Day Under Heaviest Selling of Week.

Under the heaviest selling since Monday, the cotton market lost all its recovery of the two previous sessions and broke into new low territory yesterday. Various operators, who had been working for an improvement, became uneasy when a half-cent rally seemed to complete all urgent covering, and reselling started a decline of half a cent, ending with a loss of 46 to 48 points on the day. A considerable quantity of trade buying orders around 23½ cents for December, unfilled on the break earlier in the week, were all supplied, but demand for later months furnished resistance in closing dealings.

The Government pars for use in the indicated yield on Aug. 16 were announced yesterday. The average for the various States figures out about 232.4 pounds, compared to 236.4 pounds a year ago. This represents an increase of 19.3 pounds since Aug. 1, compared with an increase of 19.4 pounds during the corresponding interval last year. Statisticians estimate that it will require another five-point decline in condition for the indicated yield in the forthcoming report to be the same as that furnished in the last one. Last year the department reduced its condition 2.5 per cent. from 67.4 to 64.9, but raised the indicated yield 600,000 bales. Par figures for South Carolina were raised 35 pounds, for Texas 21 pounds, Oklahoma 21 pounds and North Carolina, Georgia and Louisiana each 20 pounds over previous figures.

For the second successive session Liverpool failed to respond to an improvement in American markets. This had a depressing effect on sentiment in several quarters and initial quotations here and in New Orleans showed a decline of 20 to 25 points. During the late recovery Wednesday professional operators had supplied contracts during the process of executing stop loss orders around 24 cents for December. Covering of this cotton held December around 23¾ cents for several hours yesterday. When dullness increased and trade interests failed to follow a rally in prices with purchases reselling became active and the market refused to absorb contracts readily. As prices worked toward low records made earlier in the week speculative pressure became heavier and blocks of 5,000 and 10,000 bales were distributed. This carried December through 23.50 but January halted at 23 cents and more contracts were needed to meet mill requirements at the lower levels.

In Texas thirty-three stations reported temperatures of 100 to 111 degrees, with very little moisture in any section of the State. Private reports of rain were in circulation during the afternoon decline.

British Board of Trade figures for July showed exports of 14,000,000 pounds of yarns, against 13,000,000 pounds last year, and of cloths 371,000,000 yards, compared with 384,000,000 yards a year ago.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 per cent. for the best names. Wednesday—4 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Boys' Shirts in Small Sizes.

The demand for boys' shirts is considerably ahead of last year at this time, according to manufacturers here. This improvement is held to be due to the availability in the market of shirts in sizes 8, 10 and 12. They are worn inside of the trousers, in line with the vogue for vestee suits, with which the regulation blouse cannot be worn. Plain and fancy broadcloths have led in the fabrics of these shirts, the other materials being madrases and percales. Button-down collars are described as no longer popular, owing to the number of complaints about buttons coming off and shirts being torn in unbuttoning. Instead, the straight pointed collar, which is a trifle longer than the buttoned type, is being featured. Most of the shirts have a single pocket, but some have two flap pockets, one on each side.

Double-Breasted Suits in Favor.

Reports continue to be received by clothing manufacturers of the probability of wide favor for double-breasted suits this Fall. This trend is developing in young men's suits and is expected to be clearly demonstrated at the opening of the various colleges in the East. It is pointed out that during the late months of Spring a number of men belonging to one of the most exclusive clubs at Princeton appeared in suits with double-breasted coats, a style that has not been worn by college men for a number of years. The collegiate influence now is credited with shaping the style trend for young men generally, and it is believed that as a result the double-breasted suit will have wide popularity. The coats are featured by wider shoulder lines, peaked lapels, a slight shaping-in at the waist and closer fit about the hips. Trousers are wide and full at the hips and taper to the shoe. They are worn without cuffs.

Wash Suits Show Long Trousers.

The long trouser suit for boys is featured in wash clothing as it is in the regular cloth lines. Most of these suits, however, are of the dress variety, and are not intended as regular play garments. One of the types seen here is of Belgian linen, and is for early Fall wear. It has a white alpaca vestee effect at the top, with the trousers attached in one-piece fashion. The upper portion of other suits features "lumber jack" plaids in many patterns and colors. The trousers in this case are of corduroy. Broadcloth is also used for the top, the trousers again being of corduroy. In the short trousers jersey cloth is frequently used with a broadcloth top. Many of the suits have a silk sports belt attached.

Working on Spring Silk Lines.

Lines of silks for Spring are in process of preparation, and some of the early offerings for the Palm Beach season will take place around the middle of September. No definite opinions as to the fabrics or colors that are to be featured are being expressed now, with the exception of the frequent comments made as to confidence in printed silks. This attitude with respect to prints, however, is qualified by the statement that the patterns that will sell in these silks must be original and distinctive. It is said that buyers have now got to the point where everything that is printed is not attractive to them. Wide printed silks are held likely to be in stronger demand than last Spring, as they have the advantage of giving the manufacturer more leeway in his designs and also appeal strongly to the consumer. The latter is apparently thoroughly "sold" on the ease with which an attractive dress may be made of 1½ yards of wide printed material.

Showing More Wool Garments.

Increased showing of woolen and worsted garments for Fall lately by ready-to-wear manufacturers is expected to result in a volume of re-order business in these fabrics that will reach back to the mills. It is an open secret that the attention given to silk fabrics in garments for early Fall has been disappointing to woolen goods producers. In dresses, particularly, the production so far has been largely concentrated on silks, the only exception being the large use of some of the lightweight worsteds which greatly resemble silk. It has been held that this was only a temporary development, because of the earliness of the season. This reasoning is borne out to some extent in the increased showings of woolen and worsted garments for later Fall wear.

Fall Coatings in Good Demand.

Women's coating fabrics of the new "bolivia" types, which are recognized by various trade names, remain the most-wanted weaves in this division. The demand continues very strong, and most of the mills are practically out of the market, so far as accepting new business is concerned. The plumage shades lead in the desired colors. The mills, however, are closely watching the color trend in retail buyers' purchases, as reported to them by coat manufacturers. To date no one color dominates. As in the case of cranberry red last Fall, however, there is a possibility that the demand will again tend to concentrate on one shade, which development the mills are planning to be prepared for.

Gray Goods Buying Limited.

The sharp drop in cotton limited buying in the local gray goods market yesterday. Staple constructions of printcloths and sheetings sold as usual, but the volume moved was in no case very large. Printcloths were traded in on the basis of 10¾ cents for near-by 39-inch 68-72s and 9⅝ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s. In the lower-count cloths some spot and October deliveries of 38½-inch 44-40s were sold at 6⅝ cents. In the sheetings there was some first-hand trading in spot 40-inch 2.85s at 12⅞ cents, while second hands sold similar deliveries of 36-inch 5-yard goods at 7⅞ cents. Prompt shipments of 37-inch 3.95-yard drills were sold at 10 cents. The rest of the market was bare of feature.

An increased volume of sales, as compared with the Fall season of last year, is reported by manufacturers of men's bathrobes and dressing gowns. A continuation of the trend toward higher priced garments is also told of by them. Imported flannels in stripes and plaids are selling well, and silk robes are also in demand in brocaded patterns, blazer stripes and jacquard effects. High colors are receiving the attention of buyers, since conservative garments seem rapidly to be losing popularity. The desire for individuality in these garments is to be seen in the larger number of styles offered by the manufacturers.

Rubber Tea Aprons Are Liked.

Popularity of the rubber tea apron continue unabated. This is attributed to the greater protection which this variety affords, compared with the cloth apron, as well as to the ease with which the rubber surface may be cleaned. New decorative effects are expected to swell sales when these goods are offered for holiday gift purposes. One manufacturer here is showing aprons decorated with scenic effects which are worked out in colored iridescent sand applied to the rubber. These are to retail from $1.50 to $2. Another variety now being shown is mottled in the pastel shades. This apron follows the fashions in other women's apparel, in that its lines are given added interest in inverted pleats.

Novelty Colors Hurt Buttons.

Novelty colors in men's clothing are working a hardship upon manufacturers of the better-grade buttons for this trade. With the color trend uncertain until the season is well under way, button manufacturers often find that they have insufficient time in which to produce goods efficiently, especially since novelty colored buttons require time to insure uniformity of hue. This is a disadvantage which does not apply to the black variety, which formerly topped the demand. Prevailing conditions are especially irksome to the manufacturers, since they contend that their commodity is now selling at pre-war levels. On the other hand, they say, raw materials and labor costs are from two to three times as great as the 1914 level.

BRIGHTON BEACH SALES LEAD BOOM

Over $500,000 Worth of Property Sold in the Course of a Few Hours.

$1,000,000 ROCKAWAY DEAL

Brokers Report Sales at Prices 200 Per Cent. Above Pre-Boom Values.

Seashore property continued active yesterday, numerous sales being reported all along the coast from Long Beach, L. I., to Asbury Park, N. J.

At the opening sale Wednesday evening and continuing until the early hours yesterday morning, of the 500 lots at Brighton Beach, located directly opposite the Brighton Beach Baths, between Brighton Beach Avenue and Neptune Avenue, Coney Island Avenue and Manhattan Beach, a large number were disposed of for approximately $500,000 at private sale.

Crowds of buyers began to assemble in and around the office of Binder & Grady several hours before the opening of the sale at 8 o'clock, from which hour until long past midnight the sales force of Binder & Grady were kept busy explaining to groups of men and women that this last large property, overlooking the ocean front and within the 5-cent fare subway zone, was to be sold free and clear of all assessments, and with all municipal improvements, including roadways, streets, curbs, sewers, gas, electricity and telephones to be installed within the next year.

Then came the making and signing of contracts, and at last the announcement that more than half a million dollars' worth of property had been bought, and that the sale would be continued today and daily thereafter until the last lot had been disposed of.

A number of purchasers were offered profits before they left the office of Binder & Grady and several of the more prominent purchasers, including several Brooklyn, Manhattan and Bronx apartment and business building builders, announced their intention of improving their lots at the earliest possible moment.

Aronson & Silverman, who have been active in the construction of large apartment houses along the Ocean Parkway and Coney Island Avenue, in Brooklyn, paid $150,000 for the ten lots comprising the block front on Brighton Beach Avenue, between Ocean Spray and Sea Air Avenues, for improvement this Autumn with one or two six-story elevator apartment houses to contain stores.

Among other purchasers at the sale were L. Berger of Brooklyn, an operator and builder of apartment houses and store buildings, who purchased twenty-five lots variously located in the residential and business sections; also A. Menoff of the Bronx, who purchased ten lots for improvement; also L. Burnett of Manhattan, who purchased five lots on Sea Air Avenue, north of Sea Foam Avenue, in a section suitable for improvement with elevator apartment houses or two-family houses. It is understood that the Burnett purchase was made at $6,000 a lot.

Louis Zwickel purchased ten lots, and ten other lots were sold to H. Fellman of the Bronx.

One of the largest blocks in the property, with a frontage of about thirty lots on Boardwalk Avenue, a business section, and ten lots on Brighton Beach Avenue, also a business section, was placed under option for twenty-four hours to one of the most prominent builders of elevator apartments and business buildings in Brooklyn at a price which, it is understood, is close to $1,000,000.

The prices at which these Brighton Beach lots are being sold by Binder & Grady, by whom the sale is being conducted for the owners, range from $6,000 to $20,000, the higher prices being paid for lots along Boardwalk Avenue and Brighton Beach Avenue.

Murray Maran and Samuel Stein, Manhattan operators, have purchased a plot, 300 by 100 feet, on Park Street in Long Beach, adjoining the public school and one block west of the railroad station.

The buyers immediately resold same to a syndicate of builders who intend improving this plot with a six-story elevator apartment house, including stores on the ground floor, and suites of one, two, three and four-room apartments.

Plans have been filed by Jack Felson, architect, and work will be started Sept. 15. The building will be ready for tenants next Spring. The operation will cost in the neighborhood of $750,000.

Work on the O'Donohue Park site, Far Rockaway, recently bought by Isaac Zaret, was started yesterday, when ground was broken for the real estate office from which the development work will be carried on.

Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield will build a dwelling for occupancy on one of these plots with ocean frontage.

Brokers through the Rockaways yesterday reported approximately $2,000,000 in sales, most of which were transfers of vacant land at prices from 100 to 200 per cent. higher than pre-boom values.

I., consisting of 200 by 800 feet, including Morrison's Theatre, ten concessions, bathing pavilion, dancing pavilion, stores and apartments, located in the heart of the amusement centre. The property was held at $1,000,000.

Announcement by Commissioner William Wirt Mills of the Department of Plant and Structures to the effect that the new ferry to Barren Island will have its terminus at Beach 129th Street, Rockaway, has served to boost real estate values in that vicinity. Lots that formerly were held at $1,500 are now being held at from $5,000 to $6,000.

William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen, has sold for about $36,000 nine lots opposite the site of a new school building at Belle Harbor which, before the boom, were said to be worth $1,200 each. The purchaser was John N. Connolly of Rockaway Park.

Shroder & Koppel have erected several of the larger buildings in this section of the city.

They recently completed for Louis Adler and Abe N. Adelson the big bank and commercial building on the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue and are now rushing toward completion for the same owners a twenty-three-story structure on the northeast corner of Thirty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue.

This structure will be known as the Millintry Centre Building, and although not yet roofed in it has been fully leased from the plans. J. Arthur Fischer negotiated the sale.

Values on the avenue, especially in the vicinity of Forty-second Street, are advancing rapidly, and several large transactions are reported pending.

Two Midtown Zone Deals.

As a site for a store and loft building, Emanuel Lieberman of Brooklyn has purchased from the Mid-Zone Realty Company the two five-story buildings at 247 and 249 west Thirtieth Street, in the new fur zone centre.

The plot measures 50 by 100, located near Eighth Avenue.

The purchaser will start demolishing the present buildings in two months. The entire operation will involve about $600,000.

Arthur Eckstein, Inc., sold for Mrs. Emma Gibson Townshend the four-story building at 224 West Thirtieth Street, on a plot 23.5 by 98.9.

The property will be improved with a store and loft building. This is the first sale of the property in over thirty years.

New Varick Street Building.

A ten-story building is to be erected on the east side of Varick Street, between Spring and Vandam Streets, leased by the Varick Construction Company from the Trinity Church Corporation.

The lease, which is for twenty years and eleven months, from June 1, calls for the erection of a ten-story building to cost $900,000, with mortgage of $600,000.

It contains an option of three twenty-one year renewals for a rental equal to 6 per cent. of the appraised value. The annual rental for the first period will be $27,000 net.

The property, known as 140-145 Varick Street, 247-257 Spring Street and 32-40 Vandam Street, fronts for 214.10 feet on Varick Street and 127.4 on each of the other streets.

The Trinity Church Corporation had prepared plans by Parker & Shaffer for a ten-story structure for the site.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13.—The disturbance that was central over Illinois Wednesday night has moved east-northeastward to Western New York and it has been attended by showers over middle and northern sections east of the Mississippi River, and in portions of Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas and Northeastern Texas. The northwestern disturbance is now centred over Alberta with a trough extending southward to the Gulf of California. This disturbance has caused local showers in the North Pacific States and in the northern plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions.

Relatively high pressure prevails over the Plains States and the upper Mississippi Valley and off the North Pacific Coast and from Florida eastward over the Western Atlantic Ocean.

The temperature was higher Thursday in the Middle Atlantic States, the Central and Northern Plains States, the Northern Rocky Mountain region, Utah and the Canadian Northwest, while somewhat cooler weather prevailed in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Northern Texas, the middle Mississippi and lower Ohio Valley, the northern plateau region and the North Pacific States. A maximum of 100 degrees was registered at Charlotte, N. C., which is the highest on record at that place for the month of August.

The indications are for general showers in the North Atlantic, and scattered thundershowers in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States Friday and in Florida on Saturday. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will be slightly lower Friday in the East Gulf States, the Southern Appalachian region and in the Atlantic States from Maryland to Georgia. There will be little change in temperature in the western forecast district on Saturday.

SAYS GAME BIRDS IN U. S. ARE GAINING

SEES MENACE IN DRAINAGE

Feeding Ground of Waterfowl Destroyed—Hornaday Continues Attack on Arms Makers.

Denying Dr. W. T. Hornaday's charge that migratory birds were threatened with extermination because of excessive shooting, John Clarke of Little Neck, a member of the American Game Protective Association, asserted yesterday that ducks, geese and migratory waterfowl were on the increase in the United States and had been for the last thirty years.

"Thirty-six of the forty-six State game wardens were present at the last National Game Conference," he said, "and thirty-two of these reported an increase in game of all kinds, including migratory waterfowl. Their testimony proves that the statement of Dr. Hornaday that migratory waterfowl are decreasing is unsupported by the facts.

"The game wardens with whom I talked did not see a danger to migratory waterfowl from the present length of season or bag limits. They did, however, feel a keen apprehension concerning the effect upon waterfowl of the vast drainage operations which destroy their natural breeding and feeding grounds.

"Owing to the rapidly increasing drainage movement, it was the general opinion that, unless the National Game Refuge bill could speedily pass Congress, migratory waterfowl could not continue to increase. Already in dry seasons, according to the game wardens, ducks are starving in their Wintering grounds. An area nearly twice as large as New England has been drained in recent years. In most cases such drainage resulted in no financial gain and the land drained had been breeding, feeding and resting ground for waterfowl. According to the State game wardens at the conference, the passage of the Game Refuge bill would remedy this dangerous situation."

Dr. Hornaday, who started the game controversy by charging that the influence of the arms and ammunition makers with the Federal Government interfered with the conservation of game, stuck to his original charge yesterday and called for a "house-cleaning" in the Department of Agriculture, which makes the game laws under the migratory birds treaty.

The bag limits and the open seasons are substantially those of ten years ago, but the licensed hunters have doubled in that time, according to Dr. Hornaday. Further than that, he said that there were 15,222,658 motor vehicles licensed in 1924, as against 1,010,399 in 1912, and that the result has been tremendous influxes of hunters into shooting areas which were formerly inaccessible. Permission to each hunter to kill twenty-five ducks a day results in wasteful shooting because great quantities of the ducks cannot be used and are thrown away or allowed to spoil, according to Dr. Hornaday. Theer are nearly 10,000,000 hunters in this country at present, according to Dr. Hornaday, who said:

"Cautious conservationists and men intent on killing may say all they please about 'game refuges,' 'the good supply,' 'cold Winter' and half a dozen other things, but I wish to say that it is the game shooting done by the game hunter that is the supremely destructive thing. What will avail all the sanctuaries if there are 10,000,000 guns to slaughter the game before it gets to them, or after it leaves them?

"There are not quite 10,000,000 hunters now, but at the rate of increase now recorded from year to year the grand armies of killers will soon reach 10,000,000."

DARROW DENOUNCED AT DAYTON MEETING

Stewart Attacks Him in Address Before Bryan Memorial Group.

DAYTON, Tenn., Aug. 13 (AP).—Organization of the Bryan Memorial Association last night was marked by scathing denunciation of Clarence Darrow by A. T. Stewart, prosecuting attorney in the Scopes evolution trial. Judge John T. Raulston, who presided, denied charges made by Mr. Darrow that he had used the trial to further his political interests.

The association, formed to erect a fundamentalist school here in memory of William Jennings Bryan, set as a goal the raising of $1,500,000 for buildings and $5,000,000 for the endowment of the proposed institution.

Mr. Darrow, who was a defense attorney in the Scopes trial, was denounced by Mr. Stewart as "the greatest menace present-day civilization has to deal with."

"I do not believe there would be a serious clash between religion and science," the attorney said, "if it were not for the Godless Darrow and his ilk, spreading their propaganda and trying to destroy faith in the Bible. * * * His doctrine is a curse. Unless the people of this land suppress him more evil will be done."

Judge Raulston declared the statement that he had used his fundamentalist beliefs to further his political interests was "without justification."

"If I seek re-election," he said, "it will be wholly on my record as Judge and I don't believe Mr. Darrow's sarcasm can prejudice the minds of the people against me. * * *

"Mr. Darrow now refers to me as being ignorant and intimates that I am unworthy of the office which I hold. I prefer that the latter question be referred to the people in my district rather than to him."

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 13 (AP).—Definite action in disposal of the one-fourth of William Jennings Bryan's estate dedicated to educational purposes must await a valuation of the property left by him, it was said at the Bryan home today. Since so much of it is land, it may be several months before the valuation is completed. Conservative estimates place a value on the estate of $500,000.

NEW SUBWAY ELEVATORS.

Two More to Be Installed to Care for 191st Street Traffic.

The Board of Transportation announced yesterday that bids had been asked for the construction and installation of two additional electric elevators at the 191st Street station of the Broadway-Seventh Avenue subway. The work is to be completed in eight months after award of contract. The bids are to be received on Aug. 28.

The Board said that the need for the extra elevators grew out of a 200 per cent. increase in traffic at the station in the last ten years. Last February the George Washington High School was opened and, according to estimates of engineers, added 3,500 passengers daily to the station. In 1915 the elevators at the stop handled 2,001 passengers a day. Today the lifts take care of 5,187 a day.

When We Were a Colony

Old people, the penniless, the orphans and the sick, were "provided for" at the "poorhouse," generally a farm on public land under the care of a man and his wife.

Contrast with this ignorant and hopeless system the enlightened methods of the 91 affiliated charitable organizations of Federation. The aged are sent to special homes; the penniless are helped to independence; the orphans are placed in orphanages, where they are taught useful trades, and the sick are treated in splendid modern hospitals. Federation has made charity an economic factor.
